SUGGESTION MADE BY KEY IN LETTER PRAISING AFFAIR

American Offers Britain "Token" Payment
LONDON, Dec. 16.—(UP)—A prominent member of the American colony here received a demand for payment of the British income tax. His reply was prompt and to the point: "I am prepared to make a token payment of 10 per cent in silver at 50 cents an ounce."

He has not yet received a reply from the treasury.

FEDERAL CONTROL OF ALL EXPORTS IS PEAK'S PLAN

(Copyright, 1933, by The Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—The Peak tariff bartering committee, the Associated Press learned authoritatively tonight, contemplates a corporation to handle all American foreign trade.

Under a proposal outlined here, the government would share with private industry and business in the capitalization of the export agency, which likely would approximate a billion dollars. It would be under government regulation.

The agency would supervise production for world trade. The government to increase export quotas and better the markets abroad, would bargain with tariffs and imports.

Such a plan is in line with the recent White House announcement that the tariff committee, of which George E. Peck, chairman, will recommend permanent machinery to coordinate all government relations to American foreign trade.

It was emphasized that no definite decision has been reached yet. But the Associated Press informant said the committee is concentrating on such an export control.

In addition to seeking greater foreign markets, such as toward the cartel system would be designed to raise commodity prices also by keeping the production for export with quotas, relieving national commerce channels from the usual surpluses that anchor down the domestic price level.

The Peak committee started to work a week ago. The chairman, formerly the agricultural adjustment administrator, was in New York for conferences this week.

Several developments, in the view of observers here, fit in with the plan outlined: The first is reorganization of the committee to better the market for some commodities in France; and the transfer of Russian trade matters to the Peak committee.

"This idea of the cartel, and adapting it to American industry for export, has been prevailing in Washington for months," the informant said.

"Such a committee has been favored by Peck since the early days of the equalization fee principle of handling grain exports by a government agency."

By BEN COOPER.

Atlanta's welcome to Santa Claus, expressed Friday night by the largest crowd ever to witness a parade in this city, Saturday impelled The Constitution to accept a suggestion offered by Mayor James L. Key to make the Santa Claus parade an annual affair similar to the gala celebrations of other cities such as New Orleans with its Mardi Gras.

Realization of the possibilities of such an annual event was brought home to the citizens of the city by the arrival here of the idol of childhood, more than 125,000 persons jamming and packing the downtown streets to greet old Saint Nick as he drove his reindeer team through the city.

On the proposal as outlined by Mayor Key, joining in a flood of congratulations to The Constitution on its sponsorship of the parade crystallizing the idea of an annual Santa Claus' visit, started in on a circulation of currency that will insure Atlanta children of their best Christmas since pre-depression days.

AROUND LOCAL CONTRACT TABLES

by Whitner Cary

This was written by Mr. Cary early Saturday night before the start of the final five matches, which were due to be completed sometime Sunday morning.—Ed. Note.

Fourteen teams of weary but enthusiastic bridge players from the southeastern states are at this moment snatching a light supper just prior to starting the last session of five matches in the regional tournament of the United States Bridge Association. The first session started Friday evening.

The play has now progressed to a point where the ultimate winner seems to lie among three teams, a Spartanburg foursome consisting of A. J. R. Helmous, C. D. Ward, B. O. Johnson and J. R. Kerr; an Atlanta team composed of Mrs. and Mrs. L. H. Weston, H. W. Young and J. R. Bibb; and an Atlanta quartet consisting of Mrs. Gladys Peabody, Harold Dillon, John Hardisty and Joe David. The first two teams are deadlocked at 13 points for the lead; the Atlanta team is right behind with 12 points.

It is possible for some other team to crash through during the evening's play of five matches, but barring a tremendous upheaval the winning team will come from one of those mentioned.

The afternoon play produced some heart-breaking matches and saw several teams which made splendid records during the first session Friday evening fall back.

Alabama Falls Back.

late Saturday afternoon was the Birmingham team of Mrs. S. M. Ledbetter, Mrs. G. Estes, George B. Kelley and M. T. Fowlkes. This team turned in a most creditable performance during the first session and was off to a fine start Saturday afternoon. The last two matches saw them win but one match. They did better this afternoon but not good enough to be a contending factor in the final stretch drive.

Tournament Notes.

Everything has gone off in splendid fashion. Not a single unpleasant incident to mar the first southeastern regional ever to be held in Atlanta.

Lewis Hamilton, the director of the tournament, has done exceedingly well in every detail both preparation and supervision and is to be highly complimented upon his work.

The players have contributed no little in helping to make the affair a grand success. They are attentive to instructions and diligent in doing everything possible to make the conducting of the tournament easy on

Never in the wide wanderings of your commentator have I ever seen a more charming bunch of bridge players collected in any tournament. It is a real pleasure to be badly beaten by them. And take it from me, I have absorbed a lot of punishment during the last 28 hours.

The players' enthusiasm as shown by the visitors is high. This is a good sign as those here are representative of the bridge playing talent of the south.

The following is the complete standing of the teams at the close of play Saturday afternoon, which marked the completion of eight matches. Two points were awarded for the winning of a match and one point for tie.

Two teams from Birmingham were tied with 10 points each. They were the Birmingham-Aniston entry of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Wheeler of Aniston, and Mrs. J. L. Orr and Mrs. L. A. Bearcke, of Aniston, and the all-battalion team of Mrs. S. M. Ledbetter, Mrs. W. L. Estes, George B. Kelley and M. F. Hardisty.

The Augusta, Ga., team, which had only one Augustan, Billy Barrett, had nine points. Others on the team are Mrs. Jeff Hunt, of Columbia, S. C., and Ben Conyers and Lynn Foyt.

The team had eight points. The Memphis four of James Ellin, R. McEntire, Dudley Bell and Al Lou McLean; the Columbia (S. C.) team of W. L. Melton Jr., Robert L. Jones, Joe McCabe and Frank B. Gray Jr. and the Macon (Ga.) team of Mrs. Ed Bruce, Mrs. Marion Massie, Mrs. J. M. Kell and Mrs. Charles Williams. Along with themselves was the Macon team of R. D. Feagin, Joe Popper, Morris Michael Jr. and Pinkus Hopp.

Another Birmingham team has six points. On it were Mr. and Mrs. John D. McNeel and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Chappell.

Two Atlanta teams came next.

Mrs. Lewis Hamilton, A. Walton, Mrs. George Black and Mrs. Joe Taylor had four points, and Mrs. Humphrey Wager, Henry Chanin, Whitner Cary and Jack Feagin had two.

Tied with the latter team was another Spartanburg four composed of Captain H. F. Teate, R. L. Hallman, James Crowley and A. B. Vogel.

Mayor Key's Letter.

In his letter to The Constitution Mayor Key said:

"Editor Constitution: Last night I witnessed one of the most thrilling events that has occurred in our city within my recollection. The occasion was the Santa Claus parade. There were more people on the streets than I ever saw, and making up the crowd largely were multiplied thousands of children that were radiant with happiness—and so were the parents.

What may have happened to the other industries during the depression there has been no slowing up in that one.

"It has occurred to me to suggest that since many cities have occasions of carnivals, fêtes or gala days, that we might have one. I suggest something akin to Mardi Gras. We would of course have to make up a background of history, sentiment and legend, but which is entirely absent in this case; but on account of the intense appeal of this visit of Santa Claus, why could we not have an annual Santa Claus visit? We could make it distinctly a city-wide proposition, not to be approached by this or that or the other, and everyone could join in and the community as a whole receive the benefit.

"Santa Claus appeals to the imagination of childhood and stirs all the hearts of the young and adults as well, so let's adopt Santa Claus visit. We could make it distinctly a city-wide proposition, not to be approached by this or that or the other, and everyone could join in and the community as a whole receive the benefit.

"Santa Claus Saturday went visiting in Atlanta. He was escorted by motorcycle policemen, through the co-operation of Chief of Police T. O. Sturdivant, to Sears, Roebuck & Company's retail store, Battle Hill sanitarium, Davison-Paxon Company, J. C. Penney, and the Hillman-Davidson-Paxon Company and the Battle Hill sanitarium.

Captain R. J. Roberts of the Atlanta police, who carefully guided the gorgous parade, to Sears, J. M. High Company, Scottish Rite hospital, Hillman-Davidson-Paxon Company and the Battle Hill sanitarium.

all Atlanta is thankful that The Constitution made it possible for so many children and grown-ups to see the real Santa.

W. J. McManus, secretary of the King Hardware Company, said: "It was the biggest parade ever staged in Atlanta. The Constitution is certainly to be commended for affording happiness to so many thousands. There may at some time be as large a parade in the city as this but I do not believe there can ever be one that was so timely and afforded the people as so much pleasure."

H. H. Brooks, secretary and treasurer of the Brooks-Shattler Tire Company, said: "I have never seen anything like it. It was the greatest treat ever accorded Atlanta kiddies. The Constitution is to be congratulated."

C. C. Mason Jr., president of the Mason-Kominers Tire Company, said: "It would certainly like to see it again next year. I believe all of Atlanta turned out. You were certainly conservative about the number."

Indicates Better Feeling.

Ernest G. Beaudry, president of the Beaudry Ford agency, said: "The Constitution's Santa Claus parade was the biggest ever pulled off here, and the people were more than the entire population. The festive spirit has certainly asserted itself."

Frank Stevens, manager of the Atlanta store of Hanan & Son, said: "The public showed the biggest response I have ever seen. The parade's reception should stimulate trade to a remarkable extent. I wish to congratulate The Constitution on its public-spirited enterprise."

Sol Rubin, president of Rubin's, said: "It was the best thing Atlanta has ever had in that line. The Constitution certainly deserves to be congratulated."

H. C. Naylor, president of Lane Dry Goods Store, said: "Such a grand show, decked in the parade that our downtown stores were physically unable to render the customary courteous Lane service. It was a very fine gesture on the part of The Constitution and you are to be congratulated."

Downtown theater managers reported fine business at the conclusion of the parade, said George T. Murray Reed, of the Paramount, said the many fine shots were obtained by the Fox moviecameraman and will be shown at his theater next week.

Parade Was Stupendous.

E. L. Pearce Jr., general manager of Rhodes-Wood Furniture Company, said: "The parade was stupendous. It brought in more people downtown than I had expected, and I think that it was great in every way."

H. W. Mason, of the Mason Brothers Furniture Company, said: "It was magnificent. I never imagined a parade could reach such proportions in Atlanta. The Constitution certainly did it in this niche."

Grady Duffee, of Duffee-Freeman Furniture Company, said: "I thought the parade was a tremendous success, and I believe that it will stimulate trade. It was the largest crowd I have ever seen in downtown Atlanta."

J. Reynolds, of Frohsin's, said: "It was wonderful. The people showed so much interest and enthusiasm in their cheerful spirit should certainly boost Christmas business. I heard many comments about how nice it was of The Constitution to stage the parade. It demonstrated the pulling power of the morning paper, showing that the people were answering the call of Santa Claus when seen in The Constitution. It should do great good to speed up business recovery, by adding just a little more force to the buying spirit of the people."

Business Much Better.

Louis Regenstein, of Regenstein's, said: "The parade was a great success, and I congratulate The Constitution on its fine job in staging the parade over."

Business is so much better today because of the change in the spirit of the people. Things like The Constitution's excellent parade have helped bring about that subtle change."

E. L. Moody, manager of the Schwob Company, said: "The parade was a big success. The Constitution certainly brought out a lot of people, who helped to create a Christmas spirit I have not seen in several years. The event helped to crystallize the sentiment of the people toward better times."

J. P. Allen, president of J. P.

Teams competing included three from Atlanta, two each from Birmingham, Ala.; Macon, Ga., and Spartanburg, S. C., and one each from Memphis, Tenn.; Anniston, Ala.; Columbia, S. C., and Augusta, Ga.

Allen Company and president of the Retail Merchants' Association, said:

"The parade is the talk of everyone. It has added materially to the enthusiasm and spirit of Yuletide, and I congratulate The Constitution for putting on one."

Piloted Santa

E. M. Walker, manager of the Dodge Clothing Shop, said: "I have seen quite a few parades, but I have never seen one as nice or one that I enjoyed as much. Something has happened to the people, and it is making them buy as they have not bought in several years. Sales are much better."

Greatest Since the Armistice.

Walter Kessler, of H. Kessler & Company, said: "It was a great thing. One of the best and nicest parades I have ever seen. The Armistice was the greatest since the Armistice was signed, and the gala spirit of the people should certainly help in bringing better business conditions to Atlanta. The parade should help shopping this week. The people were excited and lively. Friday night, and exhibited a spirit equal to any they have had for years. They are very anxious to buy, and crowds are in the stores today starting the Christmas season off right."

Edgar Chambers, of Parks-Chambers, said: "The people of Atlanta certainly had great fun Friday night. Reports I get show that the Constitution has helped business, and I congratulate The Constitution on putting it over. The spirit of the people has changed materially, and Friday night was substantial evidence of that."

A. L. Zachry, president of Zachry's, said: "It was one of the best I have ever seen in Atlanta. It was a wonderful feast of The Constitution—the parade was splendidly handled. It was not too short and not too long, but was just right. It should stimulate business and help to create better feelings among the people. It appears to me to have been a powerful demonstration of the pulling power of The Constitution."

Harry Alexander, president of the Twenty Confederate veterans, from the Soldiers' home, witnessed the parade from a bus furnished by the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce. The veterans, said Mr. A. O. Woodward, the city providing a parking place on the line of march.

The parade marked the beginning of Christmas celebration at the home, where a Christmas party is to be held in the next few days.

Slayers of Price Are Found Guilty

WAYNESVILLE, N. C., Dec. 16.—(P)—Three mountaineers charged with the killing of Thomas Price, wealthy philanthropist, late tonight were convicted of second degree murder by a jury in Wayne superior court.

George Muse Clothing Company, said: "It was one of the best parades ever staged in Atlanta, a perfect show. It will help to diffuse the spirit of Christmas and build up business. This winter looks as though it will be a mighty good season. At least, Atlanta merchants are very busy."

Hermon L. Thomas, manager of the radio department of the Beck & Gregg Hardware Company, said: "The Constitution was the biggest event of its kind that I have seen in Atlanta in many years, and it was of tremendous value to the city's merchants to arouse the Christmas spirit to such an extent."

Myron Freeman, jeweler, said: "I certainly hope that the Santa Claus parade will be made an annual event. It was a great success, an extravagant manner, and tickled the fancy of the people, showing that the depression spirit has gone and a new atmosphere has taken its place. I congratulate The Constitution for its show."

Sam Rothberg, real estate man, said: "The Santa Claus parade of The Constitution was the greatest business restorative ever administered to Atlanta. The spirit of the people was the finest I have ever seen, and I want to pay tribute to The Constitution for the success of the parade."

Glorious Spectacle.

Dave Simon, manager of the Mirror, said: "Every man, woman and child in Atlanta should thank The Constitution for staging such a glorious spectacle. I have never before seen so many people downtown for any event."

Miss Laura V. Lombard, executive secretary of the Camp Fire Girls, expressed appreciation of the splendid co-operation of those who furnished cars to bring the children to the parade from the Decatur Orphans' home, the Atlanta Child's home, and the Hillside cottages. The girls who were there, said Mrs. Esther Allen, Mrs. K. Adams, Dr. Ralph Aiken, Roy Booker, Mrs. Fred A. Jones, Mrs. Tom Brooke, Mrs. Ward Stringham, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Slack, Mrs. W. Harry Vaughn, Mrs. John Sibley, Mrs. Dan Havens, Scott, Addy, E. H. McDaniel, Mrs. Ruth Gibson, E. W. Law, Dr. A. Henry, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Kell, Mr. H. W. Morrow, Mrs. J. H. Green, Mrs. B. H. 'Alice' Proves Quite as Charming As Carroll's Beloved Little Girl

By BARBARA BAKER. It didn't happen in a book, as Lewis Carroll wrote it. It happened right in the Atlanta Biltmore, just outside of Room 801, to be exact. I went down the corridor looking for the number when a smiling little girl in a blue dress stepped out in front of me.

"Are you?" I began, surprised. "Yes," she replied, "I'm Alice. Alice in Wonderland."

I probably would have fallen through the rabbit hole myself, had there been one in evidence. Nothing like Alice's smile to melt the heart. And Alice's sweet voice, though her blue silk dress with dainty white collar and cuffs topped by a tiny pink organdy apron. Her abundant reddish blonde hair, which fell below her waist, was held in place by a blue ribbon. Low-heeled black patent slippers completed Sir John Tenniel's familiar picture of Carroll's little girl. She led the way into her sitting room. A big doll, almost as large as Alice herself, who is only five feet one inch tall, drooled over a chair. It had been presented to her in Chicago and has traveled with her since.

Alice, who is going to find it difficult to be remembered by her real name of Charlotte Henry, arrived in Atlanta at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon, and made a short personal appearance at the Paramount theater last night. She was selected from 6,000 applicants to play the role of Alice in the play.

Alice was graduated from high school last year. She played for a year on Broadway before going to Hollywood, realizing the ambition to become an actress she had cherished since she was nine years old. She played in the screen versions of "Huckleberry Finn" and "Lena Riv-

She thinks the most amusing part of the film production of "Alice in Wonderland" is Jack Oakie in the role of Tweedle-Dum. She herself most enjoyed doing the scene in which Alice talks to the caterpillar, which

2 SCOTTSBORO NEGROES GO TO KILBY PRISON

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 16.—(AP)

Transferred from Heywood Patterson and Clarence Norris, two of nine defendants in the "Scottsboro case" who were convicted at Decatur earlier this month and sentenced to death to Kilby prison at Montgomery, was announced here today.

Attorneys for the negroes conveyed a request from them to the court at Decatur on December 6, that they be held in the Jefferson county jail, awaiting the sentence of other defendants, pending the action on an appeal to the Alabama supreme court. Execution of sentence was suspended on notice of the appeal.

Also was used for the test as the result of which she was selected for the part. The test occurred at the beginning of the production when Alice was required to fall through the rabbit hole into a blanket concealed below. Not being adept in the art of falling, she did it most realistically, falling face first, and a physician had to realign a vertebral and three shoulder discs.

Concerning the deadlock in Scarnici's case, Judge Brearton declared:

"I can't conceive how 12 men could honestly fail to reach a verdict. There is a lack of sufficient and convincing evidence, including testimony of reputable and disinterested witnesses, it is beyond comprehension how you could honestly and fairly disagree unless you have been motivated by fear," he asserted.

"You are discharged with the censure of the court," he added.

Count Judge James F. Brearton severely criticized the jury for acquitting Reino and disagreeing in Scarnici's case. He conceded that an acquittal for Shore was not entirely undeserved.

Robert W. Chambers Dies; Louis Vance Burns to Death

By JAMES H. STREET.
NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(P)—Death closed the books today for Louis Joseph Vance and Robert W. Chambers.

Vance—he wove words into romance along the strange trails of stranger places—was buried to death at his apartment here.

Chambers—he chipped his words from the rainbow and changed prosaic incidents of history into glamorous drama—died at Doctors' hospital following an operation.

Vance was 54.

Chambers was 68.

An 80-year-old Vance's apartment house found his body, burned badly, in a smoldering chair. Police suggested he fell asleep and his cigaret set the upholstery afire. He wore only his trousers.

Authorities began an investigation.

One theory was that he suffered a heart attack and collapsed as he attempted to rise from the chair.

Chambers underwent an operation for an intestinal ailment three days ago and never rallied.

The two authors had much in common, including a fascinating cadence in their works. Both began their careers as artists.

An 80-year-old Vance was a artist for a New York newspaper after he completed his studies at Polytechnic Institute in Brooklyn. Chambers studied art in Paris and was an illustrator for magazines.

Chambers was born in Brooklyn where Vance went to school. Vance was born in Washington, where his father was a newspaperman.

Vance turned to writing in 1900 and wrote short stories for magazines, using many pen names. He once had several stories appearing simultaneously under as many different names.

In 1906, he brought out "The Brass Bowl," and his fame was assured.

Later came "The Lone Wolf" and such glorious things as "Terrence O'Rourke, Gentleman Adventurer," and "The Road to En-Dor," as well as such creeping mysteries as "The Desecrated Angels."

Profile and articles, he wrote rapidly and frequently. Many of his books were best sellers.

Chambers, temperamental and retiring, wrote his first novel, "In the Quarter," in 1903.

He wrote anything—verse, sociological novels, children's stories and plays—but his historical romances made him famous.

His style was virile and he wrote about things that fascinated men—wars and adventures on the grisly middle passage of the slave trade, pirates and gold and love.

There are his "Ashes of the Empire" and "The Man They Hanged" and the "Drums of Aulon." Recently, he did magazine stories about pirates' adventures off the Georgian Spanish main, gypsy love on the Rio Grande and tales of a woman federal spy who loved a rebel.

Chambers married Miss Elsa Vaughn in 1908 and still has a home in Broadhurst, N. Y. They since maintained a home here. His widow and son, Robert Edward Stuart Chambers, survive him.

He was a member of the National Institute of Arts and Letters and numerous clubs. Friends remember him as a retiring sort, a bit shy but devoted to his small circle of close friends. His hobbies were guns and rods, rare furniture, books and paintings.

Vance is survived by his son, Wilson Vance, who edits newspaper in Vienna.

Recently Vance returned from a voyage to the West Indies and friends said he apparently was in good health.

He was a well-known contract bridge player and frequently clashed with Ely Culbertson over the game. He resigned from one club in protest of Culbertson's election.

In his will, he directed today's police found a model of valour he arranged to his father. On it was this:

"Second Lieutenant Wilson Vance, Company D, 21st Ohio Infantry Volunteers, December 31, 1862."

COTTON CUT DRIVE

OAKLAKE, Little Rock, Ark., and Tucson, Ariz., to confer with agricultural leaders of the southwest and far west before the campaign. Similar conferences have been held or will be held at other points throughout the south, where Oscar Johnston, director of finance of the National Cotton Council, D. M. Watkins, consulting statistician of the cotton section, and C. A. Alvard, assistant to Cobb, are meeting growers and extension forces.

The rate of rental payment for each acre rented to the secretary of agriculture will be 3 1/2 cents a pound on the average yield of lint cotton an acre for the period January 1, 1934, to 30 cents inclusive, with a maximum rental of equal installments, the first to be paid between March 1 and April 30, 1934, and the second between April 1 and September 30, 1934.

Parity Payment.
The parity payment of not less than one cent a pound on the farm product will be held in the case. On January 1, 1934, and January 1, 1935.

The "farm allotment" is defined in the contract as "40 per cent of that figure expressed in pounds which results from multiplying the annual average number of acres planted in 1929-30, inclusive, by the average yield (expressed in pounds) per acre during said years."

Two Men at Hospital.
Joiner and Ford are at the Crawford W. Long Memorial hospital as the result of being wounded in the affray on Peachtree road. Their condition was said to be "fair."

According to information given Captain W. E. Carroll and Smith, the two, with three companions, had driven into the yard of the barbecue stand for something to eat. Just as they finished and as the negro waiter was carrying a tray another car drove up for service.

The waiter did not know which car to wait on first and when he started toward the door of the car, one of the robbers ordered him to serve them first. A quarrel developed between Ford and Joiner and the male driver of the other automobile, who was accompanied by a young woman.

Four Bullets Fired.
Police said the unknown driver cursed Ford and Joiner and they started over to his car to remonstrate. The driver warned them not to advance or they did not stop and he fired four bullets at them at close range.

Joiner was shot once in the chest and Ford was wounded three times in the arms, the bone of one arm being shattered by the bullet.

The young man and woman fled from the scene. A police officer described them and the car was obtained by county police. The license number was not noticed by anyone at the sandwich stand, it was said.

The affair occurred between midnight and 1 o'clock Saturday morning.

Conditions Improved.
"I am advised of a latest improvement in conditions in the south as compared with those of last year. We know that the cotton program of this past summer was one of the major contributing factors to this improvement. The south has already experienced a considerable degree of the beneficial results of a program of cotton production, and we are Washington recognizing that the first major attempt of the adjustment administration was successful because of the immediate and intelligent co-operation of the cotton farmers of the south. The administration is confident that the same spirit will characterize this second step in the adjustment of cotton production."

Cobb urged cotton farmers to compile in advance the information necessary in filling out a contract. He listed the following:

(1) Number of bales of cotton produced on farm for each year of the base period, 1928-32, inclusive.
(2) Average weight of lint per pound for each year of the base period.
(3) Total lint produced in each base period.

(4) Acreage planted to cotton in each base period.
(5) Number of pounds of lint per acre produced in each base period.

In addition to the above information as the basis for determining the acreage planted to cotton during the base period, the farm allotment and the amount of payments under the contract, producers will be asked to give their cotton production for 1933 and crop acreages for 1932 and 1933.

CITY JAIL PLANS BEFORE COUNCIL

Further Steps To Be Discussed by Gilliam at Monday Meeting.

Further steps in the building of a new police station and in the construction of a modern sewer system will be considered in city council at its meeting at 8 o'clock Monday afternoon, following the trip to Washington last week of Alderman E. A. Gilliam, chairman of council's finance committee, and Herbert J. Haas, attorney representing the city in the federal fund applications.

Although it was generally considered as definite that the new police station would be located on the L-shaped present property fronting on Decatur street and extending to Butler street, Alderman Gilliam was non-committal on the building committee's plans, pending the council session.

Necessary papers in connection with the applications for CWA funds will be presented to council Monday, it was said. Attorney Haas reported that receipt of the committee in Washington was gratifying, and that Atlanta's chances of obtaining the new sewer system are excellent.

Gilliam said that cost of the sewer system would be around $40,000. Co-operation of the county is said to be necessary, as the system would cover the entire metropolitan area.

Gilliam said that the finance sheet for 1934 probably will be referred to the finance committee, as the 1933 committee had not had an opportunity of meeting to consider the budget, and Monday's meeting will be the last one of the year for council.

Kidnaped Dog Returned Without Any Ransom

SALT LAKE CITY, Dec. 16.—(P)—Oscar, a thoroughbred spaniel and victim of a kidnap plot, was returned today, unharmed and without payment of ransom.

Oscar was taken from the home of Milton V. Hallen last Sunday.

Tuesday a telephone message demanded a ransom of $50. A friend of the family offered to try to effect return of the captive and was successful. A taxicab dropped Oscar and sped away.

ATLANTA NAMED SITE FOR ARCHITECT BUREAU

Jobless Technicians To Be Employed for Federal Building Work.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—The city of Atlanta was today selected by the civil works administration as headquarters of the Georgia district just created by Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes, to make a historic American buildings survey. Georgia is one of 40 districts throughout the country.

The primary purpose of the survey is to give employment to approximately 1,200 architects. They will be paid $1 an hour for a 30-hour week, in line with the regular civil works program, and will be recruited through the state unemployment administration.

Administrator Ickes has appointed a national advisory committee to cooperate in making plans and directing the survey, and a total of 44 architectural technicians, under the supervision of Thomas E. Vint, chief landscape architect of the office of national parks, buildings and reservations, will handle the supervisory work. These technicians will be appointed by Mr. Ickes, and the names will be requested Vint to obtain from the local architectural society or chapter of the American Institute of Architects in the regions affected recommendations of men qualified for this work.

Although no estimate of the number of Georgia architects who can be put to work is available at this time, it is expected that the personnel of the Atlanta office will include one architectural technician, one clerk-secretary and one stenographer.

No funds for rental of space for the district offices is contemplated at this time.

"It is expected," he declared, "that space either will be provided in the federal building or that architects employed in the work will be willing to volunteer the use of space in their offices."

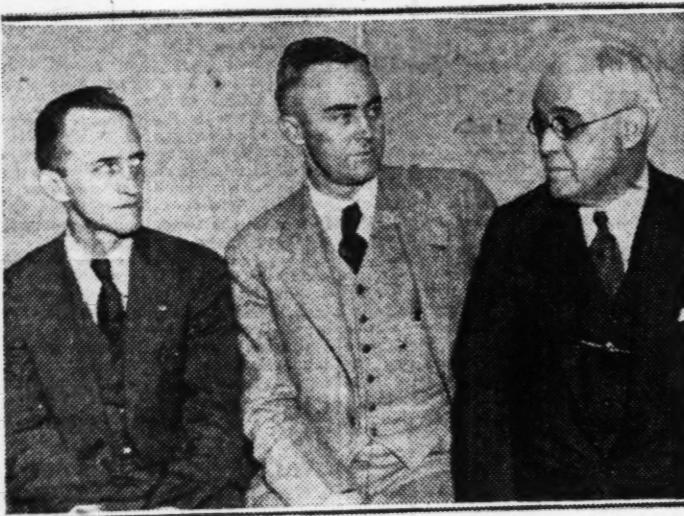

Administrator Ickes further explained that the survey probably would last about two months, and that applications for employment should be made through Georgia state employment agencies.

Technicians appointed in Georgia will immediately make up lists of projects for measurement and survey in the state, in co-operation with the national advisory board and the landscape division of the office of national parks, buildings and reservations. All projects recommended will have to be approved by Administrator Ickes.

"Already many suggestions as to the buildings to be studied have been submitted by prominent architects throughout the country," said the administrator. "However, only buildings which have remained essentially unchanged in which art is in a serious condition of deterioration can be considered for what we shall call New projects. Architects who gain employment on this historic survey will be doubly fortunate, for in addition to obtaining needed work, they will be given an opportunity to carry on investigations and studies which all architects dream some day of doing when time and lack of pressure for funds permit."

It was Maier & Berkele's purpose in issuing this brochure to show only a cross section of their stock, for it would take hundreds of pages to list their many thousands of items.

The prices shown are based on those of last January. The lowest in 15 years, an emphasis is made on the fact that replacement costs will be much higher, and that the public should take advantage of the present low prices.

Armin Maier had the following comment to make about the new brochure issued by his firm: "It is the finest we have ever had, and I hope that it will help out patrons in selecting their gifts by suggesting to them those things that they might not have otherwise thought about."

Four groups of carols have been arranged for the program, according to an announcement by Dr. Malcolm H. Dewey, director. The entire personnel of the Emory Glee Club, known as the "South's Sweetest Singers," will take part in the concert. The annual carol programs have attracted widespread attention and capacity crowds always attend.

Tobacco Growers Ask Holiday in Kentucky

FRANKFORT, Ky., Dec. 16.—(AP)

Representatives of tobacco growers throughout the Kentucky burley district adopted a resolution here late today asking Governor Ruby Laffoon to issue a proclamation requesting the immediate closing of all loose-leaf floors in the state until the federal government has time to perfect its tobacco control program. The growers also urged the governor to communicate with other governors regarding the proposed holiday.

Unemployed Artists To Get Work In New Phase of CWA Activity Here

Enduring commemoration of past events and present activities in combating the depression, will be started this week in the form of painting murals on the walls of unoccupied artists under the public works of art project of the CWA, J. J. Haverty, regional director and president of the High Museum of Art, announced Saturday.

Wilbur G. Kurtz, Atlanta artist and assistant to Mr. Haverty in the public project, will leave Atlanta today for Washington for conference with the national advisory committee on the type of projects to be carried out in Atlanta.

"By the end of the week," Mr. Haverty said, "we will have some 35 or 40 artists at work decorating public buildings, such as schools, the city hall, and the old postoffice building.

A sketch of their work will be submitted to the regional committee and to the advisory committee in Washington for judgment as to quality of workmanship and artistic worth before the painting is accepted.

The paintings will depict the history of the old south as well as the work of such organizations as the CCC and kindred projects," he said.

The Stone Mountain memorial, which had been painted, would be completed with CWA money, does not come under the provision of the art project of the CWA, Mr. Haverty asserted. The only way the memorial can be finished with United States funds, he said, is for the federal government to take it over as a public memorial.

Mr. Haverty is in charge of the arts projects in Georgia, Alabama,

Miss Jessie Reese, Atlanta dance teacher who is directing the revue, has been rehearsing the big cast in the rehearsal hall of the Fox theater and stated Saturday that the revue Sunday afternoon would be the most pretentious ever staged by Miss Jessie Reese and all who are participating in the presentation are donating their services so that all proceeds can be directly applied to the charity, it was stated.

Children from Hillside Cottages, Hebrew Orphans' Home, Georgia Baptist Orphans' Home and the Southern Christian Home, disabled veterans from Base Hospital No. 48, and aged women from the Atlanta Old Woman's Home will attend the performance this afternoon as guests of Atlanta businessmen who generously subscribed tickets. Transportation for the guests is being supplied by the Georgia Power Company and the Greyhound Bus Company, buses being sent to the various institutions for the guests.

Miss Jessie has arranged a program of 25 attractive numbers, several of which include a chorus.

Jury Trial Is Ordered In Ben Hill Contest

The battle of two men for the office of ordinary of Ben Hill county was discussed in a decision of the state supreme court which reversed the Ben Hill superior court, instructing a verdict for J. R. Horton, who refused to deliver the office to Paul J. Kelly on the claim that Kelly had not paid the taxes required of a person holding such an office.

Kelly instituted quo warranto proceedings requiring Horton to show cause why Horton should not deliver the office to Kelly.

In his answer, Horton claimed he had been elected to the office for the four-year term ending December 31, 1933, and that his successor had been elected and qualified. He said Kelly received sufficient votes to make him ordinary, but was not qualified because of an alleged failure on Kelly's part to pay taxes required of him to become a registered voter.

The jury, on instruction of Judge A. J. McDonald, found a verdict for Horton.

The supreme court held this instruction was an error and that under the circumstances there were "issues of fact solely for the determination of a jury."

STATE AGAIN TO SHIP MILK INTO FLORIDA

G. C. Adams, commissioner of agriculture, said Saturday that milk shipments from Hawkinsville, Eatonton and Greenville, Ga., were approved for shipment into Florida.

He said recently that Florida had banned shipments from these points because of alleged failure to comply with certain Florida milk standards, but that the dairymen of the district gave "whole-hearted co-operation" to the state department of agriculture in correcting the condition so the shipments could be resumed.

The importance of correcting this condition can readily be appreciated in that it provides an outlet for the surplus milk on the markets of this state and also protects the price ultimately realized by the Georgia milk producers," Adams said.

BOOK REVIEWS IN TABLOID

THE MASTER OF JALNA—Dynamic force of the personalities portrayed and of the author's style, dominates "The Master of Jalna," Mazo de la Roche's latest novel, published recently by Little, Brown & Co.

The turbulent Whiteoak family who inhabit the Canadian country estates, Jalna, will arouse the keen interest of the reader, though perhaps those who have read the three preceding books will be particularly interested in following the activities of this family, composed of such strangely diverse temperaments.

Strong loves and the equally strong hatreds of the Whiteoaks run parallel through the theme of the book, in particular the kindly love of family drawing each member closer than a hand of steel. Though the class and social influences affect the actions of the entire family, perhaps this driving feeling of family unity is strongest in Renny Whiteoak, the virulent master of the household whose heart feels every tug and strain of triumph of that group sheltered by his roof and hand for the return of any absent members of the Whiteoak clan.

The sharply defined characters reveal very human characteristics and faults, which, though sometimes over-emphasized by the author in limning such colorful personalities, are easily comparable with the scenes everyday in the actions of associates. The boisterous impetuosity of precocious young Wakefield is especially appealing, as is the cool serenity of Alayne and the fresh assurance of Pheasant, but the strength of Renny's will is predominant throughout.

A trip along the northern woods is brought in Mazo de la Roche's description of woodland scenes near Jalna. Possessing a really unusual faculty, this author imbues her characters with such strength and life-like qualities that they stand forth, not as mere actors in a story book, but with the vivid reality of living friends. (By Elizabeth Thompson.)

NEW FICTION.
The Red Demon. A dramatic novel. By A. J. Wright. The following describes not only the story of the author, but the story itself:

This brilliant and altogether original story is startling enough in itself, but when it is realized that the author, laboring under the almost insuperable handicap of blindness, is at the same time a very active member of the great business associations of

MAZO DE LA ROCHE.

United States, it acquires added interest.

The author is well known for his financial success, being an active member of the United States associations.

It is predicted that she will make well known as well in the world of finance. Any citizen, man or woman, who is interested in the leading subjects of this century which is filled with perhaps greater problems than was ever presented to the author, will be interested in this contribution by Mr. Wright. Whether or not he has found the key to many of the problems that are now causing the president and his people so much trouble remains to be seen.

The Red Demon has just begun on its tour, and will be carried on it is sure to reach many people, and the prediction is that it will be of some use in the untangling of the

time. (Putnam's Book, New York.)

The Tumult and the Shouting. By Ursula Piron. Joliet design by John Gincano. The author, who is a real one of the progressive writers of today, gives Boston, in 1877, as the setting for her new novel of four generations. It covers the period when the good, honest and loyal Irish came from Ireland in sailing ships, believing in God, good women and hard work to make a home in a new country. The comparison is drawn with the generation who, returning from the World War, found changes with which they were unable to adjust themselves.

Among the characters that play a part in the make-up of this most interesting story are Aunt Ellen, her niece, Elizabeth; Shan Burke's son, Michael, and his wife, and others, but the central figure is Dr. Michael Gavin. This occasion being a party in celebration of his graduation from a New York medical school and now he was at home to stay, having decided to locate in Boston. It is in the foreground of this great physician that the reader will follow to manhood, romance, marriage and death of his only son, in the Spanish-American War. Then the story of the last half of the book is woven around a young girl, Carol, and the story goes on, and on and it is the fourth volume that, after all, tells the story. There are three books which cover the period from 1877-1878-1898-1916-1920.

"The tumult and the shouting dies; The captains and the kings depart; Still stands thine ancient sacrifice, A humble and a contrite heart." (Longmans Green & Co., New York.)

There Is Always Another Year. By Martha Ostens. This romance, by the author of "Prologue to Love," is strong in character, and "infused with the spirit which faces perplexities and seeming disaster with hope—there's always another year!" (Dodd Mead & Company.)

Jan the Romantic. Youth on the High Road and the Low. By Albert Bigelow Paine. Jan, the son of the village schoolmaster, in a Norman town, grows up in an atmosphere of poverty and strife. He was poor and the family grew poorer, but through it all Jan continued to dream his dreams. The story of his romance is appealing, beginning when he meets a beautiful little girl of his age and continues until the Great War. "This French provincial novel gives a rich blending of the old world with the new." (Penn Publishing Company, Philadelphia.)

Enchanted Ground. By Temple Bailey. This charming writer has at last come to enchanted ground in which she gives her readers something new in weaving story around the great drama in which the torture of love against depression is the basis on which the story is written.

"... I saw them in my dream that they went till they came into a certain country, whose air tended to make one drowsy if he came a stranger to it...." (Penn Publishing Company, Philadelphia.)

Monstre Blackshirt. By David Graeme. This is a story of adventure in which the lover of mystery stories will find much of interest. It begins during the reign of Henry IV in France, and the central figure was called "Monsieur Blackshirt" in the 70s. There is not a dull moment in it from the time we meet Ella Bishop in her girlhood days, then as a teacher and last as a woman. This is a real romance which often occurs in the life of an unselfish girl. The story has received much praise from the readers of the method of former stories. It is a story of life, its changing ways down to the present time. (D. Appleton-Century Company, New York.)

A STORY OF CHILDHOOD DAYS.

Worth Remembering. By Rhys Davies. Drawings by John Gincano.

"When you begin to grow old always think deeply of your youth for an old man without memories is a wasted life, and nothing is worth remembering but our childhood."—James Stephens.

This story in which the reader will find nothing dull or drab is for grown-ups only. Among the interesting characters that furnish the humor and quaint sayings are Bunniply (whose name is Nancy) for the garments, Biddy, the sister, and Buddy, his brother, both Mommy and Babe. They first live in the city and then in the country and, judging from the good times they have, Biddy and Bud live a life of their own in which imagination plays a big part, so the story goes on and on and the good times continue to the last page of the story:

Julia Peterkin says: "It makes me bitterly homesick for my own childhood." Robert Nathan: "I have been sitting at home all day whooping with joy over 'Worth Remembering.'" Alice Hegan Rice: "Only one who has had a negro mammy and a southern childhood can know how funny it is." (Longmans, Green & Co., New York.)

THE STORY OF THE CROW INDIANS.

Blankets and Moccasins. By Gwendolyn Damon Wagner and Dr. William A. Allen.

"For the Indians of America I call upon the Great Spirit of the Red Men, with gesture and chant and tribal songs, that the dead should have died in vain, that war might end, that peace be re-established by the blood of Red Men and White."

This, the last tribute paid the Unknown Soldier by Chief Plenty Coups.

While this book is not intended as a biography of the chief, but a reflection of a people of the northwest, the dead should have died in vain, that war might end, that peace be re-established by the blood of Red Men and White."

This story from a historical standpoint will be of interest to boys and girls and, with the attractive illustrations, will make a most acceptable gift for Christmas. (The Claxton Printers, Ltd., Caldwell, Ohio.)

Rare Engravings of Wesleys Added to State's Collection

Above are shown two steel engravings of John and Charles Wesley, which have been presented to Rhodes Memorial Hall by T. Guy Woolford.

From far away Japan have come two steel engravings of John and Charles Wesley. Announcement of their presentation to Rhodes Memorial Hall by T. Guy Woolford was made December 13 by Miss Ruth Blair, state historian.

The rare pictures, 29 by 23 inches, are enclosed in distinctive Japanese frames. The Rev. W. E. Towson, a Methodist missionary, purchased them in Japan some 30 years ago, after finding them in a native Japanese workshop. Early last summer, while the Rev. Mr. Towson was in the United States, he brought them to Georgia. It seemed a fitting time during Georgia's bicentennial year for John and Charles Wesley to return to the birthplace of the religion they founded in this country.

In one of the engravings Charles Wesley "Preaching to the North American Indians—1745." Included in the group of Indian braves is a woman with a child, whose half-cast features would lead one to believe she is Mary Musgrave, of early Georgia history, although that is only a surmise. The second picture is of John Wesley "Preaching to His Father's Tomb in Lincolnshire."

The engravings were done by the firm of S. Lipschitz and Son, of London and Hamburg, and are treasured more for their decorative and historic value than for their artistic worth. There is a picture similar to that of John Wesley at Emory, but so far as is known is the one of Charles Wesley.

John Wesley is shown in his bicentennial celebration, to whom Mr. Towson brought the pictures and from whom Mr. Woolford purchased them, said that he endeavored to look them up in the public library of New York city on a recent trip there and found no record of them.

JUNIOR-CHAMBER PLANS BANQUET FOR PRESS

Atlanta Papers To Be Honored for Support of Civic Projects.

The Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce will give a "press testimonial banquet" at the East Lake country club Friday night as a means of expressing the organization's appreciation of the support given various projects for civic development by the three Atlanta newspapers. Prominent men and women of national and local fame will be invited to join in the tribute.

In further token of its appreciation, the Chamber of Commerce will present engraved scrolls to The Atlanta Journal, The Atlanta Georgian and The Atlanta Constitution.

Beginning at 6:30 o'clock the dinner will be attended by the press representatives, members of the outgoing and incoming board of directors of the junior chamber, and others prominent in business, civic, and political life.

Among the prominent persons who have received invitations are Senator Richard B. Russell Jr., Governor Eugene Talmadge, Mayor James L. Key, Congressman Robert Ramspeck, Her-

HEAVY FOG DELAYS TALMADGE PARTY IN SOUTH GEORGIA

Six members of the automobile party using Governor Talmadge's car in the Route 3 motorcade arrived at Albany at 6 o'clock Saturday morning after a slow all-night drive through heavy fog while en route home from Carrollton, Fla.

Included in the party were Mrs. Talmadge, Mrs. Stacy Hill, Mrs. Lily Jones, Miss Sallie McRae, Tom Wissel, state auditor, and F. W. Kerr, traffic manager of the Hood Coach Lines, Inc.

After attending the celebration at Tallahassee Friday morning with the motorcade the party attended festivities at Carrollton in the early part of last evening, and then started for home. Within a short time the fog became so dense that they had to drive at a snail's pace.

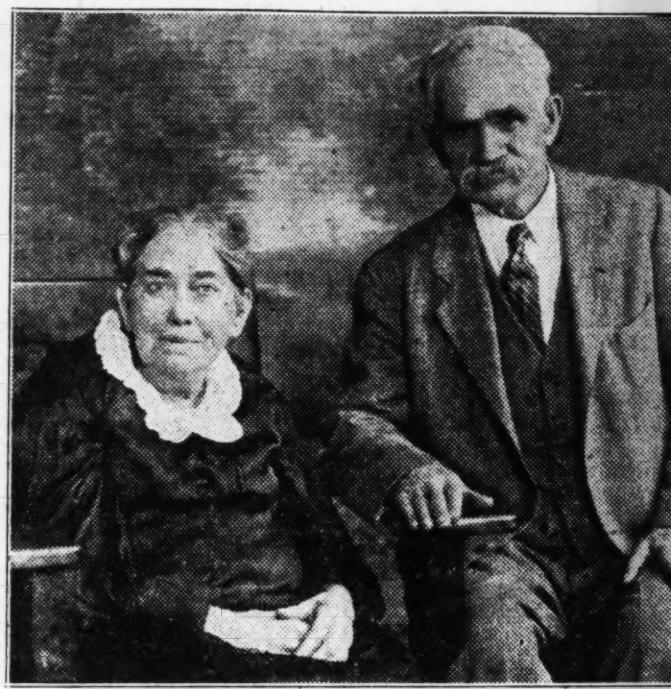

Arriving at the home of Colonel W. B. Hutchinson, a member of the governor's staff, early Saturday they were served hot coffee, and resumed their way toward Atlanta.

Beginning at 6:30 o'clock the dinner will be attended by the press representatives, members of the outgoing and incoming board of directors of the junior chamber, and others prominent in business, civic, and political life.

Convicts Chop Off Fingers, Arms To Escape Labor at Texas Farm

HOUSTON, Texas, Dec. 16.—(AP)—A bizarre account of how two convicts chopped off their fingers and a third cut off his arm to escape hard labor, came from the remote retrieve of the state prison system today.

Officials of the farm expressed the opinion that the men maimed themselves in order to get transferred to the central penitentiary, Huntsville, where the work is lighter.

John J. Jones, 36, of Houston, said he chopped off three fingers of his left hand with a cane knife so he could "make the Huntsville walls."

Harry Bertoline, 35, of Fort Worth, hacked off his arm above the wrist on December 9. Captain B. H. Tarver, assistant manager of the farm, said Bertoline explained he did not want to work.

Melvin Underwood, 20, of Wellington, convicted of murder, said his four fingers were chopped off accidentally by a fellow convict, while they were digging stumps.

Underwood said he twice had been maimed "so he would not be punished for infraction of prison farm rules. Captain Ike Kelley, farm manager, explained that convicts who violated rules were required to stand on an upturned barrel, after work hours, as punishment. The men, said, stand on the barrel for two hours, then rest an hour, then stand on the barrel again until midnight.

"In my honest opinion," Captain Tarver said, "Underwood had the other convict chop off his fingers so he could get to Huntsville where the work is not so hard."

"This is not a new thing on the prison farm," Kelley said. "Last fall we had an epidemic of about four or five convicts chopping off their feet to get out of work."

Both Kelley and Tarver said there was no brutality on the farm.

CHICAGO WILL REVIVE CIVIC OPERA DEC. 26

Society To Hear Old-Time Favorites at Insull Palace Rededication.

By MAURICE E. COLLINS.

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—(AP)—For the first time since the utility empire of Samuel Insull crumbled under the weight of the depression and Edith Rockefeller McCormick lost her vast fortune, Chicago will have civic opera when the newly organized Chicago Grand Opera Company begins its five-week season at the Civic Opera house, on December 26.

The backers plan a gaudy season, with society turning out to hear once more such stars as Rosa Raisa and Edith Mason, old-time favorites, Maria Jeritza, Schipa and Chamlee, in the pink and gold setting which saw only three years of opera.

The company, in its new huge auditorium in the 42-story building financed by Insull has been dark save for an occasional convention or music show. Ironically, the opera house which Insull intended to climax his career as a patron of opera was dedicated in 1929, the year of the crash which eventually led to his downfall and which still exists in Georgia.

Although Insull will be conspicuously absent at the rededication, other devotees of music will be there in full force and full dress. The new company, formed by George Lytton, chairman, who died a few days ago, and George W. Truett, artistic director, has recruited its subscription list from leaders of social and business groups.

An imposing array of opera talent has been signed for the short season, including Marion Talley, who went from opera to the stage, and performed on the boards of the Metropolitan and back again to the farm. She will essay a comeback in her Metropolitan debut role of Gilda in "Rigoletto."

The budget as well as the season has been curtailed. McCormick gave millions in a single season, the budget for the new company has been cut to $150,000. Half of this amount has been guaranteed. Backers say it will take an average attendance of 80 per cent to make the venture successful. Bankers who control the building have conceded the open house at its $13,000,000 worth of properties.

The opening performance will be "La Tosca," with Maria Jeritza in the leading soprano role. Other sopranos under contract include Grace Moore and Hilda Burke. Edward E. Rost, business manager, said negotiations were under way for a performance by Elizabeth Rethberg, Metropolitan star.

Tenor stars will include Mario Chamlee, Dino Borgioli, Oscar Colcaire and Joseph Cadevole. Tito Schipa will be heard in at least one performance of the short season.

No announcement was made as to what part if any would be taken by Harold McCormick, who was active in former days with his first wife, Edith Rockefeller, in promoting the civic opera.

Capone's Plea Goes To Court of Appeals

Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood Saturday granted Al Capone, former Chicago gang chieftain, the right to appeal to the fifth circuit court of appeals in New Orleans Judge Underwood's recent decision giving Capone his freedom on a writ of habeas corpus based on the statute of limitations.

Capone is serving a 10-year sentence in the Atlanta federal penitentiary for evading his income taxes in 1924, 1925 and 1926.

Representatives of some of the 43 municipalities which buy power wholesale met here recently and asked Charles A. Collier, vice president of the power company, for a reduction.

Collier proposed a rate which he said would mean a cut in power costs of about 10 to 12 per cent. The communities' representatives asked an additional 5 per cent discount for prompt payment of bills. Collier said he would lay the proposition before other officials of his company.

The Georgia public service commission said today Collier would discuss the situation with representatives of the municipalities here on December 27, but no announcement was made as to what will be offered.

CONFERENCE IS CALLED ON CITIES' POWER RATE

Municipalities which buy power at wholesale from the Georgia Power Company and resell it at retail are to hold another conference here December 27 to discuss a proposed compromise reduction with power company officials.

Representatives of some of the 43 municipalities which buy power wholesale met here recently and asked Charles A. Collier, vice president of the power company, for a reduction.

Collier proposed a rate which he said would mean a cut in power costs of about 10 to 12 per cent. The communities' representatives asked an additional 5 per cent discount for prompt payment of bills. Collier said he would lay the proposition before other officials of his company.

BOOK OF POEMS BY MRS. WOMBLE PUBLISHED HERE

A small volume of verse entitled "Heart Songs," by Mary Venable Womble, was issued by the Franklin Press Saturday and will go on sale this week. All of the poems have been published before, a number of them on the editorial page of The Constitution.

Two of the poems, "The Apple Blossom Lane" and "Love Is Calling," have been sold to musical publishers.

Mrs. Womble is also the author of an article on the Wesley chapel in the old First Methodist church, which was published in the Historical Bulletin and awarded a prize of $50 several years ago. She is a native Georgian, residing at 40 Twelfth street, and the mother of Lieutenant J. P. Womble, on duty with the naval unit at Georgia Tech.

Vesper Service Today.

The Atlanta University Laboratory school will hold its annual vesper service in the assembly room of Gillett Hall on the Spelman College campus this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. The mixed chorus of the school will give a program of sacred music with Christmas music predominating, and there will be a series of Yuletide tableaux under the direction of Miss Ida Louise Miller, teacher of dramatic, in which the school dramatic club will take part. The public is invited.

EXPANSION FORCES EVENING SCHOOL TO GET U. S. FUNDS

Awarded a public works fund of $356,000 is the reward given the University System of Georgia Evening School because of outgrowth in popularity of the school, which is located on Walton street. While all other senior colleges in the university system showed a decrease, the evening school showed 60 per cent increase in student body.

Known formerly as the Georgia Tech Evening School of Commerce, the recent reorganization by the board of regents enlarged the field of departments offered, according to Dr. George M. Sparks, to the giving of an A. B. and B. S. degrees and also a master of science in commerce. Academic work for these degrees necessitated the enlarged building facilities.

Members of the $20,000 survey board consisting of nationally known educators were most gratified by the report of the regents, by the evening school faculty and administration, and in their report to the board of regents recommended that some other building site be purchased for a building and that the curriculum be enlarged to care for arts and science students as well as those wishing graduate work in commerce.

The director, Dr. George M. Sparks, is a former practical newspaper writer and business executive, so in the enlargement of his school from commerce to include literary and professional degrees the board of regents placed the offices of Dr. Charles M. Snelling, director of general extension, in the evening school building so that his long connection with the University of Georgia might be of assistance to evening school officials.

ESCAPED PRISONER CAUGHT AFTER FIGHT

Guy Pharr, who escaped from New Haven on October 23, was captured Saturday morning at 229 Luckie street by County Police Officers Carroll and Smith, after a run-in with Pharr's sister, Grace Smith, who was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct. Pharr was found under a bed after Grace Smith had told the officers he was not there. In the scuffle, Officer Smith was struck with an alarm clock and various household utensils. Pharr was serving a sentence for violation of the prohibition laws.

FIRMS COMPLYING WITH NRA CODES

About One in 10,000 Is Only Deliberate Violator, Says Johnson.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—(AP)—An assertion that only one in ten firms of the 3,000,000 employing the Blue Eagle as a deliberate violator, was made today by NRA as it arranged for continuance of the voluntary re-employment agreement into next year.

In a statement he presented these statistics: Only 311 complaints of "chiseling" have been reported to Washington by local compliance boards while close to 6,000 cases have been settled locally after violations were found to have been due either to misunderstanding or otherwise easily rectified.

Black Salaries Paid.

Latest evidence of the importance of the eagle to employing establishments was announcement that Moro Manufacturing Company of New Orleans had found it desirable to give its employees $4,000 in back wages to come up to re-employment agreement terms, and had promised to comply faithfully with the cotton garment code. Several reinstatements on the same basis had preceded this one, some affecting big firms.

Of the 3,000 cases reported to Washington only 42 were deemed to warrant removal of the eagle. Thirty-three were found not to be violations at all; 42 were adjusted by codes becoming effective for the parties complained against; 50 have been adjusted since report to Washington; 52 cases have been referred for more information; 62 are still unacted upon and 10 have been referred to the national labor board.

The statistics, Johnson said, "ought to be a fairly complete answer to the statements made in certain quarters that the NRA was other than a success."

Pay Roll Increase.

Also made public today were October figures for the steel industry showing a pay roll increase for the month of $800,000 despite a decline in production to 37 per cent from 41 per cent in September. This followed much larger increases, bringing pay rolls to a total of $7,429,226 above the pre-code pay of June, though the steel industry's output then was greater. The average earnings had mounted from 53.1 cents per hour in June to 64.9 cents in October.

The treasurer, however, believes the partnership provision should be revised and intends making a recommendation on it later.

Hill told newspapermen the treasury proposal had not changed his opinion regarding the fairness and practicability of the subcommittee recommendation.

"If the treasury program is followed," he said, "we would lose a lot of money that would be saved by the subcommittee plan."

The committee found itself in accord with the treasury on the necessity for earned income tax relief for the taxpayer, with a tax income of $250 or less, as contrasted with similar income from investments.

The percentage of deduction to be allowed for the earned income tax-payer will not be determined until the percentage needs are ascertained.

Views All Aired. The committee, however, that one way to solve the question might be to increase the present differential between the regular corporation tax of 13 3/4 per cent and the consolidated net income tax of 14 3/4 per cent.

Representative Crowther, republican, New York, suggested raising the differential another one and a quarter per cent, but Magill was not prepared to suggest any rate.

President's Mail Gains
As Christmas Nears

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Christmas has given to the usual flood of White House mail such an added tide that a night office staff has been temporarily added to the executive force.

The president's mail reached a new flood stage Tuesday when 11,000 letters were trundled into the executive office.

The incoming mail has dwindled to an average of 6,000 letters a day.

The emergency letter-opening staff has been borrowed from other governmental departments. The mail is sifted out through a corps of secretaries and clerks. A comparatively small portion of the volume reaches the desk of the executive.

LYNCHING VICTIM FIRST ABDUCTED, INQUIRY REVEALS

COLUMBIA, Tenn., Dec. 16. (AP)—Investigators learned today that Col. George L. Logue, 18, a negro, lynched near here last night, had been abducted from the home of relatives in Nashville shortly after his release from jail upon the grand jury's failure to indict here in connection with an alleged attempted attack on a young white girl.

Sheriff L. A. Baumann at Nashville was told that the negro had been at the home of his relatives there only a few minutes when a band of armed men appeared in automobiles and spirited him away. No report of him was received until a telephone call advised that he had been lynched.

Sheriff Baumann declared that the negro, Charles Clegg, whom he was "one of the most high-handed things which has happened around here in a long time." As kidnaping is a federal offense, he suggested to the negro's relatives that they take up the matter with United States authorities.

A. Pinkston, chief deputy sheriff here, said his investigation into the lynching of Clegg, whose body was found hanging from a cedar tree limb in the Glendale section of the county, was under way, but that no clue to the identity of the lynchers had been found.

Three Stories of Success Told in Changes by Postal

COLONEL J. T. LOGUE.

D. E. CHAPMAN.

The story of three men who followed the same route to success accompanied the announcement Friday of the promotion of Colonel Logue to general manager of the southern division of the Postal Telegraph Company to vice president, in charge of the national traffic department. Colonel Logue has already assumed his new position in New York but will return to Atlanta sometime next week to settle his personal affairs.

Colonel Logue is a native Georgian, claiming Gibson as his birthplace. He started his first telegraph work as a messenger with the Southern railroad company in 1911, in the traffic department, at Augusta, Ga. He was promoted to the position of chief operator in 1919. By 1925 he had become the successful manager of the fifth district, covering the state. He was made manager of the southern division, embracing 11 states, with headquarters in Atlanta in 1929, and it is this position he leaves for his work in New York.

Colonel Logue's promotion is notable in that it is the first time a southern man has held such an important position with the Postal Telegraph.

The man who follows Colonel Logue as general manager of the southern division is D. E. Chapman, also a Georgian, and has come over the same ground covered by his predecessor. He started with the Georgia railroad in 1907, and came to the Postal Telegraph in 1911, the same year as Colonel Logue. Since then he has risen steadily along the same road with the exception of the position of district manager, which he held in New Orleans, the central office for the fourth district, including Louisiana and Mississippi, from 1921 until til his recent advancement to the southern office in Atlanta. Mr. Chapman arrived in the city Thursday from New York, where he had been attending a conference.

The third man of the story is J. E. Johnson, and he fits neatly into the trio as the new manager of the fourth district in New Orleans, the position just relinquished by Mr. Chapman. Mr. Johnson started as a messenger in Oxford, N. C., when he was only 14 years old, and began his first work with the Postal in 1912. His progression through various promotions finally brought him to Atlanta in 1929 as superintendent of this city. He leaves shortly for his new office.

"Of course we are hopeful of an early settlement of the difficulty in Cuba," said Mr. Welles. "I did not have to report to the president on the Cuban situation. No man in the United States is better informed on this than Mr. Roosevelt."

Welles will be in charge of Latin-American affairs as assistant secretary of state.

A plea in abatement, brought by the governor's attorneys, was granted by Municipal Judge McIntyre on the grounds the governor at the time of service was on official business and entitled to exemption.

The suit was to recover a lien on a note for $1,200, signed, the petition said, by the governor in 1926 at Daytona Beach.

Atlanta Music Notes

By MOZELLE HORTON.

Heralding the Yuletide season in brilliant color will be the Christmas program of the Atlanta Music Club, at the Atlanta Woman's Club, Tuesday evening, December 19, at 8:30 o'clock in the auditorium of the Atlanta Woman's Club. This will be an outstanding feature of the pre-Christmas week. Mozelle Horton, your humble columnist, is chairman for the program, and Mrs. Charles Chalmers, concert pianist, has arranged and directed the music, which will be presented by the combined choirs of Second-Ponce de Leon Baptist church and Druid Hills Baptist church, assisted by a number of well-known singers and a string ensemble.

Admission for non-members of the club will be 50 cents.

The program is one of unusual beauty. The large choir of the program being Saint-Saens' "Christmas Oratorio," a composition of rare loveliness. Other numbers of the program are "Lo, How a Rose E'er Blooming," "Prætorius' "Bring a Torch, Jésu-Bé," "Dow's "Darest," "Johann Miller arranged by Saint-Saens' "Shepherds' Christmas Song," arranged by Dickinson; "O, Come Ye to Bethlehem," arranged by Barnes, and the "Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's "Messiah," all by the choir of voices. The string ensemble, comprised of Walter Sheetz, violinist; Alice Waterman, viola; and Mrs. Chalmers, at the piano, will offer a group of interesting numbers.

Mrs. Chalmers, pianist and director for the program, is a musician of remarkable taste, and any musical undertaking under her direction inevitably bears the artist's stamp. Her innate sympathetic musical understanding has won for her the rank of one of the foremost accompanists of the south. She has made tours with some of the leading artists of the country, and always her performances are artistic.

The singers who will appear are the following: Mrs. Haskell Boyter, Mrs. Corwin Lewis, Mrs. Gerald Mitchell, Mrs. Geoffrey Tamsey, Miss Claude Smith Jr., and Miss Anna Chapman, soprano; Mrs. Luther Byrd, Mrs. Luther Harper, Mrs. Roger Martin and Mrs. John Sizoo, contraltos; W. L. Brown, Leslie Fowler and Stailey Perry, tenors; Haskell

Boyer, Albert Cutler and Paris Lee, bass.

Members and guests are cordially invited to remain for an informal reception in the banquet hall of the club following the program.

Cantata "Ruth."

A. R. Gaul's sacred cantata, "Ruth," sung by the combined choir and organist, will be presented by the Peachtree Christian church, with Mrs. Victor Clarke, organist and choir director, conducting, will be the Sunday afternoon concert feature of the life membership division of the Atlanta Woman's Club in their regular free concert series, arranged in the church auditorium at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Max E. Land, a member of the club, and Mrs. Wilmer Moore is chairman of the life membership division, with Mrs. Willis Westmoreland, co-chairman. Soloist will be Mrs. Raymond Johnson. Mrs. Blanche Shieland, Mrs. Elsie Stiles, Mrs. Mattie Ellis Cooper and Norman LaMotte. The choir consists of a large number of Atlanta vocalists. The work is one of grateful beauty, and the performance by the Peachtree Christian choir is being greatly anticipated.

Agnes Scott Service.

A Christmas service by the Agnes Scott College choir and the string ensemble will be held this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the college chapel in Decatur. Lewis H. Johnson is the director, and C. W. Dieckmann, the organist. Among the numbers to be sung by the choir are "A Babe So Tender," "When the Cradle is Rocking," "Hark! What Mean Those Holy Voices" (Warren) and "Hallelujah Chorus" from "The Messiah" (Handel).

The junior choir of 45 voices will occupy the rear gallery and sing several Christmas carols. Charles Sheldon Jr. will preside at the organ and conduct.

the piano. The public is invited to attend.

Candler's Honor Guild.

Mr. and Mrs. Asa Candler Jr. entertained the members of the Atlanta chapter of the American Guild of Organists and their guests at an elaborate dinner party, followed by an organ recital by Dr. Charles Candler Jr. at their handsome home, Briarcliff Manor, on Briarcliff road, last Tuesday evening. Dr. Sheldon played the beautiful Candler organ in his usual inimitable manner, giving a lovely program of compositions of Bach, Mendelssohn, Vienna, Debussy, Clokey, Schubert and Wagner. He was assisted in a group of Grieg and Chopin by his talented young daughter, Elizabeth, who played the piano with her father at the organ, a delightfully pleasing performance. The guild was given a musical treat when Mrs. Candler graciously consented to play the "Pastorale" movement from James H. Rogers' Third Sonata, and she played it with excellent musical taste.

Christmas Song Service.

The full-voiced chorus of the Presbyterian church will render Sunday morning at 8 o'clock their first song service. This choir organized just last Easter has become famous for its beautiful tonal qualities and pure English diction. They will sing some of the great Master compositions appropriate for the season, including the following: "Sing, O Heavens" (Tours); "God So Loved the World" (Stainer); "Hark! What Mean Those Holy Voices" (Warren) and "Hallelujah Chorus" from "The Messiah" (Handel).

The junior choir of 45 voices will occupy the rear gallery and sing several Christmas carols. Charles Sheldon Jr. will preside at the organ and conduct.

Dance Concert.

Lucy Banks Mower, danseuse of Nashville, Tenn., was presented in a dance recital by the Atlanta Woman's Club last Tuesday evening at a small but appreciative audience. Miss Mower possesses an unusual degree of grace and was particularly adapted for aesthetic interpretations of the classics. Her costumes were beautiful. One of the outstanding numbers of the program was "Tragedy." She was assisted in the program by Alline Fentress, violinist.

The Messiah.

The choir of St. Luke's Episcopal church, under the direction of Hugh H. Hargrave, will sing the Christmas part of the beloved oratorio, "The Messiah," by Handel, at St. Luke's church on Friday evening, December 22, at 8 o'clock. Among the choruses, to be sung by the choir of over 50 voices, will be "Glory to God," "For Unto Us a Child is Given," "And the Glory of the Lord," the famous "Hallelujah Chorus" and others. Soloists will be Mina Hecker, soprano; Ruby White Brown, contralto; C. E. Drummond, tenor, and Coleman Kimbro, baritone. Mozelle Horton will be at the organ.

Fine Art Radios.

The fine arts department of the Atlanta Federation of Woman's Clubs, of which Anna Tucker is the chairman, will present the choir of All Saints Episcopal church, under the direction of Joseph Ragan, organist and choirmaster, in a program of Christmas music at 8:30 o'clock on Friday evening, December 22, at 8 o'clock. Dr. W. W. Memminger, rector of All Saints, will speak briefly on the subject, "Music in Religious Worship." This musical event, coming over the air, promises to take its place in the outstanding programs of the Christmas season.

String Ensemble.

The novel undertaking of Lawrence G. Nilson, bringing together in concert all the youthful students of string instruments of the city, proved a fine success at their first concert last Tuesday evening in Taft hall at the city auditorium. Over 100 young musicians, coming from the various studios in the city, took part in this unusual event. Directed by Mr. Nilson, and a large audience received their performance gratefully. The outstanding numbers of the program were Mendelssohn's "I Would That My Love," a group of three Christmas carols, and the last number, "Psalms." Miss Anna McEwan, "Athalia," The string ensemble was assisted by a woodwind ensemble trained by A. J. Garing. The woodwind players were H. Reynolds Hudson, clarinet and director; I. L. Lamar, clarinet; M. W. Baker, flute; James Addy, flute; John Busteed, oboe; and Olaf Bryngelson, pianist.

Gordon-Eppley Recital.

Lila Gordon and Jack Eppley, of the Gordon-Eppley dance studios, will present the pupils of their school of the dance in recital Monday evening, December 18, at 8 o'clock in the auditorium of the Atlanta Woman's Club. Admittance will be by invitation only. After the recital Miss Gordon and Mr. Eppley will entertain at a reception in the ballroom of the club.

Little Misses Janna MacMillan and Gloria Jernigan will be pages for the occasion. A unique feature of the program will be a "baby class" conducted on the stage by the baby class teacher, Gretchen Celeste.

Mozelle Horton will be guest artist, pianist.

Other features will be an ensemble toe scarf dance; a comedy number, "Mickey Mouse," a rollicking Irish reel, and many novelties.

North Avenue Program.

Today's full schedule of events calls attention also to the program of Christmas music to be given this evening at 7:30 o'clock at North Avenue Presbyterian church, Rev. Dr. Pauline, organist of the church, and Margaret Baker Battle, soprano soloist and musical director, assisted by Ardins Colby, pianist, and Georg Lindner, violinist, and the chorus choir of the church will present an outstanding program. Dickinson's "All Hail the Virgin's Son" will be an ensemble soprano choir, piano, organ and violin. Among other numbers for organ and piano to be rendered are Guilmant's "Pastorale" and Widor's "Serenade." Mr. Lindner will play a group of solos with organ and piano accompaniment. Dr. Richard Orme Flinn, pastor of the church, will talk on "The Spirit of Christmas in Music."

Music Extension Group.

The music extension department of the Atlanta Woman's Club will hold a special Christmas meeting at the home of Mrs. Walter H. Bedard and Mrs. Mary Butte Griffith, 650 Bonaventure avenue, on Monday evening, at 8:15 o'clock. Mrs. Carroll Carroll is the chairman of the extension group. The history of carols, with group singing, will feature the program directed by Mrs. Carroll and Lula Clarke King. The meeting is open to members of the Atlanta Woman's Club only.

Studio Musicals.

Hugh Hodson presented a group of his pupils in a studio musical at the Erlanger theater building last Monday afternoon in a piano program that was outstandingly artistic. Brilliance and well-thought-out interpretations characterized the performances.

Ezra Morgan closed the program with two movements of the Liszt E Flat Major Concerto, playing with almost unbelievable pianistic skill.

Atlanian Guest Artist.

Mrs. Bonita Crowe, well-known Atlanta musician, pianist, and composer, was a guest of the Birchwood musicale circles in two programs last Thursday. In the morning she appeared before the Birmingham Music Club in a group of piano solos at their morning musical. In the afternoon she gave a concert sponsored by the Writers' Club of that city. At the latter program, some of her own compositions were played.

LANCE TESTIMONY EXPECTED MONDAY

McRae's Counsel Says Once-Condemned Man Will Face Boykin.

Climax of interest in the Boykin-McRae libel suit will be reached Monday if George Finch, attorney for McRae, succeeds in having Jack Lance in Atlanta to appear as a witness. Finch has been in communication with Lance for several days, and states that he has signified his willingness to appear. Lance is said to be in Havana, after a recent return from Europe.

Lance was convicted of the murder of Bert Donaldson, Boykin's bungling investigator, was sentenced to the electric chair, and after a new trial had been granted by the supreme court, was freed on a no-pars by Solicitor-General Boykin. The Lance case has attracted much attention during the libel suit trial, inasmuch as it is upon McRae's charge of "framing" Lance, among other charges, that Boykin is suing, and many documents introduced in evidence now recall the dramatic incident.

Trial of the suit, in which McRae is asking $100,000 of Boykin, and Boykin $300,000 of McRae, each charging libel in the 1932 solicitor-generalship election, has been in progress for two weeks before Judge Hugh M. Dorsey, in city court, and will be reached Monday morning.

Boykin is claimed by McRae with accepting a $3,000 bribe when he was justice of the peace, for binding over Bert Schreiber, then a Miami real estate dealer, on charges of embezzlement.

Each side has presented evidence claiming the other got gain of making the charges complained of.

A feature of the trial which involves charges of jury tampering will be concluded probably during the coming week, when contempt charges against William F. Brandy will be heard. Brandy was subpoenaed a hearing, and defendant of George Finch, McRae's attorney. He refused to appear, and the witness stand that he had approached any jurors. The matter was referred by Judge Dorsey to a committee from the Atlanta Bar Association and the Atlanta Lawyers' Club, for investigation and report.

McRae is being represented in the trial of the suit by his law attorney, George Finch. Attorneys William Schley Howard, Marion Smith and James A. Branch are appearing for Boykin.

REV. ROBERT ARMOR COMES TO PATTILLO

The Rev. Robert L. Armor, for the past two years pastor of the First Methodist church of Clermont, Fla.,

has been transferred to the Georgia conference and assigned to Pattillo Memorial church, Decatur.

The Clermont Press published at Clermont, said that during the past two years "in the local church he has been the motive for a strong advancement in every department of religious activity. The membership has been increased from 225 to 225, the debt structure of the church reduced to business-like condition and it is in the strongest condition in its history" and "there is little that can be said after the Georgia congregation has been congratulated upon its good fortune."

HYMN-SINGING JURY REBUKED FOR MERCY

Judge Raps Light Sentence Arrived at After Period of Music.

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 16.—(AP)—Members of a jury that same hymns before bringing in a verdict of second-degree murder against Alex Zielinski, 45, last night, were assailed today by Judge Will Leach before he sentenced the defendant to 10 to 20 years in Eastern penitentiary.

Zielinski shot and killed Diamond Glad, real estate proprietor, two months ago, alleging that Glad had stolen the affections of Mrs. Zielinski and married her.

Judge Leach said: "According to rumor six of the jurors had the courage to give him (Zielinski) his just deserts, but because they were uncertain as to his guilt, so in the jury, they were unable to do so."

"By sub-sister I do not mean a woman. I mean an effeminate person of either sex who has not the moral courage to give pain to the wrongdoer when it is in his duty to do so."

Judge Leach made it plain that the court felt Zielinski should have been given first degree with the death penalty.

The jury, composed of men and women, sang hymns, one of them, "Guide Me, O Thou Great Jehovah," before rendering its verdict.

In commenting on the case before sentencing Zielinski, Judge Leach said:

"And He said, 'What hast thou done, the voice of thy brother's blood crieth from the ground.' That is the remark of Jehovah to the first murderer and it is still applicable to every murderer."

"In this case the defendant assassinated a man in cold blood with a cowardly shot in the back. By his own admission he was guilty of trying to extort money from his wife by threatening to dynamite a house. He was thief and a would-be dynamiter before he became a cold-blooded assassin."

"In court he was a perjurer and a whimpering cry-baby. There is every reason to believe that he was an accessory to the attempted murder of his wife, and a fire bug."

"Protesting the utmost love for his wife, he did everything in his power to blacken her. Now he thanked the jury for their verdict, and no wonder some of the jurors shrank from shaking his blood-stained hand."

EMORYITES OMIT 'SHOES' SPIRITUAL AT PERKINS AFFAIR

"You mustn't sing that song!" whispered the chairman as she hurried backstage.

Surprised, Dr. Malcolm H. Dewey, director of the Emory University Glee Club, quieted his boys who were softly humming a tune in anticipation of the program of negro spirituals they had been invited to present at the meeting last Wednesday night in Wesley Memorial church at which Dr. Eugene Perkins was to be principal speaker.

"But we understood that Miss Perkins had a keen sense of humor and thought she would enjoy hearing that 'All God's Chillun Got Shoes,'" protested Dr. Dewey.

Congressman Robert Ramspeck joined the consultation, and soon Miss Perkins herself, "It is all right with me," said, "but I would prefer if they didn't sing that song as I have devoted about three-fourths of my speech trying to smooth out the statement I once made about shoes in the south."

"All God's Chillun" gave way to "Ain't Gonna Study War No More" and "Rolling."

27 FULTON PRISONERS PLAN TO PLEAD GUILTY

Planes of guilty will be entered Monday by 27 prisoners in Fulton tower and they will be sentenced by Judge G. H. Howard in criminal court this week, it was announced Saturday.

As an effort to clear the crowded jail before Christmas, Lewis P. Jones, calendar clerk, conducted a survey and found that 27 of the prisoners planned to plead guilty, two of them on murder charges.

The present grand jury will be discharged December 29 and the first 1934 jury will be sworn in January 2.

MAN HURT IN CRASH: NEGRO DRIVER FLEES

Clarence Brandt, 20, of 678 Somerton terrace, was admitted to Grady hospital Saturday night as the result of injuries received when the truck in which he was riding, with G. A. Coleman, 21, of 1314 Northview avenue, drove, collided with another truck driven by a negro at Fair and Fort streets.

The negro driver jumped out and ran but police have a clue to his identity. Brandt is not seriously hurt.

The automobile of J. M. Chapman, of Fort Street, was partially demolished Saturday night when it was struck by three box cars which had been shunted from the engine on the crossing below the Union station. Chapman was unhurt.

Investigators said it appeared like

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR LAWYERS READ AT COURTHOUSE

Memorial services were held Saturday in the courtroom of Judge E. D. Thomas in memory of members of the Atlanta Bar Association who had died recently. Attorney Robert C. Alston, president of the association, presided.

Tributes to the memory of Lowry Arnold, Marion M. Jackson and Clifford Anderson were read by Attorneys Sam Evans Jr., John A. Hynd and Robert Crenshaw. Philip Weltstein, who organized the life work of Mr. Arnold and Mr. Jackson, Attorney Shepherd Bryan spoke on the lives of all three of the men memorialized.

By order of the five judges of the superior court, the memorials were spread upon the minutes of the court. More than 200 relatives and friends of the deceased members were present.

DRYS OF AUGUSTA WILL CARRY FIGHT TO HIGHEST COURT

Counsel Outlines Various Means Mapped Against Liquor Licensing Under City Ordinance.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. 16.—(P)—Opponents of Georgia's liquor licensing ordinance plan to carry their fight to the Georgia supreme court if they fail to get their injunction against the measure in superior court here next week.

William H. Fleming, counsel for the drys, announced the step would be taken in the event Judge A. L. Franklin decides against the injunction on which additional hearings will be held here Tuesday.

Should they fail in this move, Fleming said that if licensure were issued he would "gather evidence" and swear out warrants charging the dealers with violation of the state bone dry law.

"We will close any place operating under a city license," he said, "and under consideration would be to seek injunctions against the dealers for 'operating nuisances.'

After hearing arguments pro and con on the subject yesterday Judge Franklin postponed further discussion until January 10, when a decision by Friday. He granted a temporary restraining order last week and the hearings were set to determine whether to make the order permanent.

NEU ATTENDS MASS WITH OTHERS DOOMED

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 16.—(P)—Condemned to hang by a jury in a criminal district court last night, Louis Kenneth Neu, 26-year-old cabaret singer of Savoie, New Orleans, was sentenced to death by two men, today suddenly dropped his witscracks and rowdy songs to chant the responses at an early morning mass in parish prison. Neu, who said he was reared a Baptist, made an unexpected appearance in the little Catholic church at the end of the death cell tier and knelt beside three other men who are awaiting the march to the gallows.

Crouched in the dim candle light that flickered from the altar as four drifts through an open prison window, Neu, who had been a member of the New Orleans police force, sang hymns in death cell, and raised his voice strongly in the recitation of the service.

Afterwards he said he "was studying to make a convert to the Catholic church."

Although Neu bragged that "I can take it," his attorneys' next fight will be to save him from the hangman's rope will be waged in the Louisiana supreme court.

C. T. Harnold, assistant professor in horticulture, will speak on "A Comparative Study of Developing and Aborting Fruits of the Peach" before the American Society for Horticultural Science in Boston December 28.

Soon after a jury of 12 white men found him guilty of the slaying, he left under heavy guard for Richmond to spend the remainder of his life in the state penitentiary.

The death penalty had been asked by the state.

Members of the jury said the lighter penalty, fixed by the jury, resulted from the appeal earlier in the day by his attorney that his life be spared so he might identify an alleged accomplice, Charlie Johnson.

BECK RESUMES ATTACK ON NRA AND JOHNSON

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(UP)—Representative James M. Beck, of Pennsylvania hit back at General Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, and the policies of the NRA commission tonight in a speech at the dinner of the Pennsylvania Society of New York here.

The Pennsylvania congressman criticized a week ago by the NRA head as one who assumed the air of a copywriter of the Constitution, delivered a smashing attack on General Johnson and his policies.

Beck charged that under General Johnson and the Roosevelt administration the American people had surrendered a democratic form of government, that the morality of the nation had been lowered and that the courage of the citizens had been blunted.

General Johnson was termed by Beck "the eminent general, who, by his delegated authority, is the economic dictator of the United States." He attacked the general's "series of vituperative harangues" against such men as "a distinguished specialist in political economy, Dr. Sprague, and a stalwart American, Alfred E. Smith."

Beck charged that for "six months the channels of the air have been denied to opponents" of the administration.

The press has continued under the threat that they, too, will be restricted by system that no newspaper can be conducted without a license granted by General Johnson, the Pennsylvania Republican chairman.

Secretary Dern, being treated for an infected eye, was said by Walter Reed physician to be continuing to improve.

The Naval hospital said Secretary Swanson had spent a comfortable night and was resting well. The secretary's condition was described as "good." He was taken to the hospital several days ago in a weakened condition from a cold.

The secretary, Secretary Ickes, who fractured a rib and fell on the ice, was described by the Naval hospital as "splendid." It was added, however, that full recovery from the type of fracture received by the secretary sometimes was slow.

Mary Pickford Signs Broadway Contract

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Mary Pickford has signed a contract to appear for a week on the stage of a Broadway theater.

Her contract includes Christmas Day. Beginning December 22, she will appear on the stage five times a day.

Her vehicle will be "The Church Mouse." With assisting actors, she will present a small part of the first act.

This will be Miss Pickford's first appearance on the stage since her association with the late David Belasco.

She would not say how long ago.

"Actresses let people guess their age," she smiled.

Miss Pickford has been rehearsing

"The Church Mouse" on the west coast, she said, and likes it as a medium for her return to the stage.

GLENN ROAD HEARING SET FOR THURSDAY

Judge E. D. Thomas Saturday set next Friday for a hearing in Fulton superior court of the injunction

county, against the state highway

Sawtell, a property owner, demanded a right-of-way across his land to the highway aboard with certain stipulations regarding grading, fills, drainage, etc.

He obtained a temporary injunction against the highway board going with the paving of the road on his property. Later, a notice of contempt of court was served on the highway board charging that the contractor was working on the property.

The contractor then was ordered to cease work by the highway board and

complaint.

Samuel Mathews, secretary of the highway board, says it is the contention of the board that the contract for the construction of the road on the Sawtell place had already been awarded when Sawtell obtained his injunction and that the board could not be enjoined for something which had already taken place.

The highway board contended today that it had not violated the injunction because it had not been enjoined. Judge Thomas in vacating the con-

EAST OFFICIALS SUGGEST CHANGE FOR GRID RULES

Would Strengthen Offense by Offsetting Balance Now Given Defense.

By Edward J. Neil.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(AP)—First of football's official family to move into post-season action, the members of the Eastern Association of Inter-collegiate Football Officials today suggested four important changes in the playing code.

There were no formal recommendations, no record votes among the 200 members of the association, who gathered for their annual meeting here, but it was the sentiment of the men who run the game on the playing field that something should be done about the balance of power they agreed rested now with the defense.

Their suggestions, to be laid before the rules committee during its winter meetings by Bill Crowell and A. W. Palmer, both members of the committee from the ranks of the officials, were as follows:

SUGGESTED CHANGE.

1. A forward pass grounded in the end zone shall not be ruled a touchback except when the grounded pass comes on fourth down.

2. Increasing the sideline zone, within which a downed ball is automatically brought in from the side lines, from 10 to 15 yards.

3. Clearing the complicated rule governing blocked kicks so as to permit either team to recover and advance a blocked kick that does not cross the line of scrimmage.

4. Return of the goal posts to goal lines.

Speaking for the officials, Tom McNamee, of Boston, new director of athletics at Holy Cross, said the officials always had advocated rules that would tend to make football safer, and at the same time increase its attractiveness as a spectacle.

WILL STRENGTHEN OFFENSE.

"The officials were not unanimous on any of the suggestions," he said, "but it was the consensus of opinion that changes should be made to strengthen the power of the offense and offset the balance that now lies with the defense."

A change in the forward pass rule would tend to bolster the offense where the going is toughest—in front of the opponent's goal line. Teams now refrain from passing there because of fear of losing the ball on a touchback.

"We also feel that the success of the sideline zone established for the first time this year suggests still greater improvement in that direction by increasing the zone from 10 to 15 yards. Even with the ball brought out 10 yards, few kicks are sent there toward the sidelines, giving the defense a chance to concentrate its strength toward the center of the field.

"Strong sentiment was expressed that it would be wrong to change the kicking rule because of the improvement last season in the handling of punts. But it was the consensus that the rule against recovering blocked kicks should be changed to permit either side to recover and advance the ball if it does not cross the scrimmage.

BLOCKED KICK.

"That would be a fair change and would clear up a situation now unclear and one that caused considerable trouble this fall. Under the present rules a blocked kick can be recovered behind the scrimmage line by either team, but advanced only by the defense. Once it crosses the scrimmage line it becomes an ordinary punt ball."

"Sentiment in favor of return of the goal posts to the goal lines, instead of 10 yards back, their present position was strong. The possibility of injury is remote, we believe, and by return of the goal posts drop-kicking and placement kicking would regain their natural place in the game."

"It was the general opinion that the dead ball rule is excellent as written now. While it appears to work a hardship where the runner falls in the end zone, the whole absence of serious injury in college games has been marked and can be taken in no small measure to this rule."

William Birmingham, graduate manager of athletics at Harvard; Walter Oleson, eastern commissioner of football officials, and Lou Little, Columbia head coach, were speakers at the annual banquet tonight.

'Gators, Wolfpack To Play Gobblers

BLACKSBURG, Va., Dec. 16.—(AP)—Three new foes—Temple University, Florida and North Carolina State—are on the Virginia Tech football schedule for next fall announced here today.

A two-year contract was entered into with Florida "with the site of the meeting game undetermined, although it probably will be played at Blacksburg with the 1935 game at Gainesville."

North Carolina State probably will be met on neutral territory.

The schedule:

September 22—Rutgers at Blacksburg; September 29—Temple at Philadelphia; October 6—Florida at Blacksburg (neutral); October 13—William and Mary at Blacksburg; October 20—Maryland at Norfolk; October 27—Washington and Lee at Lexington; November 3—South Carolina at Columbia; November 10—North Carolina State (play suspended); November 17—Virginia at Blacksburg; November 24—M. I. T. at Boston.

Football Letters Given at Monroe

MONROE, Ga., Dec. 16.—Twenty-two members of the Monroe Academy football team were awarded letters here last night in the annual banquet given for the football team.

Harry Mehre, H. J. Stegeman and Rex Enright, of the University of Georgia, were principal speakers in addition to Coach Red Barrow and Duke McKeith.

Both coaches were praised for their work this season in developing a strong team, which played its best ball in the final few games of the season.

Those players who received letters were Colley, Captain Reddish; Morris, and Dunton, Stokes, Goliath and Parks, tackles; Spraggett, Harris, Hale and Sivell, guards; Wheeler and Simons, centers; Kite, Scott, NeSmith, Miller, Aldridge, Vickers, Sparks and Thompson, backs. Manager Red Bowen was also given a letter.

Texas League Magnate
Praises James, Barnes, Cracker Players.

By Jimmy Jones.

Fred N. Ankenman, the brisk, middle-aged president of the Houston baseball club of the Texas league, dropped into Atlanta Saturday to watch his young son play in the football game at Ponce de Leon park and while about it, managed to drop some rather interesting hints of the sport of baseball.

Mr. Ankenman, being primarily a baseball man, not a time dismising the football game which Houston lost and immediately created about him a simmering hot store league.

His first, second and third utterances were about as follows, and in rapid-fire order:

"Atlanta, judging from his knowledge of the material obtained by the club, should be a first divisioner in the Southern league this season, allowing 100 points for the jinx."

JAMES IS GOOD.

"In Byrne James, the agile second baseman bought by the Crackers from the New York Giants, Atlanta will have the second best second baseman in the minor leagues. (He rates Carey Selph, the Houston manager, best.)

"The so-called Shaughnessy system of play-offs is a lot of 'holoney,' no matter how thin you slice it, and will eventually kill baseball and the game."

Mr. Ankenman praised the Atlanta baseball plant, the city of Atlanta and several of the Atlanta players, but all that he could say for the Shaughnessy system was bad.

"Yes, we'll have it again in the Texas league next year because some of the clubs made money from it, but I'll tell you that it's no good for a league as a whole and will kill baseball if it is maintained."

"Take our case at Houston this year. We won the pennant by a margin of seven and a half games. We had beaten San Antonio something like 16 games during the season. Yet we lost three straight to the same club, a fourth place outfit mind you, in the playoff. Greer, our star pitcher, was beaten bad. The result is that Carey Selph, the Houston manager, best."

DISGRACES CONTENDERS.

His main objections to the system, designed primarily for the hockey teams in the east by Frank Shaughnessy, a fanciful fellow who once had ideas for revolutionizing football, is that it is not in keeping with the spirit of baseball and is discrediting a team with a pennant chance.

"It is bound to encourage loafing through the season, in that the fourth place club has just as much chance as the first place club in the playoff," he stated.

Mr. Ankenman thought the Southern league acted wisely in admitting the system, and said that New Orleans' win over San Antonio in the Dixie series saved that traditional classic.

"Imagine how the New Orleans fans and those around the Southern league would have felt had the club lost the fourth-place club in the Texas league," he added.

He also stated that the Galveston club made $13,000 in the play-off and the San Antonio club $11,000, this explaining the vote to retain the Southern system.

The Houston president thinks very highly of James, the second baseman, and Frank Barnes, the pitcher, purchased by the Atlanta club at Galveston. Both players are well known in the Texas league, where they got their starts. Ankenman, himself, signed Harry Altonen of Galveston in 1927 and later sold him, along with Heinie Schuhle, the shortstop, to Detroit for $50,000. Barnes was a tail-end, which also included Wild Bill Hallahan, Ken Penner and Beckman.

LIKES BARNES.

"Barnes is still a good pitcher. He was with Tulsa, a weak club this year, but pitched a great ball against us in all seasons. We had a tough time beating him, and most of the games were extra innings."

Ankenman says Barnes is only 28 years old (the ought to know, having discovered him), and that he is a smart, experienced pitcher with a good curve, slider and screwball. He is a big fellow and can stand lots of work. For Tulsa, a tail-end, he won 11 and lost 13.

"The fans down here should be crazy about Barnie James; he was selected next to the most valuable player in the Texas in 32 and I personally thought him sure to go up at the time."

Ankenman also is familiar with Harry Taylor, the first baseman obtained by the Crackers, and Art Jacobs, the other southpaw pitcher.

"I don't see how you managed to get Jacobs away from Portland. He is a fine pitcher there for three years."

ATLANTA DESERVING.

Ankenman praised the Atlanta baseball officials highly for showing the way to the other minor league magnates in buying players at Galveston

'The Passer' Is Passing Them Up for Boys' High

J. Carlisle Smith Jr., son of the old Cracker baseball star, is shown lugging the football 15 yards for Boys' High after taking a lateral from Carey McQueen in the second period Saturday afternoon against Houston All-Stars. Young Smith has been on the business end of most of Boys' High scoring plays this season, he being one of the most accurate passers ever to attend the school. The Purples' football success this season is due largely to his ability as a passer.

Injuries Strike Columbia Squad

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(AP)—The injury jinx struck at Columbian's football squad, preparing for the Rose Bowl game against Stanford, today and temporarily incapacitated Bill Nevel, varsity fullback, and Al Ciampa, see-ond-string center.

Nevel suffered a deep gash in his forehead when he collided with Joe Stanczyk, an assistant coach, during scrapping. The stitches were re-removed to close the wound, but Nevel will be in shape for the New Year's Day classic.

Clampa banged up his shoulder and neck again and had to be taped up tightly. He probably will be used only in the first half.

Lon Little sent the squad through an intensive two-hour drill, devoting most of the time to an offensive drill for the first and second teams against the dummy Stanford squad. It was the first real drill on offense the Lions have had so far, and Little was encouraged by their performance.

Mercer Will Award Twenty-Four Letters

MACON, Ga., Dec. 16.—(AP)—Coach Jake Russell checked over the list of Mercer students and found them announced that he would recommend that 24 Bears be awarded letters for the 1933 season. This is the largest number of letters ever awarded at Mercer.

The following players were awarded the block "M": Harry Lichten, Detroit; P. Gilbreath, Atlanta; Tom Perkins, centers; Gordon McCullough, Cain; Carl Altonen, of Norwood, Mass.; H. P. Bell, of Carrollton, Paul Ward, of Fitzgerald, and Charles Brown, of Cairo, guards; Lester Olsson, of Akron, Ohio; Red Camp, Thordaline, Texas; Orin Curry, Dunedin, Fla., and Corbett Williamson of Macon, men.

Twenty-Six Bulldogs Get Football Letters

Prospects Bright for 1934 as Twenty Lettermen Will Return.

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 16.—Twenty-six members of the 1933 Georgia football team were awarded letters on the basis of their playing during the season just closed, one of the most successful seasons Georgia ever had. It was the largest number to make letters in recent years.

Coach Harry Mann, the man who elects the letter men, made the list public this morning. Monogrammen included seven sophomores, thirteen juniors and six seniors, which means that Georgia will have twenty lettermen back for the 1934 campaign.

In awarding letters, Coach Mann called attention to the fact that major G's are given for ability, willingness, loyalty, and hard work on the part of the players. A man may play in only one or two major games yet still make his letter.

Coach Mann took occasion to compliment Charlie Patton, the student manager, who also received a lettered Cracker scout, will go along with Mann to meet his chief and get his ideas for rounding up younger players.

Nap Rucker, Brooklyn scout; Hugh Casey, young Cracker pitcher, and Dr. Earl Floyd, of Atlanta, friend of Mr. and Mrs. Robinson, will accompany them.

Matters to be discussed include mailing out of contracts, adjustment of salaries and the club's chances of getting Harry Kelly, star right-hander, loose from the Memphis club.

The Georgia coach, who has helped pick a number of all-star teams, selected Patton, a senior, as his All-American manager.

Men making their letters were:

Three Big-Time Stars Head Wrestling Card

Frank Judson, one of the greatest stylists in the "rasslin" scene, is coming back to Atlanta to show his stylish frame in a match with Injun Sun Jennings at the auditorium Wednesday night.

It is the first of three mat matches and should be the best ones in months. Because Frank Judson is not a beehive in the game, he can really step out and go. Fact is, he has been rather close to the title on numerous occasions.

Time was when he used to coach the Harvard lads in the gentle art of bone-bending. But the game drew him back again. But he can speak with a broad A if need be.

Injun Sun Jennings is a tough boy. Fact is, he is almost a beehive. And he can wrestle. When Injun Sun Jennings comes to town Jimmy Jones, of The Constitution, leaves town. He was almost scalped by Sun Jennings. Seems they were in a bridge game together and Jones trounced Jennings' ace. The hotel detectives responsible just when the Injun had his scalping knife out.

Henry Weber, the match-maker is bringing the big three champions in the person of Henry Price. He is a new-comer to Atlanta but he has been bumping the boys loose at Nashville, Memphis and New Orleans. Not to mention other spots.

He meets Frank Speer, does Henry Piers, and the dope is he will have Frank Speer in Dutch in no time at all. This match will be a one-hour bout with all the main event on half.

A night letter man, Andy Rasker, from Indiana, will meet Babe Caddock in the third bout, which will serve as the first one on the program. Rasker knows more than eight letters. The fact that he won eight letters at Indiana means that he played on the football, baseball, basketball teams, ran on the track team, did a lot of other athletic chores such as swimming, tennis and so forth.

He is rated as one of the better young men who have come along in the past year.

Piers and Rasker are two new faces. Weber can bring in new ones with his new policy of three matches per program with each limited to one fall.

Miller and Anderson Top Tuesday Card

Sammy Miller faces Bob Anderson in the feature battle on the Bellwood Athletic Club's regular Tuesday night program at the Bellwood arena. Sergeant Harry Nixon opposes Young Americus in the other one-hour bout.

Eddie Wagner will tackle Bill Cowley in the preliminary bout and Clegg and his favorite at Bellwood, but Miller, Anderson, Nixon and Wagner will be making their initial appearance.

Eight hundred fans turned out last Tuesday to see Sully Harbin and John Martin battle to a draw, and a larger crowd is expected to be on hand this Tuesday to see the newcomers in action.

The Bellwood arena is located at 758 Bankhead avenue.

PREP COURT.

Purdue University will play all its home basketball games this winter in the spacious Jefferson High school gym at Lafayette, Ind.

ALL-STARS LOSE TO BOYS' HIGH; TROJANS VICTORS

Atkinson's 80-Yard Run Features Hard-Fought Game at Poncey.

By Roy White.

Boys' High won its third successive intersectional football game from the Houston All-Stars Saturday afternoon at Ponce de Leon park in the feature of a charity double-header. The score was Boys' High 10, Houston, 0, and marked the third time that the Texas eleven has been held scoreless.

In the preliminary to the pre-game, the West End Trojans defeated the Grant Park Aces, 13 to 7, to win the city 135-pound sandlot championship. The Trojans had won six games for a perfect season.

BOYS' HIGH PLAYS.

Boys' High played their best game of the season and was superior to both teams used by the All-Stars. The Purples blocked well, particularly in the second quarter when when Atkinson picked up a rolling punt and dashed 80 yards to a touchdown. Atkinson was cool and deliberate and the Purples' defense was alerting for a blocker to clear his path and then he sidestepped and outran the Houston secondary during the final few yards of the run.

Carlisle Smith Jr. continued his good work and tossed a pass to Captain Maffett for a net gain of 47 yards and another to Tom Allen for 30 yards. The latter was a lateral from the Houston goal for a touchdown. Maffett's catch and sprint played an important part in the 85-yard drive for the Purples' second touchdown.

Tommie Reed, the brilliant Houston back, was all that has been said of the Tech team and was a spark of the Tech team and a mauler of the tackles of the Purples. He passed well and his punting was on a par with that of Smith, Boys' High, and Stealey, Houston. Reed pulled one of his most sensational punts late in the second quarter when Brunner received a Boys' High kick-off and passed it back to Reed, who punted while running at full speed.

The return and punt netted more than 70 yards and the ball was grounded on Boys' High 20-yard line.

TWO TOUCHES.

Coach Wylie Summers' San Jacinto eleven, dressed in yellow, played the first quarter to fair advantage and then had a hard way to the half way point when he topped the pins for a 389 score to finish in first place and another of the summer camps at Lake Burton. The camp will start during the second week of November and will be held at the Magnolia fishing camp.

Outstanding on the schedule will be games with Savannah High, October 6, Lanier High, October 25, and Tech High, November 23.

Five of the 10 games are with members of the Georgia Interscholastic Athletic Association.

R. (Shorty) Doyal, coach of the Purples for the past six years, will be retained along with Warner Miller, the backfield coach.

SPRING TRAINING.

To make such a formidable schedule ever attempted by Boys' High. Beginning September 20, a game will be played every week-end except November 10, which is an open date at present. The open date is likely to remain, as it will follow seven games and the last one will need rest before the Central, Tech High and Miami High games.

Record Entry List Forecast for Christmas Bowling Tournament

TENPIN STARS TO OPEN MEET DECEMBER 26TH

Rich Prizes Expected To Draw Large Entry for Turney.

One of the largest entry lists of the season is expected for the annual Capital City Christmas handicap tenpin bowling tourney. A large number of bowlers have already filed their entry. The entry list will remain open for another week before the tourney opens at the Black alleys on December 26.

The opening whistle will sound on Tuesday, December 26, at 8 o'clock and the event will be continued each succeeding night through Saturday, December 30, with the bowling lanes to open at the same time each evening.

The entry fee is $1.50 and includes the cost of the bowling. The event is open to all tenpin bowlers and bowlers having a handicap will have to compete from the scratch mark of 200. League bowlers are given two-thirds the difference between their average and the scratch mark, though a maximum handicap of 25 pins per game has been agreed upon.

Averages as of midnight of Friday, December 8, will be used in computing the handicaps, and the date for closing the entry list is Saturday, December 23.

The winners last year in the first staging of this event were, in order as they finished, Leo Gorajewski, George Foster and Trott. Gorajewski, with a 60-pin handicap, which proves that the handicap is a great balancing wheel.

The prize list this season assures the winner a $25 suit of clothes; runner-up a U. S. rubber raincoat; third place a $10 pair of shoes and fourth a nationally advertised brand of hat.

The entries already received include: F. A. Angelas, H. L. Bell, Bill Elsner, H. G. Hall, J. A. Henderson, K. E. Brundage, W. M. Timmons, John S. Sutton, Spencer O'Neil, John L. Bell, Tommy Thompson, Tony Althusen, D. C. Condon, Harry Caven, Henry Elsner, Bill Adams, Albert E. Turner, J. E. Davy, W. Elsner, K. E. Hildebrand, L. Perryman, H. E. Parker, J. H. Sperry, C. F. Gibbons, Archie Johnson and Tony Gersh.

The Yuletide duckpin tournament continues to be a seasonal attraction with little or no spilters and even more popular this season with the handicap system, assuring all bowlers that they will have just as good a chance at the prizes offered as any one who participates.

There is no entry fee in this event and a capacity entry list is expected, the bowlers pay only the cost of the games bowled.

Tourney dates are December 26, through 30, and separate events will be staged for men and women.

DOWN the ALLEYS

Downhillers in the Motion Picture Duckpin loop are trying to fathom the sudden spurt of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer team, which, while the latter is also played, O. K. Swan, who captains this quintet, should come in for a large part of the glory for he has revamped the lineup and installed no end of pep among his colleagues. Fire Insurance stock went above par last Tuesday when the insurance company won the game from the General Electric team and now the Insurance men are leading the Amateur Bowlers' League. The Gold Diggers, Hobos, Tramps and Gigolos seem to be the names of the four teams in the Southern Railway ladies' league, with the Gold Diggers holding a small edge in the ring. The same is so.

There is much talk among bowlers in a speculative manner, as to who is the outstanding bowler of the city for the season thus far. McKay, Black, Tidwell, Sossong, Kellam, Lawson and Cavan seem to think that there is not a pair of duckpinsters in Atlanta that can bowl as many duckpins over in five games as the team.

Perhaps a single match between Dethleffs, Kirby and Evangeline McLenon will be on the program for Saturday night of this week. It should be good with two young champions of other sports competing as opponents in a comparatively new game to both.

Match games are brewing daily with team doubles and singles being arranged for special tilts. Kellam and Sossong seem to think that there is not a pair of duckpinsters in Atlanta that can bowl as many duckpins over in five games as the team.

Both Harold and Marceline McSpadden, Kansas City professionals, whose 70 on the second round gave him a 145 to tie for eighth position, McSpadden, after going out in 39, came back in 31.

Scores of 135 or better were required to continue in the play tomorrow over the 36-hole route.

Westrope Shut Out But Holds to Lead

HOUSTON, Texas, Dec. 16.—(AP)—For the first time since the Epsom Downs meeting opened on November 10, Jack Westrope, the country's leading jockey, was shut out today.

The total winning mounts for the full field of the 100-workouts, while American rocker, was touched since Powers rode 324 winners in 1932.

During the first 14 racing days of the Epsom Downs meeting, Westrope rode 31 winners and piled up six "triples" four of them on successive racing days.

Interest today centered on the race where Chianti, the winner, turned the juicy price of $311.20 for 32 straight.

M'NASPY DIES.

LAFAYETTE, La., Dec. 16.—(AP)—Clement J. Mc'Naspy, professor of physics and chairman of the faculty athletic committee of Southwestern Louisiana Institute, died here last night from a heart attack. Mr. Mc'Naspy, 51, had been connected with the institute since 1909 and formerly served as coach of football, basketball and track in addition to his duties as instructor. He was active in Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association and Southern Amateur Athletic Union activities.

Trojans Win Sandlot Title

After a Battle

DUTRA LEADER IN GOLF MEET

southern sector. And this year the list contains just three.

The carnage in 1932 included a host of coaches at small colleges. Alfred, Arkansas Tech, Boston University, Butler, College of the Pacific, and a dozen or so more got rid of their coaches for new ones last year.

This fall the list is much smaller. There are a few outstanding changes. Notre Dame, Texas, Kentucky, North Carolina State, North Carolina and Dartmouth are the places where contracts were not renewed.

Coltrin was putting with the famous touch which made him a sensation in 1932. He dropped a 90-foot approach shot on the second hole, a 12-footer on the third and a trio of 8-foot shots thereafter.

Coltrin enjoyed the same steady brand of golf which put him in the lead yesterday and had three birds in a row coming home, but started with a fine set of hard-running backs, each drive was halted by a hard-charging Tiger line that would not bend when its goal was in danger.

Forrest stroked a 70-71 for 141.

Forrest's 70-71 beat the 70-71 of Denver, Nebraska, and Utah open champion, who shot a 70 today for a 142.

Dutra was putting with the famous touch which made him a sensation in 1932. He dropped a 90-foot approach shot on the second hole, a 12-footer on the third and a trio of 8-foot shots thereafter.

There will be additional changes, of course. Yale is thinking about getting rid of Reggie Root. A number of coaches have taken over one of the ministerial privileges and are bending attentive ears to "calls" from other colleges where the salary and material is improved.

Rarely does Notre Dame and Dartmouth change coaches. The Carolinas, where the alumni are more rampant than usual, are subject to change.

It was the prominence of the principals, not the number, which attracted so much attention this year.

CHEERS FOR THE N. C. STATE PLAYERS.

The North Carolina State players did a very commendable thing when they stood up in public and told of the interference by alumni in the coaching program of Clipper Smith, recently informed his contract would not be renewed.

There is nothing at all wrong, per se, in intercollegiate athletics. And I have found that most institutions which do not have them wish they did and get very little satisfaction out of them. There is, also, nothing wrong in an alumnus sending a boy to school to play football. The faculties often speak very harshly of this practice but they merely leave themselves wide open, so to speak, when they do. Because all the evil of athletes being passed because they are athletes and not because they study is simply a matter of faculty integrity and nothing more. The boys and the alumni can't be blamed there.

But there is a great deal wrong with a situation when an alumnus can come pushing his way into a dressing room and give the players an old-fashioned bawling out for the manner in which they played.

And if, as the North Carolina State players charge, that sort of thing happened then it does not matter what coach is hired. He will have no better success.

It should be remembered, in all these cases, that college athletics occupy a higher plane than ever before. They are better regulated than they were 10 years ago. And conditions, with the exception of a few bad spots which seem to get all the attention, are improving each year.

Tech High Eleven Get Gold Awards

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Dec. 16.—(AP)—Harry Gamage, former Kentucky coach, conferred here today with Dr. W. O. Hobbs, chairman of the University of North Carolina athletic council. Dr. Hobbs said Gamage has not applied for a position here, however.

Only those players who participated in the state title game with Lanier High which the Smithies won 7 to 6, will be given the awards, and the names of these players will be announced later.

NEWS of STAGE and SCREEN

EDITED by RALPH T. JONES

Bancroft Returns to Screen In 'Blood Money' at Grand

Often, when a screen star of great magnitude leaves films for a year or two, he returns to find that another has usurped his position. There are few unique figures on the screen. Greta Garbo is one; after a year's absence she is back again, her leadership secure. George Bancroft, similarly, returns to films to demonstrate immediately and conclusively that he has no rivals in that particular realm which he has made his own.

Rugged, virile, even in a rough neck, but understanding, human, and likable, he appears in "Blood Money," at Loew's Grand theater through next Thursday. With him is the magnificent Judith Anderson, one of the stage's most important younger stars, who makes her talkie debut in this production, and Frances Dee.

Bancroft's performance is a solid bond between Miss Anderson and Miss Dee, the two women who bring conflict to his life. Miss Anderson, as Ruby Darling, is Bancroft's partner in a night club and speakeasy. Once, when he was on his uppers, Ruby stabs him to $20 and he has run the stake to half a million. Bancroft is devoted to Ruby and she is faithful to him.

Then he meets Elaine Talbert, a society girl. She is a kleptomaniac, and fascinated by the big shots of the underworld. Bancroft meets her when she is arrested for shoplifting. Intrigued by her, he arranges her release.

The girl is quickly attracted to him. When Ruby learns that Bancroft has fallen for a "classy dame" she calmly steps out of the picture.

Elaine's interest in the rugged Bancroft is brief. When he introduces her to a dashing young crook she is once drawn into the crook's acquaintance. But men still impress by the girl's apparent superiority, trust her and she involves them in a crooked deal which develops great proportions. The climax of the film shows the consequences when crooked partners disagree and one prominent man after another is dragged into the scandal which presently develops.

Bancroft's fine impersonation of Bill Bailey, bomsday and crook, dominates the film, but Miss Anderson's performance is an impressive one and Frances Dee contributes another memorable character to the screen with her work as Elaine.

William Powell, who has thrilled movie audiences in other pictures with his clever characterizations as Philo Vance, debonair gentleman detective, is seen again in the same role in another S. S. Van Dine detective mystery story. This time Powell is called upon to solve "The Kennel Murder Case," the feature picture at the Paramount this week.

A dead man sitting in an armchair in his own bedroom, the windows and doors locked, is revived in his home by a bullet wound in his temple. That was precisely what the authorities discovered. Archer Coe, wealthy bachelor, the morning after his mysterious death. Sergeant Heath from headquarters was positive it was suicide. District Attorney Markham was almost equally sure of it.

But Philo Vance, suspicious murderer and set about to unravel, slowly and patiently, the method of the crime—and that's what makes "The Kennel Murder Case" the most baffling, and yet the most engrossing murder mystery of the year.

It is rare that a motion picture presents pure comedy in all its elements. Yet "Olsen's Big Moment," which is now playing at the Georgia, with El Brendel in the star role, seems to be such a picture, judging by the audience reaction at the theater yesterday. The story concerns itself with a diligent janitor who is catapulted into a romance between an inebriate and a beautiful young girl who is in love with somebody else. He is taken from his simple dusting and sweeping into an atmosphere of fireworks that involves a run-in with numerous individuals, including an irate mother-in-law.

El Brendel here gives a story that sets off in bold relief all of that James' best seller, "Smoky," a new first-run picture will arrive at the Georgia next Wednesday for a three-day engagement. Irene Bentley and Victor Jory have the romantic leads, while Will James is in a prominent role. Thus the author's name among the players stamps the film with a definite note of authority.

"Smoky" is the name of a dog whose vicious hatred of men brands him a killer. During the course of his life he befriends only one man, the man that has tamed and understood him. The friendship of the man and the animal is so great that when "Smoky" is stolen, his friend puts everything aside, including his work for his sweetheart, to go searching.

In the years that follow "Smoky" attains the reputation of the famous "congar" of the rodeos, and then sinks to the depths of a junk man's cart horse, abused and forgotten.

For the first time, "Smoky," which starts at the Georgia next Saturday, the theater will offer Joe E. Brown, the famous comedian in "Son of a 'Sailor,'" said to be the best picture that Brown has made in years. This time Joe joins the navy and is assigned to the aviation department, transferred to a large aircraft carrier and then complications set in which are guaranteed to furnish for hazardous encounters of a lifetime.

NEWS OF STAGE AND SCREEN

Big Stage Show Coming to Fox On January 9

In that field of show business where less than three dollars per capita are extracted from the customers, the Marcus Show, which will be seen at the Fox theater for a special midnight performance only on Tuesday, January 9, is distinctly in a class by itself. No one rises to proclaim its boast of being the largest outfit appearing at less than the three-dollar tariff.

Now that George White's "Scandals" and Earl Carroll's "Vanities" have invaded the lower tariffed theaters, there remains only the new "Follies" under the direction of Billie Burke, widow of Flo Ziegfeld, and the Shuberts, that exceeds the Marcus show in magnitude of indoor amusement enterprises, at any price.

The tremendous increase of seating capacity in theaters and civic or fraternal auditoriums built within the last decade, has enabled showmen like Alvin Karpis to develop spectacular extravaganzas and to charge entrance prices that in former times would have found lodgment in playhouses where the present-day current charges were in vogue.

There are over 70 persons with the Marcus troupe. Among those who will be seen during the forthcoming engagement are: Eddie Miller, Bert Altes, Lillian McCoy, Bert Winsome, Dottie Coudy, Georgene Miller, Elmer Coudy, the Platinum Trio, Les Sechrist, Harvey, Young and Kaye, the Bounding Ali Bahas, 11 California Night Hawks, band and orchestra, and those two sensational dancing stars, Cha Sae and La Fanette. A chorus, styled the 36 Marcus Peaches, completes the roster.

Carroll's Fantasy Visualized

Lewis Carroll's immortal story, "Alice in Wonderland," has at last reached the screen. It will be the Christmas week attraction at the Paramount. Alice, with the White and Red Queens, is seen above.

Editorial in the Jacksonville Journal tells the story of his Christmas undertaking, of his success and of his modesty. It's well worth reading.

Holders of season tickets to the Alakha Celebrity Series will be disappointed at the postponement of the lecture by Dr. Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin. Dr. Frank was to have appeared this afternoon, as part of the series, at the Capitol theater. A sudden call by the governor of Wisconsin for an emergency session of the state legislature has rendered it impossible for him to be here at this time. His lecture is therefore postponed until later in the season—at which time today's ticket will, of course, be good. The next attraction on the series is Shan Kar, the famous Hindu interpreter of the religious dances of India, with his company of dancers and native musicians. This deeply interesting study of an ancient religion will be presented at the Capitol on the afternoon of Sunday, January 14.

Buckhead Has Comedy Hit in 'Her First Mate'

One of the most successful of feature comedies of recent months is to be seen today and tomorrow at the Buckhead theater. It is "Her First Mate," with Slim Summerville and Zasu Pitts. The story is about a wife's efforts to keep her portly husband, whose ambition is to be captain of a deep-water sailing ship.

For Tuesday and Wednesday the Buckhead brings back "College Humor," with Bing Crosby, Mary Carlisle and a whole list of well-known players. This picture is so exciting when shown at the Buckhead some weeks ago that special efforts were made to secure it for a return engagement.

For T. Friday, which is always "Thrill Day" at this popular suburban house, the attraction is "A Shiver, a Shiver," a shivery, clever thriller with Boris Karloff at his best in the role of a mummy of ancient Egypt that is restored to life.

Friday and Saturday brings the week before Christmas to a close with one of the best pictures Tom Mix and his marvelous horse, ever made. It is "Raging Gun," just as thrilling and action-packed as its title indicates.

Carefully selected short subjects, comedies, cartoons, travel features, etc., will be found augmenting each program of the week.

Colbert at West End Today in 'Torch Singer'

Claudette Colbert is superb as "Torch Singer," which comes to the West End theater Sunday and Monday. Also in "Mike," Grace Phipps, Liberty magazine story, the picture presents Miss Colbert in a dual personality role. David Manners and Ricardo Cortez have featured parts.

The problem of reconstructing the earth after its demolition by an earthquake and tidal waves challenges the 300 survivors of the "Deluge," the filmization of the S. Fowler Wright novel, with Sidney Blackmar, Peggy Shannon and Lois Wilson, which is the attraction for Tuesday.

"Ladies Must Love" Plays Tenth Street

Sunday and Monday at the Tenth Street theater brings "Ladies Must Love," a sparkling comedy-romance of four little wise girls who made a big money racket out of love. Neil Hamilton, June Knight, Mary Carlisle and George E. Stone are the principal players.

Tuesday, Spencer Tracy in "Shanghai Madam," a thrilling story of man and woman thrown together in the orient. Eugene Pallette and Herbert Mundin are the stars.

Wednesday and Friday will Rogers and Marian Nixon play in "Doctor Bull," acclaimed as Rogers' best film to date. Saturday brings "I Loved You Wednesday," starring Warner Baxter and Elissa Landi.

Hilan Will Present 'Midnight Club' Today

Clive Brook, George Raft and Alison Skinner are co-featured in "Midnight Club," plotless drama of E. Phillip Oppenheim's melodrama of that title which opens today at the Hilan theater.

The story is breathless, rapid-fire tale of London society, upperworld and underworld, and centers about the career of an American detective to break up a great jewel theft ring which has been preying with impunity on lords and commoners alike.

Monday and Tuesday "Goodbye Again" with Warren Williams and Joan Blondell as the feature. Wednesday "Private Detective 62" will be the attraction for Thursday.

"Sunday Afternoon" Opens DeKalb Week

The DeKalb's feature Monday and Tuesday, "One Sunday Afternoon," is the refreshing romance of a wife who fights the girl in her husband's memory to teach him more about love than he had learned in a lifetime. The cast includes Gary Cooper, Fay Wray, Neil Hamilton, Frances Fuller, Roscoe Karns and Sam Hardy.

Wednesday, James Dunn, Joan Bennett and Herbert Mundin appear in "Arizona to Broadway," a story of a confidence man who lost his confidence and his heart when it came to framing a girl.

"Goodbye Again" is the feature attraction Thursday and Friday, and stars Warren William, Joan Blondell, Ruth Donnelly, Hugh Herbert and Wallace Ford in a comedy riot which was a sensation on Broadway.

Chico Marx appears with an able supporting cast in "Dangerous Crossroads," which promises thrills and plenty of action.

Empire Sunday Bill Is "Trick for Trick"

At 1:45 o'clock this afternoon, the Empire theater, corner of Georgia avenue and Crew street, offers Atlantans another opportunity of seeing "Trick for Trick." Fox Film's latest mystery thriller, featuring Ralph Morgan, Victor J. Young and charming Sally Blane. It tells of two rival magicians attempting to solve a murder mystery by way of a midnight seance.

Monday and Tuesday, Manager Alpha Fowler offers "I Loved You Wednesday" with Warner Baxter, and Miriam Jordan, a delightful tale. A stage show will be an added feature.

Tom Mix, with his wonder horse Tony, provide entertainment on Wednesday with his great western opus, "My Pal the King." This Thursday's screen fare will be headed by "The Goldilocks Shootout," starring William Gargan, Francis Dee and Ralph Bellamy.

Friday, Bill Boyd, Wynne Gibson "Patriot Nite" contest on the stage at 8 o'clock should provide an interesting added attraction. Vigilantes and bandits will be the stars on Saturday with a showing of Tom Keene in "Son of the Border."

OLD MORAL PLAY TO BE PRESENTED BY EVENING SCHOOL

Dramatics class of the University System of Georgia Evening School will present a production of the moral play "Everyman" at the school auditorium at 7:30 o'clock tonight. "Everyman" is a play first performed by monks late in the sixteenth century. It portrays early English customs and beliefs.

The cast will include Mrs. Rosalie Word as "Everyman"; Miss Virginia Martin as "Good-Deeds"; Miss Antia Mulkey as "Knowledge"; Miss Elizabeth Joiner as "Death"; Miss Mildred Chennet as "Fellowship"; Mrs. Anne Norman as "Consent"; Mrs. Hartwell Kennedy as "Comely"; Miss Helen Gilligan as "Confession"; Miss Bernice Moseley as "Discretion"; Victor Wall as "Strength"; Miss Avilla Sheridan as "Beauty"; Miss Ruth Drew, Elizabeth Jenkins and Nell Gilbert as "The Five Wits"; George Vance as "Messenger"; and Raymond Stevens as "Adonai." Electrical effects will be handled by Jerome Wing.

ATLANTA, GA., DEC. 17, 1933.

CONSTITUTION'S CHRISTMAS

CARNIVAL AN ANNUAL EVENT

A new and amazing chapter in the record of civic presentations in Atlanta was written Friday night in the tremendous outpouring of men, women and children to view the Santa Claus parade sponsored by

The Constitution and to participate joyously in the carnival spirit which ruled the entire downtown section.

More than 125,000 men, women

traversed by the parade. Never before has such a crowd gathered, for any purpose, on the streets of the city. Never before has Atlanta been so thoroughly and universally gripped by the spirit of carnival.

Never before has there been staged here a parade with as many unique features, and with as many bands,

the music of which echoed and re-echoed from the buildings along the line of march as the procession wended its way through the brilliant light of 8,000,000-candle-power searchlights.

Never has there been such a parade—but the show was partially "stolen" by the tremendous crowds which, imbued with the carnival spirit, jammed the line of march from the fronts of buildings out into the streets until there was left only a narrow lane for the parade to pass.

The show windows of business houses had been cleared of their displays so that room could be made for spectators; thousands crowded every window even to the top floors of tall office buildings, and ledges and roofs held other thousands.

Young and old, boys and girls—and grown-ups who were again for the moment boys and girls—white and black, made up an outpouring of people such as Atlanta has never before known.

All came to see Santa Claus, the patron saint of childhood, and to find the true spirit of the season in a period of carnival. Santa was there, and so were Little Red Riding Hood, Little Boy Blue, Little

of the picturesque accompaniments of childhood's fancies.

It is no wonder that such an event, staged with a background of flying confetti which under the brilliant light of the army searchlights seemed like continuous flurries of snow, brought out a carnival spirit never before known in Atlanta.

The lesson of this amazing event, and the reaction of the people of the city to it, is summed up in

Mayor Key's striking statement, published elsewhere in this issue, in which he recommends that the affair be made an annual event.

This The Constitution will do.

It could do no less in face of the greeting extended by the people of the city to an occasion that they made one of the most outstanding events in the history of Atlanta.

The remarkable outpouring of from 125,000 to 150,000 people is all the more remarkable in that it was practically entirely an Atlanta gathering.

Staged as an annual event, it will inevitably become greater as each year goes by and will attract many thousands of people to the city from all over Georgia and adjoining states.

This annual event, dedicated to the bringing of happiness to the homes of the poor and to intensify the Christmas spirit of the community, is destined to become to this city what Mardi Gras is to New Orleans.

The Constitution pledges its every effort toward making each year's presentation bigger and better—and the people of Atlanta evidenced in mass that they will welcome in future like opportunities to give the spirit of the season free reign.

For this magnificent co-operation extended in the staging of this wonderful event, The Constitution extends its appreciation and thanks.

To the people of the city who, at our invitation, contributed to the glory of the occasion, we express our appreciation in the pledge that each succeeding Christmas carnival of the future will be bigger and better than that before.

UNFAIR DISCRIMINATION.

The unfair price discrimination under which the hog raisers of Georgia are laboring is outlined in

vis, of Camilla, one of the ablest

Representative Davis shows that Georgia pork raisers now receive from 70 cents to $1 less per hundred pounds from the Georgia agencies of the big packing plants than the same concerns pay for western hogs—and that the consumers in this state have to pay nearly a cent

a pound more for the Georgia meat than they do for the western

Thus the Georgia hog raiser is unfairly discriminated against by being forced to accept a lower price than is given to raisers in other sections and at the same time the sale of his product is handicapped by having a higher price put on it than is placed on the same quality of pork from elsewhere.

Under such a condition, and with hogs one of the few farm products that are selling for less now than they did a year ago, it is not surprising that the hog raisers of Georgia are discouraged.

It is an unsound situation from which, in the long run, the packing plants will suffer as well as the producers, because it will mean, if not rectified, a death blow to a rapidly growing Georgia industry, in which the Chicago packers are largely interested.

Georgia is capable of raising not only all the pork needed to supply her own markets but those of surrounding states, and if the development of the hog industry in Georgia is relieved of such unfair discrimination as now exists it will, at least, can easily be supplied by state-grown hogs.

The packers stand to gain by this increase in hog production in Georgia because now,

Cotton Acreage Reduction Given Enthusiastic Support At Farmer-Banker Meetings

More Than 2,500 Farmers Attend Gatherings Sponsored by Bankers' Association.

By HAYNES MCPADDEN JR.

Hearty co-operation in the control of cotton acreage for 1934 was manifested at a series of five banker-farmer meetings held December 11-15 at Thomasville, Baxley, Americus, Fort Valley and Atlanta. These gatherings, sponsored by the extension division of the State College of Agriculture and the agricultural committee of the Georgia Bankers' Association, were attended by more than 2,500 farmers, bankers, agricultural workers and others.

Georgia's part in the control program, as defined and used, 1933 and 1935 cotton acreage reduction programs was explained by Harry L. Brown, acting director of extension of the state college. Before going into the details of the contract, Director Brown stated that the administration's policy in this matter is wholly co-operative, and that the cotton farmers would enter into the agreement in a spirit of patriotic co-operation rather than for selfish benefit.

The economic history underlying the necessity for curtailing cotton production was described by W. A. Minor Jr., extension economist of the agricultural college, who also pointed out the dire need for a cotton control surplus. He showed that the 1933 program of plowing up approximately 30,000,000 bales of cotton had already resulted in 9 or 10 cent cotton instead of 5 or 6 cent, or about $64,000,000—the farmer will derive from signing the 1934.

How this plowed up acreage should be utilized was discussed by extension economist, E. D. Alexander, who stated that the land should be used for pasture, for soil improvement, credit, timber, orchards and for other planting which will open up new markets. Lurline Collier, state demonstration agent, emphasized the need for home gardens, poultry and live stock, and further showed the important part farm women can play in the reduction program.

Contracts were agreed to be signed by the farmers in the acreage control program have arrived at the offices of the county farm agents. This contract was explained in detail by Director Harry Brown.

Under the contract, the farmer will agree to reduce from 35 to 45 cent of his cotton land to the producer and rent the land to the government at prices based on the 1925-32 acreage yield of cotton. Work of signing up the farmers will be carried out by community control committees, county control committees and by the county farm agents.

Control of Liquor Traffic Presents Federal Government With Problem

Editor's Note: This article is another of a series prepared by the Atlanta Christian Council exclusive for The Constitution.

Control of the liquor traffic seems not so simple a matter as was indicated in assurances given prior to the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

The old, old problem of shaping federal policies and rights and the rights and policies of the several states into a working plan is with us.

Some idea of the complex character of the task may be drawn from the content of editorials upon the subject.

The Christian Century, in a recent issue, says:

"Having been instrumental in doing away with the eighteenth amendment, the president gives another evidence of the realistic quality of his mind by insisting that the wholesale end of the revived liquor business—distillers, brewers, and importers—shall be brought under the strict dress of a federal code control." Roosevelt had much to say, a few months ago, about the rights of the states in handling the liquor traffic. But now that December 5 is here, and many of the states give no evidence of desire to bring the business under anything more than a transitory state control, the president recognized his social and political responsibility, and will attempt to discharge it by holding the source of liquor supply in the hands of federal authorities.

The codes, which have been written by the committee of the National Prohibition Commission, are to be given effect by the president's proposal of the proposed legislation. These may have to be an hour. War pensions are supposed to be given only to wounded soldiers. These millions were never wounded. America has paid them immense sums for having had this safe experience. But I hear that General Butler insists that these untrustworthy camps must be closed. One might ask, what right had he to do this? He puts them on exactly the same basis as are those brave soldiers who fought amid terrible hardship and were wounded and many incapacitated for life.

What do these wounded soldiers say to this? And does General Butler make this with demand of a country rolling in money, peaceful and happy?

No. He asks it of a country struggling with the debts of the last war, business of all kinds impoverished and bewildered, schools and churches harassed for funds, millions of people anxious for any honest work, dependent on the government. President Roosevelt and his wife strain every nerve to solve these terrific problems. A true patriot would stand firmly against any payment to untrustworthy camps. Would urge even wounded soldiers to patience, until a described country can be built for them. But General Butler says to all, for these true heroes that he does not ask that only the deserving be taken care of, as soon and peacefully as possible, but he urges the entire six or seven million, campers and all, to go to war "right now."

General Butler accuses capitalists of being the chief to swell their pocketbooks. That is exactly what he is urging soldiers and untrustworthy camps to do, make bloody war to fill their pocketbooks. America kept millions of these men safely in camps. But Butler urges them to go to war, where hundreds of thousands of them would be killed. It is plain, and this is a general and unjust demand for pensions for untrustworthy camps.

With proper support, Mayor Key will eventually devise some plan to pay the city employees promptly as their salaries become due.

Over Seas

By CHARLES E. HARNER,
Associated Press Foreign Staff.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(P)—The government of Spain proved itself secure in the week just past and, simultaneously, opponents of the government in Austria started a campaign for its defeat.

Another government, that of France, in the persons of Premier Camille Chautemps and his cabinet ministers, weathered a purely political storm unexpectedly.

More than 100 persons were killed before Senor Don Diego Martínez Barrios, premier of Spain, proved to the satisfaction of a widespread group of anarchists and syndicalists that the duly-constituted authorities were retaining their authority.

Hundreds of rioters, police, soldiers and innocent bystanders were wounded in the five-day-long rebellion which swept the country but hit the northeastern portion harder. When the fighting ended the government appeared to be more firmly in the saddle than before.

The rebellion was begun as the result of the recent parliamentary elections which showed the country to be overwhelmingly aligned with the conservative political faction. Ultra-radical groups were eliminated to a large degree from the forthcoming parliament.

Austrian socialists appeared as the leaders of a move against Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, of Austria, and his supporters, the fascists heimwehr—the uniformed party members which resemble the black shirts of Italy and the Nazis of Germany. The heimwehr is only one of the factions which backs the indomitable little Austrian leader but it is one which is most annoying to the socialists who have for years been the party in power in the government of Vienna, the nation's capital.

Socialists already have made violent attacks against the Dollfuss government in speeches and in Vienna newspapers.

A cabinet crisis in France was averted when deputies failed to follow their program of the last 12 months—that of throwing out every government which suggested the budget should be balanced by cutting the pay of government employees and approved Chautemps' similar bill.

While all this was going on, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and his equally air-minded wife, the former Anne Morrow, flew through the last stages of an unparalleled aerial tour.

After crossing the north Atlantic by short hops during the summer, then cruising leisurely across most of western Europe with a side trip as far out into the Atlantic as the Azores, they roared down into Africa and struck out straight across the Atlantic, landed in Brazil, flew the jungles of the Amazon, British Guiana and Venezuela and headed for home across the Caribbean sea. Their feat was a part of the Pan-American Airways exploration of routes for international mail-and-passenger flying.

Paraguay, after half a century of intermittent hostilities with Bolivia over the Chaco Boreal, smashed with a terrific offensive against her sister republic. The government at Asuncion reported the capture of the powerful Bolivian position, Fort Sasebre, and the annihilation of 15,000 Bolivian soldiers.

The seventh Pan-American conference in session at Montevideo renewed neutral efforts to bring the war to an end. Previously all such efforts had failed.

At the same time, the conference took steps to prepare an inter-American banking structure which would assist all republics in the new world.

The United States' recognition of Russia moved into its final diplomatic phases when William C. Bullitt, the new American ambassador to the soviet, arrived in Moscow and presented his credentials to President Kalinin.

Both the envoy and the executive exchanged speeches of pleasure at the consummation of amicable negotiations. Bullitt was preceded to Moscow by Maxine Litvinoff, foreign commissioner, who was himself returning from the United States and his successful talks with President Roosevelt.

Great storms swept the north Atlantic and the English channel with the loss of several ships and 30 seamen. Another steamer went down in the Black sea. Another went down off the coast of California.

Insull Is Ordered To Bed at Athens

ATHENS, Dec. 16.—(P)—Samuel Insull, who was notified by the Greek government yesterday that he must leave Greece by January 31, today was ordered to bed, suffering from diabetes and heart trouble.

His physician said that the news of the Greek government's decision had been the greatest shock to the Chicago utility man and that he must "rest and take this rest" until his health improves.

The physician added that Insull's condition would be discussed with his lawyer, Denis Lazarinos.

Six Fishermen Drown During Italian Storm

ROME, Dec. 16.—(P)—Six fishermen drowned on Italian coasts yesterday, bringing the known total of deaths during the last few days of storms to 34, with 20 still missing.

Milan experienced one of the heaviest snowfalls in years.

"Temps" Says Germany Now Possesses "Most Powerful War Equipment Machine on Earth"

PARIS, Dec. 16.—(UP)—"Germany today possesses the most powerful war equipment machine on the earth."

This statement, printed in the semi-official Temps, did not surprise Frenchmen.

The Temps also declared that Germany could launch over twice as many trained and armed men as France in battle.

Temps served to confirm the belief behind a screen of commercial enterprise, it was being held, among the fastest airplane studios, artillery and deadliest gas.

Best Aviation Features.

"Like it or not," one of the leading aviation columns here said, "the Germans in 1933, just as in 1932 and in 1918, are ahead in the science of aerodynamics. They have borrowed the best features of all nations."

But figures are more convincing than editorials. Temps offers as proof, it declares, "unjustified purchase of materials for an offensive war has been speeded up in the past few months." These are:

One—The significant rise in stocks on the Berlin exchange of concerns equipped to produce war materials.

Two—The rapid increase in imports of raw materials subject to use for manufacturing war materials as betrayed by German foreign trade statistics.

Three—Sudden expansion of personnel in plants equipped of produce war materials.

20 Aircraft Factories.

Germany actually possesses 20 aircraft factories against eight in Great Britain, it is pointed out, which affirms that within six months the industry could produce more airplanes than it did in 1918—namely, more than 2,500 monthly.

As regards aircraft, the Temps says:

"Lufthansa has just ordered from Junkers 50 three-motor planes of a type easily convertible into long-range bombers.

"Heinkel has been asked to turn out 100 twin-engine armed combat planes to fly faster than 300 kilometers an hour, carrying two observers and four, untrained. Equally generous donations were announced from Wissnup Nunnally, of the Numally Candy Company, and Brooks Morgan, of the Gramling Block Candy Company, contribution having been received from Wissnup Nunnally, John W. Grant, M. M. Emmert, Coca-Cola Bottling Co., Clarence Haverty, John A. Sibley, Stratton Hard, J. M. Van Harsling, Dr. Frank K. Boland, James L. Dickey, Robert Ramspeck, Julian Boehm, Walter A. Sims and Gramling & Collinsworth.

"A candlelight service has been arranged to feature Christmas carols at 4 o'clock this afternoon at St. Mark Methodist church auditorium. The songs will be sung by the Sunday school and a varied program will be given. The public is invited.

33 Grain Collections Completed by Soviet MOSCOW, Dec. 16.—(P)—The Soviet government was informed yesterday that collection of the 1933 grain crop from the peasantry had been completed.

About 100,000,000 to 25,000,000 metric tons were obtained, foreign observers understanding by forced purchase at fixed prices set by the administration. (The metric ton is 2,205 pounds.)

The grain, amounting to about 25 percent of the total production, will be devoted to feeding the urban population and the army, export and reserve.

A new system adopted this year involved fixing the quotas in advance of planting the grain.

Another innovation was to allow the peasants to sell their surplus production in private markets, as contrasted with the former procedure of taking a fixed proportion of what ever was produced.

Japan to Have Tree.

The blind children of the Calhoun Street school will have their Christmas tree at 12:30 o'clock Tuesday at the Henry Grady hotel. At that time the Atlanta Lion's Club, which sponsors the class during the year, furnishing the children clothing, transportation, manual training material and books, will present the tree.

Another innovation was to allow the peasants to sell their surplus production in private markets, as contrasted with the former procedure of taking a fixed proportion of what ever was produced.

New Spanish Cabinet Is Formed by Lerroux

MADRID, Dec. 16.—(UP)—Alejandro Lerroux, leading member of the radical party and former premier, formed a new cabinet tonight. Its members follow:

Prominent: Lerroux, foreign affairs, Antonio Lasa; government, Manuel Rico Ayello; war, Diego Martinez Barrios (retiring premier); navy, Juan Jose Roa; justice, Ramon Alvarez Valdes; public works, Rafael Guerra Diaz; education, Jose Pareja Yebenes; Cirilo Del Rio; communications, Julian Boehm; industry, Ricardo Samper.

League Group Fixes 1934 Narcotic Quota

GENEVA, Dec. 16.—(UP)—The legitimate narcotic requirements of 1934 will be 100 million grams of morphine and seven tons of cocaine and heroin, the supervisory board of the League of Nations announced today. The board is functioning under the 1931 convention to limit world production of narcotics to strictly scientific needs.

Those said they had heard the proposed tax would be so high that it actually would force them to reduce the imports even though the quota was increased.

French official circles refused to discuss the subject on the ground that negotiations still were in progress.

They insisted that the Franco-American agreement was based on reciprocity and that therefore the American importers' fears were baseless.

Yuletide Meeting of Kings Slated To Aid Balkan Amity

BELGRADNE, Dec. 16.—(P)—The Christmas season of peace and good will will be emphasized in the Balkans this year if "the conference of the three Balkan states as scheduled here in Yugoslavia's capital."

King Boris and Queen Joanna, of Bulgaria, are expected to entrain for Belgrade some time between December 20 and 26. As they are leaving Sofia, King Carol, of Rumania, will start for Belgrade from Bucharest.

Peace Advocates Helpful.

When the three kings go for peace, King Boris and Carol each have been appropriately welcomed by King Alexander and his government, they will have their respective foreign ministers by their sides.

Advocates of a Balkan accord have high hopes that definite agreements furthering peace will eventuate.

After the Belgrade conference, some time before January 15, Boris and his queen will go to Bucharest to pay Carol's recent brief visit on Bulgarian soil. Carol, having stopped ashore with Boris when they were on their Danube cruise late in October.

Ministers On Swift Trips.

Optimists are sometimes hard to find among students of the old Balkan quarrels, but even the most skeptical observers admit that these frequent of the recent journeys of statesmen.

New officers of the Atlanta Automobile Association who were elected at the Atlanta Athletic Club last Tuesday night: Bottom row—Walter Y. Anthony, director; W. M. Boomershine, president; Carlyle Fraser, second vice president. Standing: B. V. Stodghill and J. R. Alexander, directors; E. S. Armistead, secretary-treasurer, and Hal Smith and Henry Bolling, directors.

WINE BARGAINING MAY COLLAPSE

France Reported Ready To Treble Duties on Varnished U. S. Products.

By ELTON C. FAY.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—(P)—The first tangible result of trade barrier between the United States and liquor exporting nations—a tentative reciprocal agreement on increased French wine importations—threatened tonight to vanish in a controversy over tariff rates.

This situation was precipitated by word that the French minister of agriculture had proposed to increase the import duty on American lard and a substantial tariff on apples and pears, the three American products figuring in the negotiations between France and this country.

The announcement that "a substantial increase" above the four-month import quota on French wine had been agreed upon was less than 24 hours old when these new developments came to threaten the situation.

Paris Report Sought.

The state department immediately cabled the embassy at Paris for all information on the proposed boost of duty against the American products. Acting Secretary of State Philip said that no final settlement should be made until the tariff question was cleared away.

With this lassking, it was pointed out that it would be simple for the United States to withdraw from the negotiations at this stage should the threat materialize of high French tariff against the American products.

The French embassy here did not evidence any alarm over the situation.

Clear Sailing With Erin.

While the trade negotiations with France appeared to be heading into trouble, those with Ireland headed toward clearer sailing. The Irish minister, Michael MacWhite, was authorized for a statement that his country had received an increased quota, though the figures were not made public by the minister.

In the case of Ireland, the market for American products was understood to be more directly linked with the liquor and beer export industry of that country. California barley was described as being particularly suited to the manufacture of Irish stout, while grains also go into the manufacture of Irish whiskies.

Norway, it was revealed, also was considering joining the larger liquor exporting countries in asking for import quotas. The Norwegian minister said today the first cargo of akevitt, a brandy, arrived at the port of New York, the initial shipment under the four-month quota.

"SATISFACTORY" PROGRESS IS REPORTED FROM PARIS.

PARIS, Dec. 16.—(P)—The ministry of foreign affairs announced today that quota negotiations with the United States were proceeding "satisfactorily."

The basis for the negotiations was described as a bargaining between the two countries in asking for import quotas. The Norwegian minister said today the first cargo of akevitt, a brandy, arrived at the port of New York, the initial shipment under the four-month quota.

English and French Influence Gives Cottage Home Effect

For all its complication of architectural styles, this cottage is really simple and homelike in effect.

Although this cottage is a hybrid, combining Norman, Breton and English influences, the effect is one of the utmost comfort and simplicity.

The low eaves and the high gables are part of the charm; perhaps the most necessary feature is neither of these, however, but the stone wall used to enclose the garden. Such a wall ties a small house to the ground most effectively.

The walls of the house are of stone, preferably stone of odd shapes, backed with either concrete or hollow tile.

The chimney may be either stone or brick, but should be surrounded by three bright orange chimney pots.

The house, built of stone as suggested, probably would cost about $8,000.

Charter and Dividend Announced by B. & L.

Coincident with the declaration by its directors of a 10 per cent dividend and 4 1/2 per cent effective January 1, the shareholders of the Standard Building & Loan Association accepted a charter to operate as a Federal Savings & Loan Association.

The conversion of the association to operate under a federal charter and federal supervision as an integral part in the Federal Home Loan Bank System was accomplished with the greatest difficulty, according to J. L. R. Boyd, president.

The directors of the new Atlanta association, elected at the stockholders' meeting, are Joseph Davidson, of the Davidson-Kennedy Company; W. L. Jones, architect and engineer; W. C. Wroe, of the American Mutual Life Insurance Company; William A. Hansell, assistant chief of construction; C. P. Gore, director manager of the Fricke Ice Machinery Company, and Granger Shand, attorney, of the firm of Standard Savings & Loan Association being as follows:

Lee P. Daly, president; W. D. Beatie, vice president; J. Sid Tiller, second vice president; George F. Hanley, treasurer; J. L. R. Boyd, secretary and attorney.

Savings, Loan Body Is Granted Charter

An announcement has just been made from Washington that an act of Congress has granted to the citizens of Atlanta the right to establish one of the first federal savings and loan charters to be granted in Atlanta under the name of Fulton County Federal Savings & Loan Association.

Under one of the new deal acts the congress authorized the federal home loan bank board to charter federal savings and loan associations in communities where the federal home loan bank board believed that home financing was desirable.

The directors of the new Atlanta association, elected at the stockholders' meeting, are Joseph Davidson, of the Davidson-Kennedy Company; W. L. Jones, architect and engineer; W. C. Wroe, of the American Mutual Life Insurance Company; William A. Hansell, assistant chief of construction; C. P. CLINTON, TENN., VOTES FOR POWER FROM TVA

CLINTON, Tenn., Dec. 16. (AP)—By nearly an eight-to-one vote, Clinton was on record today as favoring the power project of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

The town, which is about seven miles from the new Norris dam on Clinch river, voted on four questions yesterday, the election being called by the board of aldermen to get the sentiment of the people.

Citizens voted 185 to 25, for installing an electric power and light distribution system served by the TVA.

The building originally had $125,000 in bonds against it, but this amount had been reduced to $54,600.

They voted 175 to 35, on the question of issuing $40,000 to $50,000 in bonds for installing a distribution system, and 176 to 23 on agreeing to take power and light from a municipal system if installed.

On the question of fifty voters said they owned real estate in Clinton and 46 said they did not.

162 Atlantans Respond to Plea To Light Living Trees in City

By BARBARA BAKER.
As Christmas time draws nearer and Kris Kringle himself is encamped in the city, the spirit of the great day, everyone is occupied with last-minute preparations to make this the best Christmas since the depression. The Camp Fire tradition of lighting the living trees throughout the city and its environs, this very season, will add to the beauty of the city's Christmas decorations and adds greatly to the Yuletide celebration.

Thus far 162 persons have announced their intention of lighting living trees this year. The city promises to be aglow with lighted evergreens as a visual greeting to Santa Claus and his rounds of the homes Christmas Eve.

This year the Camp Fire Girls have organized for their singing of Christmas carols, which they do annually on Christmas Eve. They will sing on next Sunday afternoon from 4 to 7 o'clock. Their merry voices will make the evenings wherever there are lighted trees and a lighted candle in the window, signifying the owner's desire of hearing the carols and sing.

The groups will be organized according to their sections of town, including Atlanta, Decatur, College Park and East Point. The two last-named groups, in spite of their recent formation, have worked diligently on getting the living trees in their communities lighted and have succeeded in getting subscribers who have not responded to the movement before.

MORRIS PLAN CO. GETS STATE CHARTER

Announcement that the Morris Plan Company of Georgia has been granted charter as a state savings bank and will change its name to the Morris Plan Bank of Georgia was made Saturday, Dec. 10, by George Winship, president.

Under its new state charter, the Morris Plan Bank will be under the direct supervision of the Georgia state banking department and subject to all the rules and regulations governing state savings banks.

The institution was founded in 1911 by W. Woods White, a prominent Atlantaan greatly interested in civic affairs, as the Atlanta Loan and Savings Company. It was organized largely to combat the "loan sharks" of that period, who were not then subject to legal regulation. It made it possible for salaried people and wage earners who had no banking connections to borrow money needed for emergencies, at a low rate of interest, and repay the loans by weekly installments. Its business grew rapidly, and in 1923 the institution moved into its own building at 66 Pryor street, N. E., which it now occupies.

The Atlanta company was the second in the United States to adopt the now famous system of loans and savings called the "Morris Plan," though it did not become a part of the national Morris Plan organization until some years later.

In the 22 years since its organization the Morris Plan Company of Georgia has loaned many millions of dollars, in sums ranging from $50 to $5,000, and has built up its savings department to total deposits of $350,000. Its losses during that period have been infinitesimal, and it passed through the "banking holiday" of last March without invoking the "30-day notice" clause covering withdrawals from savings accounts.

Its present officers are George Winship, president; C. T. Greer, executive vice president and treasurer; John A. Whitner and J. T. Rose, vice presidents; Miss Lucyle McGinnis, secretary and assistant treasurer, and W. M. Hill Jr., assistant secretary.

The Morris Plan Bank is now in its 22nd year of existence.

RAMSPECK TO SPEAK TO "MEN OF JUSTICE"

Congressman Robert Ramspeck will be the speaker at the meeting of the Men of Justice in their assembly rooms, 1214 Mortgage Guarantee building, at 7:45 o'clock Tuesday night.

The organization is growing rapidly and is enrolling many of the foremost business and professional men of the city in its membership. All members are urged to be present to hear the congressman and to bring their friends with them.

MOUNT HERMON LODGE NAMES NEW OFFICERS

E. S. Radway was named high priest; M. M. Hermon, chapter master; 110, Royal Arch Masons, at its annual convention in the Masonic temple at Buckhead. The retiring high priest, M. F. Tyree, was presented with a watch, suitably engraved in appreciation of his work.

Other officers are Frank Fraser, king; G. W. Powell, scribe; W. L. Wilson, treasurer; Ralph G. Sims, secretary; Sam Murell, captain of host; Kenneth Murell, principal sojourner; J. E. McLenkin, royal arch captain; J. E. Echols, master third veil; J. B. Scarboro, master second veil; R. E. King, master first veil; T. T. Thompson, sentinel and Rev. J. D. Swaggerty, chaplain.

Rich Marionettes Continue

Beginning Monday, the Junior League Marionettes which have delighted thousands this past week in Rich's Broad street window, will move to Rich's tea room on the sixth floor where they will give two daily performances throughout the week at 10 a. m. and 3:30 p. m.

Little Red Riding Hood and the bad, bad wolf will be the subject of the morning shows at 10 o'clock, and Hansel and Gretel will charm both young and adult minds in the afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

RETAIL JEWELERS ARE GIVEN THEIR CODE

Copies of the code of fair business practices governing the retail jewelry trade, which was recently signed by General Johnson and President Roosevelt, and which became effective December 11, have been distributed by the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association to the members of the Atlanta Jewelers' Guild, which is affiliated with the former organization.

For the protection of the public, this code provides, among other things, that advertising and selling methods must not be used which tend to deceive or mislead the customer; that jewelry auction sales shall not be conducted except for the purpose of legitimate liquidation of stock.

In either of such cases an application must be made to and approved by the local retail jewelry trade committee to be set up in Atlanta under instructions from Washington. An accurate inventory of jewelry to be auctioned must be filed with the local committee at least 15 days in advance.

Under the code, all advertisements must be true to the letter, and any jeweler who sells rebuilt watches must clearly designate them as such.

The code also contains numerous other provisions designed for the benefit of the public. Upon receipt of applications from Washington, a meeting of all jewelers in Atlanta will be called for the purpose of selecting a committee to assist in administering the code.

The formal opening of two exhibits at the High Museum of Art at 3:30 this afternoon will be marked by talks by J. J. Haverty, who has five paintings from his private collection in the current Christmas show. Dr. W. A. Shelton and Walter McElreath, Lewis P. Skidmore, director of the museum, will give a gallery tour explaining both collections. Grace Methodist Church of Atlanta will attend in a body.

Especially appropriate to the season are the group of religious pictures in the Christmas exhibit. The most notable of the Haverty collection is a large canvas of the Nativity by the Dutch painter, Bloemaert. The picture was painted in 1564 and according to Mr. Haverty, who acquired it and had it restored 15 or 20 years ago, it is a copy of a picture of Napoleon's Uncle in Rome. Bloemaert was a noted artist of his time and a similar picture by him now hangs in one of the small galleries of the Louvre. This is the first time the picture has been shown in Atlanta.

Also in the group are three pictures by Hener O. Tanner, noted negro artist, who received his early training in Atlanta and now lives in France. All three are of religious themes executed in tempera.

Among other pictures taken from the regular collection, the museum has the recently acquired canvas of Duvivier, called "Portrait of a Young Man." "Old Lady Reading in Rembrandt, a portrait by Thomas Sully, "Winter Landscape," by Andre Segonzac, George Elmer Browne's "Piano on the Moon." Offerings to Juno Lucina, the rarest and most valuable of the museum's paintings, located in a private residence.

Art From J. J. Haverty Collection To Go on Display at High Museum

The second exhibition is made up of hooked rugs loaned by the foremost American collector of this material, Ralph W. Burnham, of Massachusetts. The rugs are interesting as examples of original American art, and some of the oldest known material of Revolutionary times, such as saddle uniforms, Lindsey, Woolson, Quilts, etc. Two of the rugs carry Chinese design motifs brought to New England by the East Indian traders in 1815. Both exhibits will remain open until January 2, 1934.

Miss Mary Orme To Become Bride Of Mr. Miller

Among the beautiful brides of the winter season will be strikingly blonde Miss Mary Phillips Orme, whose engagement is announced today by her mother, Mrs. Frank Orme, to Oscar Francis Miller, the wedding to take place at a quiet ceremony in January.

Noted for her beauty, the bride-elect is the second daughter of Mrs. Orme and the late Frank Orme, her sisters being Mrs. Clinton Duncan McCord and Miss Mark Orme. Miss Orme was a member of the 1930-31 Debutante Club and is numbered among popular belles of the younger set. She is a graduate of North Avenue Presbyterian school and a member of the Pi Pi Club.

Mr. Miller is a son of Mrs. Oscar Francis Miller, of Columbus, Ga., and the late Mr. Miller, of Milwaukee, Wis. He is the brother of Miss Suzanne Miller. The future bridegroom attended St. John's Military Academy, at Darien, Wis., and is a graduate of the University of Georgia in the class of 1925.

Mr. Miller is a member of the S. A. E. fraternity, the Phi Delta Phi legal fraternity, the Piedmont Driving Club, and the Nine O'Clocks. He is connected in business with the legal department of the Coca-Cola Company. Following their marriage the couple will reside in Atlanta.

Drag Hunt Given At the Garrison This Morning

Sport loving contingents of both military and civilian social circles will assemble this morning to attend the drag hunt to be held at the garrison. The Fort Benning pack will be brought to the post for the drag and the officials of the hunt include Captain Negrott as master of fox hounds, Major Thomas and Captain Henry L. Matchett, and the huntsman is Sergeant Tweed. The officials will wear the traditional red coats.

Riders will assemble at the post at 8:30 o'clock and mounts will be secured on the parade ground in front of the commanding general's quarters. The drag will get under way at 9 o'clock and the trails will lead through the winter woods encircling the reservation. Lieutenant Ralph Finch will conduct the gentry to vantage points where they will

Bride and Visitors To Share Honors At Tea Dec. 19

Of major importance on the calendar for this week is the tea at which Mrs. R. Gaillard Dunwoody will entertain at her home on Piedmont road on Tuesday, from 4 to 6 o'clock, in compliment to her daughters, Mrs. Harry Dunwoody, whose marriage took place this fall, and Mrs. William A. McKinley, of Detroit, Mich., who arrives today to spend the holidays with her parents.

The hostess and honor guests will be assisted in receiving by Mrs. J. R. Bullock, of Athens, mother of Mrs. Harry Dunwoody, who was formerly Miss McNita Bullock. Assisting in entertaining will be a group of close friends of the hostess, including Mesdames Samuel Barnett, Nathan Atkinson Brown, Edward Earle Smith, R. N. R. Bardwell, Bruce Hughes, Hugh Dobbs, Nesbit Marve, Frank Myers, Frank Hooper Jr., and Misses Mary Barnett, Cor. Seals, Elizabeth Smith and Mrs. L. Irwin. Mrs. Spencer Atkinson and Mrs. Willie Martin will pour tea.

Atlanta Girl Leads Hollins Junior Prom.

Highlighting the fall season at Hollins College, Va., was the recent junior prom, which was led by Miss Emily Plummer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Plummer, of Atlanta, and president of the junior class. Miss Plummer's escort was also an Atlanta, Julian Carr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Howell, and a student at Virginia Military Institute. Over 300 guests, including men from the University of Virginia, Yale, Princeton, and Duke Universities, the United States Military Academy, and several other eastern colleges, attended the dance which was held in Taylor gymnasium. The dance was "girl break."

Members of the class who acted as hostesses were assisted by members of the faculty. The receiving line, which formed in the green drawing room, included President Bessie Carter Randolph, Miss Matty L. Cooke, president emerita, Miss Mary Williamson, dean of students; Miss Susie Blair, faculty sponsor of the class; Miss Plummer, class president, and Miss Anne Bates, of Maplewood, N. J., class vice president. Miss Plummer, who is decidedly brunet, was a striking figure in her lovely gown of shell pink crepe trimmed with bands of Kolinsky fur and worn with a shoulder spray of gardenias.

The gymnasium was transformed into a beautiful outdoor winter scene, with glistening silvered trees decked with stars, and sprinkled with gleaming silvered snow. Red decorations were featured in the smaller rooms where refreshments were served. A

Mrs. John H. Morrison, Jr.

MISS ORME'S engagement is announced today to Oscar Francis Miller, the marriage to be solemnized in January. Mrs. Morrison is the former Miss Marchesa Worcester, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Worcester Jr. Miss Brown is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orton Bishop Brown of Berlin, N. H., and the granddaughter of the late General and Mrs. John B. Gordon, her marriage to Dr. Burton S. Munroe, of Boston, Mass., to take place at a later date. Mrs. Derry is a recent bride, having been Miss Anne Barrett, of Augusta, daughter of Mrs. Frank Barrett, and the late Mr. Barrett. Miss Knapp arrives today to visit her aunt, Mrs. Preston S. Arkwright, at her home in Druid Hills, and will be central figure at the tea to be given today by Mrs. Arkwright. Photo of Miss Orme by Elliott's Studio. number of other Atlanta girls are students at Hollins and were present for the brilliant dance.

Miss Plummer will disappoint her large circle of friends here by her plans for the Christmas holidays which will take her far from Atlanta. Mrs. Plummer will go by plane to Chicago, Ill., where she will meet her daughter on December 20. The Atlanta belle and her mother will proceed to Wyoming to spend the holidays as guests of friends on a typical western ranch. Winter sports will be enjoyed, including skiing, sledding, ice skating and hunting, which will have particular appeal for the southerners. An interesting program of other activities has been planned for the visitors by their hosts, which will doubtless make this vacation unusually memorable for Miss Plummer.

Pulis Lathrop Painting Inspires Motif.

A Pulis Lathrop painting inspired the decorative motif for Mrs. Lon Grove, châtelaine of one of the loveliest houses on Habersham road, when she recently converted a sun porch into a charming living room. The painting, which hangs opposite the wide fireplace on one side of the room, features an adorable amber-colored Persian kitten perched upon a table placed before a Persian screen. A graceful bottle rests on the table behind the kitten, and its greenish-blue color is introduced into the room in the heavy silk covering of the sofa placed beneath the picture. A dancing figure on the screen wears a vivid robe of copper color, the tone of which is repeated in the lustrous copper satin curtains draping the windows.

The walls are painted a lovely matrial blue and the velvety rug is of a slightly deeper hue. The amber, copper, and blue tints are further repeated in the floral pattern of the chintz covering the sofa flanking one side of the fireplace, and in the upholstering of the comfortable chairs placed about the room. The dining room, opening off the living room, is also done in tones of blue, which are particularly becoming to titan-haired Mrs. Grove, whose exquisite taste is reflected in the minutest details of decoration. The paneled walls are painted turquoise blue, and draping the windows and doors are curtains of watered silk in aquamarine blue.

A formal hall separates the living room from a den, which is the favorite rendezvous of Dr. Grove, one of the city's most popular physicians and surgeons. In the hall hang the portraits of the two lovely little daughters of the household, Dorothy and Frances, one wearing a dainty blue frock and the other in pink. The paintings are the work of that eminent specialist in children's portraits, Pamela Whitehurst. In the den, the satiny sheen of poplar-paneled walls

State Garden Club To Meet April 25 and 26

Members of the Garden Club of Georgia will be interested in the announcement made today that April 25 and 26 are the dates selected for the annual convention of the organization to be held here as the guest of the Iris Garden Club, of which Mrs. Carl Lewis is president. The convention will assemble a number of prominent Georgia women interested in gardening and between the business sessions the visitors will be entertained at a round of social affairs.

Mrs. William Akers has been appointed general chairman of arrangements for the convention and her co-chairmen include Mesdames Eugene Harrington and Bolling Sasin. Other chairmen include: Transportation; Mrs. Kirk Hancock, co-chairman; Mrs. Frank Spratlin; registrations; Mrs. Earl Cone, co-chairman; Mrs. Herbert Reynolds; programs: Mrs. Alfred Barill Jr.; badges and place cards; Mrs. Herbert Oliver; hospitality: Mrs. Carl Lewis; courtesy: Mrs. Henry Troutman, co-chairman; Mrs. Robert White; favors: Mrs. D. C. Shepherd, co-chairman; Mrs. Dowdell Brown; doorkeeper: Mrs. Mary Nelson Ream; information: Mrs. Klatte Armstrong, co-chairman; Mrs. Warren Moise; convention hall arrangement: Mrs. Murdoch Queen; executive board dinner: Mrs. Arthur Howell; menu selection: Mrs. W. C. Wardlaw; publicity: Mrs. Lawrence Willett, co-chairman, Mrs. Klatte Armstrong.

Miss Judy Beers To Be Honored By Her Parents

No formal invitations will be issued by Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Beers to the open house which they will keep on Sunday evening, December 24, from 7 to 11 o'clock, at their home on Ponce de Leon avenue in Druid Hills in compliment to their daughter, Miss Judy Beers, but friends of this popular school belle are invited to call. Miss Beers, who is enrolled at Gunston Hall school in Washington, D. C., will arrive on December 20 to spend the holidays with her parents, and will be listed among the popular young school belles attending the innumerable social gayeties assembling younger society during the festive holiday season.

The hosts and honor guest will be assisted in receiving by a group of the latter's close friends, numbering Misses Clare Haverty, Eleanor Terhune, Frances Haven, Ellen Fleming and Frances Austin.

College Belles, Visitors and Debs Honored at Club

Members of the college contingent spending the Christmas season at home, attractive holiday visitors, and debutantes vied for interest at the dinner-dance held last evening at the Piedmont Driving Club, when a number of entertainments were planned in their honor. A trio of debutantes including Misses Betty Schroder, and Mary and Frances Bryan were central figures at the party given by Mr. and Mrs. John Sibley.

Covers were placed for the honor guests and for Misses Caroline Crumley, Betty Cole, Mary Clay, of Kentucky; Mimi Fleming, Betty Gage, Josephine Jennings, of Milledgeville, and Judge and Mrs. Shepard Bryan, Mr. and Mrs. William Schroder and Charles Willis, James Johnston, Lamar Ellis, Roy Petty, Walter James, Frank Player, Philip Alston, Dudley Cook, William Morrow, Josiah Sibley, and the hosts.

Dr. and Mrs. Floyd McRae Jr. entertained at a party honoring their guest, Miss Katharine Armstrong, of Lake Forest, Ill. Miss Armstrong is numbered among the attractive visitors of the winter season and a number of informal affairs have been planned in her honor.

Miss Adolyn McClatchey's party was a complimentary gesture to Miss Julie McClatchey, lovely debutante of this season, invited to meet the honor guest were Misses Patsy Thayer, Frances Morton, Lundy Sharp, and Dr. William Funkhauser, Leroy Watson, Presley Walker, Norman Ramsay, W. R. Massengale Jr., Bowden Palmer and Dr. Thomas Hinman.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Troutman were hosts to a congenial group of guests, entertaining in compliment to Charles V. Tompkins, of Virginia, who is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Daniel McDougal at their home in Peachtree circle.

combines well with the colonial red cover of a wide divan, and the red leather upholstering of deep, comfortable chairs. Shelves filled with books line an entire wall of the room, at one end of which is an open fireplace, with wrought iron fittings.

Mrs. Grove, who is a connoisseur of art, the love of which is inherited from her father, J. J. Haverty, owns a superb collection of etchings, which she has chosen to hang in an upstairs guest room furnished in maple and flowered chintz. The prize of the collection is one of Reynolds' most valued etchings, en-

Methodist Societies Hold Harvest Day Programs

The Harvest Day program was presented by the Women's Misionary Society of Hargood Memorial church Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock in the church with more than 150 present. Mrs. T. B. McKelroy, vice president, presided. A duet was sung by Mrs. A. Douglas and Mrs. E. B. Duperreux, accompanied by the piano by Miss Annie Hargood. The devotional was given by Mrs. R. E. Russell on prayer. Mrs. R. W. Sparks sang a solo, "Miss Publicity," a one-act sketch was given by Mrs. H. H. McPherson. A feature of the program was a birthday cake arranged with candles to represent the Christ's birthday. As each officer and superintendent made her annual report, a candle was lighted. Mrs. E. N. Good, general secretary of the conference, asked that each one make a birthday gift and place on the cake. The gift, $250, was received. Mrs. S. B. Suddeth, president, presented Mrs. T. B. McKelroy a life membership in behalf of the society for her faithful services during this year. During the luncheon a circle count was made and also the drawing for new circles for the new year.

Martha Brown Memorial W. M. S. met December 4 with the president, Mrs. Carl Johnson, presiding. Mrs. A. O. Baxter led the devotional. Reports were made by the various officers. Mrs. M. L. Minor was awarded a life membership in the society. Committees were appointed to meet of officers installed. Martha Brown W. M. S. will have a pageant Sunday December 17, at 7:30 o'clock in the church, celebrating Harvest Day. An added feature will be a birthday party for Him. There will be readings and singing hymns and carols. Mrs. Carl Johnson will be in charge of the program. Miss Lillian Everett will direct the music. Those taking part are Mesdames Vinson Bowers, F. W. Pierce, A. O. Baxter, L. V. Kennedy, Lillian Belk, George B. Lyle, Harris and Blaine Walker.

Galaxy W. M. S. observed Harvest Day Friday with Mrs. C. D. Benton, vice president, presiding. Mrs. James Stamps sang, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Z. T. Dake, Rev. W. M. Barnett told the story of the missionary dollar. Mrs. Rowland Bryce, president, led the demonstration of the Golden Wreath. Mrs. Anna F. Bryant, assistant, presiding. Mrs. B. K. Babington and Mrs. L. K. Starr were appointed on the courtesy committee.

Special music was rendered by a chorus from the Druid Hills M. E. church choir under the direction of Miss Ethel Beyer, and Mrs. Luther Mrs. Benson Issues Information For Record Books

Mrs. Howard Benson, of Marietta, who is chairman of publicity records books for the Georgia Congress of Parents and Teachers, has received the following recommendations from the national concerning publicity records books: 1. That the state should record books; 2. That the state should have a permanent color of green since its books are green. 3. That the size of 9x12 is the preferred size. 4. That a statement of material included in the book be given on fly-leaf. 5. That clippings be arranged attractively and mounted neatly. 6. That the name of the association be used on all inside publicity. 7. That all legitimate material: certificates; reports of officers; delegates and chairmen; menus; canceled checks; gold stars; all literature concerning other groups which have been given publicity at P.T.A. meetings; place cards. 8. That greater effort be made to educate national, state, district and county units with local publicity, and that correct congress terminology be used. 9. That brief marginal notes be used to call attention to committee activities in lengthy articles; that the name of the association be underlined, if mentioned in any way, by another organization. 10. That all information concerning the association be used in connection with each published photograph. 9. That more general use be made of circulars, placards, handbills, radio, motion picture slides, and bulletin boards other than school. 10. That books be indexed according to committee activities.

GIRLS' HIGH PROGRAM CELEBRATES HOLIDAYS

With the gaiety that comes with the approach of the Christmas season, Girls' High marked the beginning of the holidays with a celebration at the city auditorium on Friday, December 15, the main feature of which was an emerald Christmas tree.

On Saturday, school and his helpers at Girls' High celebrated an advance Christmas by the presentation to 128 of Atlanta's needy children, of toys and stockings full of goodies.

Duke Tresler, of section L-S-25, won first prize in this library contest by exhibiting a fine collection of 48 minerals from the state of Georgia.

The first in debate, held Tuesday with the affirmative winning in both assemblies, Gertrude Yampolsky and Calvin Kyle won out in the first assembly, while Jean Denison and Ed Whitmore were victorious in the second. The subject for debate this year is "Resolved, That the United States should have a navy as large as that of any other nation."

TECH HIGH STUDENTS
REGISTER FOR BOXING

With the G. I. A. championship game tucked under their arm, the "Fighting Smithy" football team marched off the field after defeating the Lanier Poets by a score of 7 to 6.

Boys who wish to try out for the boxing team must register before December 15. They must also have their parents' permission to box before they will be allowed to register. Training will start after the Christmas holidays and the tournament will begin about the middle of January.

A call for volunteers for a blood transfusion was sent out to Tech High recently. Seven boys responded, and Joe Hollis, a popular "Smithy," was selected to receive the transfusion. He underwent the transfusion without any ill effects. Congratulations, Joe.

We are all anticipating our 18 days of Christmas vacation.

There are possibilities of a big surprise for students when they return to classes next year. It may be that "Old King Kringle" will have remembered us all.

Christmas Programs Feature Past Week's P.-T. A. Meetings

ers for their spirit of co-operation and also thanked them for balls given each grade. She announced that the school would have 100 per cent perfect teeth by December 15. Mrs. W. H. Berry, presented Miss Margaret Kendrick, principal, a Christmas gift from the P.-T. A., as a token of the true Christmas spirit. The first grade won the prize for having the most mothers present.

Whiteford P.-T. A.
Whiteford P.-T. A. met at the school Tuesday with Mrs. W. H. Berry presiding with an appropriate Christmas program. An interesting letter was read from W. A. Sutton, stressing the advisability of developing the talents, qualities and character of the individual child. For the third consecutive month the attendance prize was won by High 3. Mrs. Carolyn made a chain and the good results were derived from the recent membership drive conducted by Mrs. Finch and Mrs. Boyd, the former winning the prize.

Calhoun P.-T. A.

On Tuesday, the largest assemblage of mothers and daddies for this semester met in the Calhoun school, followed by a P.-T. A. meeting. A Christmas program was presented by children of the lower grades. To their teachers credit is due for splendid production and artistic costume.

Forrest Avenue.

Forrest Avenue School P.-T. A. met Tuesday. Miss Elizabeth Griggs and Mrs. Guy Coker presented the kindergarten children in a Christmas play, "The Night Before Christmas," with the old woman who lived in a shoe. A group of girls from the upper grades sang Christmas carols. David N. Meyer presented Miss Kate King, principal, with a beautiful silver vase. Mrs. Norman Smith welfare chairman, announced that Thanksgiving baskets were sent to needy families. Miss King presented Mrs. Meyer with a present in appreciation of her excellent work. Attendance prizes were won by Miss Bailey, Low 6, and Mrs. Coker, kindergarten.

Glenwood P.-T. A.

At the meeting of Glenwood P.-T. A. on Wednesday afternoon, Dr. Marion Hull spoke on "Enriching the Child's Life Through Ethical Character." He stated that the home, church and school were the important factors in the training of children. Dr. Hull was introduced by Mrs. William Keller, program chairman. The girls sang "The Blue Bird" and were given a vestment choir. Jane Stillwell gave the devotional. During a tableau of "The Manger," "Silent Night" was sung by the mothers' chorus with Mrs. D. C. Adams as director. Mrs. H. B. Carette gave the president's message.

Mrs. J. H. Dasher, the president, presented a bouquet given by Mrs. James Julius McCurdy, M. H. Howard, W. L. Lowe, W. O. Rogers, Russell Leonard, Roy Walker, Stillwell, and Teddy Timmons. Mrs. Claude Blount, welfare chairman, reported $25 in groceries given for Thanksgiving. New samples for the luncheon were reported by Mrs. Maynard Saunders, chairman.

Mrs. O. L. Amsler gave a talk on the Child's Welfare Magazine.

The fourth and third grades of Mrs. Maggie Rogers and Miss Mary Taylor won the attendance prizes.

Kirkwood Meets.

A vivid description of her experiences and observations while traveling through foreign countries was given by Mrs. E. C. Goodman Tuesday at Kirkwood P.-T. A. Mrs. Goodman, whose travels are world-wide, said she had made special study of religious observances of the various countries visited. She exhibited scarfs and shawls of intricate and beautiful design which she said was used in religious services in the countries she visited. Her travels extended through principal countries of Europe and Asia. The subject of Mrs. Goodman's address was "Religious Education."

The audience opened with prayer, Rev. Claude Hendrix, new pastor of the Kirkwood Methodist church. Teachers of Kirkwood school sang "Silent Night, Holy Night."

Grade prizes were won by Miss Alice Wheeler, Low 5-1, and Miss McCurdy, High 3.

Bass Junior High.

"Education puts nothing into a child that is not already there," declared D. M. Ashby Jones, noted speaker, who addressed the Bass Junior High school.

"Education is drawing out the best that is in a boy or girl," he asserted. "If we could get it into the minds of our parents and teachers that they cannot put anything into the child, but can only invite and draw forth education would be more successful," he said.

Spring Street P.-T. A.

Miss Cox, of the Carnegie library, gave an interesting talk before the Ella W. Smillie P.-T. A. at the December meeting on the subject "Books to Buy for Christmas and the Home Library." She made talk impressive by giving names of authors and books that will appeal to children from preschool age through high school age.

Dr. A. H. Jones, before the Rivers P.-T. A. on Tuesday afternoon, he said that "Parents should cultivate a more unselfish viewpoint toward the education of their children and the consider more the good of the whole than the individual gain. There should be a better understanding between the home and school in an effort to awaken in a child the desire for, the love of, truth and knowledge, and to encourage the parent to think not of my child and my school, but our children and our school."

Mr. Present Brings sang "Holy Night," accompanied by Mrs. H. L. Parryman. The president, Mrs. William Campbell Jr., conducted the choir.

Attractive and Charming Society Matrons Wear Their Wedding Gowns to Buffet-Supper Given by Mr. and Mrs. H. Grady Black in Celebration of Their Tenth Anniversary

When Mr. and Mrs. H. Grady Black celebrated their tenth wedding anniversary on December 12 at a buffet supper given at their Peachtree road residence, they requested the feminine guests to don their bridal finery for the celebration. The marriage of every young matron pictured in the above group was solemnized within the past 10 years, and their bridal robes bespeak the correct styles and fashions of the year in which they were made.

When blonde Miss Josephine Lachman Connors, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Connors, became the bride to John W. Grady Jr., a ceremony solemnized Wednesday evening, October 20, 1926, at the South Side Baptist church, in Birmingham, Ala., she wore an imported gown of white satin fashioned in bouffant style and trimmed with rose point lace which had adorned the wedding gowns of her mother, Mrs. John W. Grant, and that of her grandmother, Mrs. William D. Grant. The sleeveless chiffon bodice had a bateau neckline, and ropes of pearls were draped over the shoulders.

Her corset was fastened to the back of her head with a corset of white orchids and valley lilies.

A brilliant home wedding united in marriage Miss Margaret Eloise Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Allen, and Henry Grady Black, which was solemnized on Wednesday evening, December 12, 1923, at the residence of the bride's parents on East Fifteenth street, Grant, in a Mary Laird model of softest crepe satin falling in straight folds, the bride was a striking figure. Panels laced with crystals and pearls fell in graceful folds from the left shoulder of the bodice, and the bodice was outlined the straight folds. From a ribbon chou at the waistline a shower of orange blossoms and narrow ribbon fell to the hemline. Her shimmering satin court train was attached to a shoulder drape of tulie and orange blossom buds graced in long length. Her tulie veil was caught to a rose point lace and orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white orchids and valley lilies.

Wednesday evening, November 28, 1928, The gown boasted an irregular hemline and circular side panels were formed of the satin. The bodice was low and tight, and the first sleeve laced over the hands. The U-shaped decolletage in the back was filled with lace and outlined with seed pearls. A circular pendant joined the bodice and rippling skirt, and was caught in the front with a spray of silver gardenias. The narrow train was formed of narrow ribbons of the film material, worn cap-style, and was caught in the back with a spray of silver gardenias. Her exquisite bouquet was formed of white spray orchids and valley lilies.

Middle Georgia College Accepted in Association

COCHETSKY, Ga., Dec. 10.—Middle Georgia College was accepted by the Southern Association of Colleges which met at Nashville, Tenn., last week and the college work was put to the test. Dr. E. H. Browning only received a passing grade.

It is a great achievement to have been admitted quickly by the association, which is considered by many to be the highest accrediting agency in the south but in the nation.

The school has the largest enrollment in the state.

The children of the church school will bring toys to supplement his gifts to the many children who have been writing him. Santa Claus will be on hand at 4:30 o'clock when the kindergarten and primary departments will have their annual program and tree, under the direction of Miss John A. Parker, supervisor, and Mrs. W. W. Crowe, to receive their gifts. He will appear again at 8 o'clock when the junior, intermediate and senior departments will have their party. Dean

Christmas Parties To Be Held at Cathedral

Santa Claus will make two trips to the cathedral on Christmas Day at 4:30 o'clock. The guests will include representatives of the younger children. Santa Claus will be on hand at 4:30 o'clock when the kindergarten and primary departments will have their annual program and tree, under the direction of Miss John A. Parker, supervisor, and Mrs. W. W. Crowe, to receive their gifts. He will appear again at 8 o'clock when the junior, intermediate and senior departments will have their party. Dean Raimundo de Ovies will attend both parties.

Santa Claus will return again to the cathedral at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon, December 24, when he will come to bring toys to the children invited to the American Legion Christmas tree, which is being sponsored by the Fulton county post, No. 134.

T. E. L. Class.

Every member of the T. E. L. class of the Grant Park Sunday school is requested to be present Sunday, December 17, as this has been designated as "Every Member Day" by Mrs. E. M. Altman, teacher. Visitors and new members are invited. The class meets in the new room, which has been rebuilt after the recent fire.

Habersham D. A. R. Meets on Wednesday.

Joseph Habersham Chapter D. A. R. meets on Wednesday, December 20, at 3 o'clock, at Habersham hall, 210 Fifteenth street. Mrs. C. J. Sheehan, first vice regent, will preside in the absence of Mrs. R. K. Rambo, the regent, who is in charge of the Christmas program under the direction of Miss Janita Chisholm, program chairman, will be presented, among the numbers being a paper on "Christmas" by Mrs. Warren D. White; reading of Henry Van Dyke's "The Spirit of Christmas" by Mrs. John H. Mullin and vocal selections by Mrs. Lamar Ethridge, music chairman.

Miss Molloy and Mr. Henry Wed At Afternoon Ceremony in Chicago

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 16.—Miss Catherine Pearson Molloy, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Joseph Molloy, became the bride of James Dumas Henry of Atlanta, Ga., and Miami Beach, Fla., at a lovely candlelight ceremony solemnized at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, at 999 Lakeshore drive.

The marriage service was performed by Dr. C. D. Thomas, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, and witnessed by an assemblage of fashionable society.

Hundreds of cathedral candles burned in the church, which furnished the only light for the ceremony, the tall gleaming amid the elaborate floral decorations of Easter lilies and white roses combined to charming effect with great clusters of silvered foliage and miniature silvered trees.

The groomsmen included Hugh M. Eaton Jr., of Akron, Ohio; Charles Winn Canfield, of Chicago and Miami Beach, Fla., and J. Russell Scott, of Chicago.

Miss Virginia M. Eaton, of Akron, Ohio, intimate friend of the bride and her roommate at Briarcliff school in New York, acted as maid of honor. The trio of lovely bridesmaids included Miss Dorothy Dewes and Miss Fitzmorris, of Chicago, and Miss Chloe Louise Watson, of Winnetka, Ill.

The attendants were gowned alike in striking afternoon costumes of rough white crepe, the skirts cut long and extending into short trains. Worn with the gowns were short silver beaded jackets, featured in the front with tiny silver buttons. Their hats were wide-brimmed silver bengaline sailors and they wore silver slippers. Miss Eaton, the maid of honor, wore a cluster of valley lilies pinned at the collar line of her jacket, and the bridesmaids wore clusters of valley lilies pinned at the front with tiny white feather muffs.

David Joseph Molloy gave his daughter in marriage to Albert Lafayette Henry Jr., of Nassau, Tenn., acted as best man for his brother.

The strikingly beautiful bride chose for her wedding gown shimmering white bridal satin. The gown was made with the fashionable high neckline and was buttoned down the back with a series of tiny satin-covered buttons. The long, flowing skirt, molded to her slender figure to knee

Combs-Wilkes Wedding Plans

LOCUST GROVE, Ga., Dec. 16.—Of cordial interest to a host of friends and relatives are the wedding plans of Miss Ida Mildred Combs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Andrew Combs, and Robert Earl Wilkes, of Atlanta. The marriage will be solemnized Sunday, December 24, at 4 o'clock in the Locust Grove Baptist church.

Rev. J. F. Marchman, of Hampton, will perform the ceremony in the presence of an assemblage of relatives and friends of the young couple. A program of appropriate music will be given by Mrs. E. L. Combs, of Atlanta, and Mrs. A. B. Combs, of Griffin.

The bride-elect will be given in marriage by her father. Her attendants will be Miss Helen Castellaw, of Atlanta, as maid of honor; Mrs. Alvin Rapier, of Jackson, as matron of honor; Miss Elizabeth Smith, of Atlanta; Miss Jane Gardner, Miss Bertrice Gardner and Miss Nan Gardner, of Locust Grove, all cousins of the bride-elect, as bridesmaids. The little flower girl will be Miss June Carr, of Atlanta, a cousin of the bridegroom-elect. Maurice Davis, of Atlanta, will be best man, and will act as usher. Miss William Arwood, Julian Kelly, of Atlanta; Leslie Wilkes, of Lakeland, Fla., and William Heard, of Locust Grove.

Immediately following the ceremony an informal reception will be given at the home of the bride-elect's parents, the guests to include only the bridal party, close friends, relatives and out-of-town guests.

Oakland City O. E. S. To Install Officers.

Installation of officers of the Oakland City Chapter No. 200, O. E. S., will be held on Monday evening, December 18, in the chapter hall at 1171 Lee street, S. W. After a short business session, the chapter will be opened to the public at 8:30 o'clock. Officers to be installed include Mrs. Kata Parham, worthy matron; R. L. Adair Jr., worthy patron; Miss Hazel Dennard, associate matron; C. M. Bolen, associate patron; Mrs. Selma Adair, secretary; Mrs. Aline Haskins, treasurer; Mrs. Ethel Adair, Silverman, conductress; Mrs. Jewel Makassar, associate conductress; Mrs. Ethel Dodd, chaplain; Mrs. Mary Jones, marshall; Mrs. Kate Massey, organist; Mrs. LaVert Mitchell, Adah; Mrs. Ruby Bethel, Ruth; Miss Ruth Bellamy, Esther; Miss Ruth Cocking, Martha; Mrs. Bertha Williams, Electa; Miss Mae Garner, warden, and Mrs. Johnson, sentinel.

Miss Ethel Jackson, junior grand matron, will be the grand installing officer and other installing officers will be Mrs. Pauline Dillon, associate grand matron; the grand marshall; Mrs. John Jackson, The Grand Matron; the grand chaplain; and Mrs. Kate Massey, past grand organist, the grand organist. Members and friends of the Oakland City chapter are invited to attend the ceremonies.

Augusta Clubwomen Will Honor
Mrs. Gholston on December 19

Augusta clubwomen will be the subject of an entertainment by Mrs. J. W. Gholston, of Comer, president of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, on Tuesday, December 19, and she will be honored with an informal tea after the meeting, which will be sponsored by the division of Talullah Falls, with Mrs. David Nunnelly, chairman.

Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, of Athens, state corresponding secretary, will be entertained at the meeting. Mrs. Gholston's name and influence are enduringly interwoven with the life of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs and the history may be followed through the years of the notable service she has rendered. The record of achievements is a worthy tribute to one who has courageously given time, strength and loyalty. Mrs. Gholston is a born leader, possessing charm and magnetism; she is an unpretentious worker and keeps abreast of the time. Her engaging smile and frankness among her blessings, and she possesses the priceless gift of being able to see the other person's point of view. She is an exceedingly tolerant and broad-minded woman.

Mrs. Gholston began her career as a clubwoman in Comer, one of the founders of Young Matrons' Sewing Circle, charter member and vice president of the Civic league, the name afterward changed to Comer Woman's Club, which had been president three years; vice president and president of the eighth district; for 1926-29 the district reached 100 per cent. In 1929 the club reached 100 per cent. in administration, amounting to $1,060.

Mrs. Gholston accepted the chairmanship of library extension committee, then became president of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs.

In recognition of her service and ability, former Governor Hardman appointed her a member of the state library commission, in which capacity she is serving. During the year Mrs. Gholston has been invited to Comer. She has been for better schools, civic improvement, good roads and intellectual and moral advancement.

Mrs. Gholston has set for the year, since Mrs. Gholston was introduced into office in June. At this anniversary meeting plans will be discussed for building of a community house. This has been a dream of the club for several years, and a tidy sum, more than $1,200, has been accumulated by the club and other women. The club has been invited to co-operate in making of the house a real community home. These women have deemed it wise to have the money in hand before building, so that the burden of a debt might not deter other club activities.

Mrs. Gholston has set for the year, since Mrs. Gholston was introduced into office in June. At this anniversary meeting plans will be discussed for building of a community house. This has been a dream of the club for several years, and a tidy sum, more than $1,200, has been accumulated by the club and other women. The club has been invited to co-operate in making of the house a real community home. These women have deemed it wise to have the money in hand before building, so that the burden of a debt might not deter other club activities.

Miss FitzSimons Becomes Bride Of Louis Castex Hollingsworth

The wedding of Miss Charlotte FitzSimons and Louis Castex Hollingsworth was solemnized on yesterday afternoon at a quiet and impressive ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Roux FitzSimons, on Virginia circle, at 5 o'clock in the presence of relatives and a few close friends. The groom's father, Rev. W. F. Hollingsworth, officiated, using the Episcopal service. A program of music was played by Mrs. Mary Griffith Dobbs on the harp. Miss Elizabeth Gant, former schoolmate of the bride, sang "The Sweetest Story Ever Told" and "Because."

The service took place in the living room, the bridal party standing before an improvised altar decorated with palms and white roses. A seven-branched candelabrum stood on either end of the altar and held white tapers.

Miss Elizabeth Weathers, former classmate of the bride at St. Mary's in Raleigh, N. C., was maid of honor. She wore a becoming costume of wine-colored faille with black accessories and carried a bouquet of Joanna Hill roses.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. FitzSimons entertained in

The unit will sponsor a Christmas tree, and a picture at a Griffith theater to raise funds for the tree.

Christmas Greetings.

In approaching my last Christmas as your leader, it is one of gladness and one of sadness. It has made me glad to serve such an important district of federated clubwomen as the fifth district. So many of importance taking place in all the clubs, and especially in the many located in and near the large city of Atlanta.

Your president has had fine cooperation from the fine, loyal members, and I want to thank them. And all the members in my office is not near as does make me sad to give my last Christmas greetings. I do hope for each and every one a most joyous day and a happy and prosperous New Year.

MRS. JOHN F. MACDOUGALD, of Atlanta, president of Fifth District of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs.

Acworth Club.

Interior decoration of the home was a feature of the Acworth Club at the semi-monthly meeting held at the clubhouse on December 15, and conducted by the chairman of the club. Mrs. E. M. Bailey, after a presentation by Mrs. Rosewell for securing employment for women. She also presented the tenth district club page offered by the Augusta Chronicle and the radio program sponsored each week by tenth district chairman, Mrs. Henry Standard, of Washington, Ga.

There has been a revival of interest taken in the club work during the past few months, under the wise leadership of the president, Mrs. Roy Williams.

Miss Calhoun Weds Mr. Cardwell At Fashionable Church Ceremony

Impressive in its solemnization, and of social importance throughout the south, the marriage of Miss Marion Phinizy Calhoun, only daughter of Dr. and Mrs. F. Phinizy Calhoun, to Bickerton Winston Cardwell, of Hanover, Va., took place at 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the First Presbyterian Church, Dr. J. Sprole Lyon read the marriage service which united aristocratic southern families and which was witnessed by a representative gathering of society.

The interior of the church, elaborately decorated, was lighted by hundreds of candles. Giant woodcarvings massed the rear of the choir loft, and the back of the church was clusters of Easter lilies. Across the chancel rail were arranged groupings of seven-branched candelabra in pyramid effect, with garlands of snail shells falling from the choir rail to the floor as a backdrop. This arrangement was repeated at the rear of the pulpit, which was centered with a white wicker basket filled with fragrant Easter lilies, the graceful handle tied with wide white satin ribbons. The candelabra arose from mounds of Easter lilies and asparagus ferns. The bridal train was composed of the arrangement of seven-branched candelabra arising from a mound of Easter lilies, the central arrangement flanked by white wicker floor baskets filled with Easter lilies and sloping seven-branched candelabra festooned with garlands of asparagus ferns. The petals down the central aisle sides of the church were caught with tall clusters of Easter lilies tied with white ribbon bows.

Nuptial Music.

Dr. Charles A. Sheldon Jr., organist of the church, rendered the nuptial music. For the recital, preceding the ceremony, the organist chose "Benedic, Domine," "Nuptial Hymn," by Saint-Saens; "Melody in E," by Rachmaninoff; and "Romance," by Rimsky-Korsakoff. Dr. Sheldon improvised appropriate selections during the ceremony.

Miss Emily Woodruff, of Columbus, maid of honor, and the bride's cousin, Mrs. Llewellyn Miller, of New York city, served as her matron of honor. The bevy of lovely bridesmaids included Misses Mary Ann Carr, Pattie Porter, Mary Adair Howell, Louise Calhoun, cousin of the bride; Rosemary Townley, Bessie Lee Cardwell, and Mrs. Anna, sister of the bridegroom. Mrs. Malon Courts and Mrs. Caldwell Holliday.

The attendants were gowned alike in green transparent velvet. Miss Woodruff and Mrs. Miller, wearing sapphire green, and the bridesmaids wearing emerald green, the former Miss Sarah Lumpkin, and was used for her marriage to General Philip Cooke.

Following the church ceremony, Dr. and Mrs. Calhoun entertained at a reception at the Piedmont Driving Club honoring the bride and bridegroom. Receiving with the hosts, the bridal couple and the members of the wedding party were Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Cardwell, Mrs. A. W. Calhoun, grandmother of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. William H. Kiser, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Oglesby, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Witham, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Watts, of Charlottesville, Va., chose a handsome costume of black velvet with a small, close-fitting hat to match. Another aunt, Mrs. Stephen Watts, of Charlottesville, Va., was a sister of the bridegroom, was an attractive figure wearing sheer black net and a smart black hat. Her flowers were a shoulder cluster of cream-colored roses and valley lilies.

Another aunt, Mrs. Caldwell Holliday, was the bride's godmother, a Lelong model of black habergeon crepe, shot with silver threads. The bateau neckline revealed a touch of silver and a silver rope belted the waistline. Her black fabric hat introduces the ostrich feather trimming in the back. Another aunt, Mrs. J. G. Oglesby, was hand-somely gowned in black crepe combined with green and silver mesh cloth and worn with a black velvet hat.

Handsome Costume.

Mrs. Calhoun received the guests wearing an improved model of white crepe in Chantel blue. The long sleeves revealed a slit from the shoulder to the elbow which was outlined in handsome sable fur. The note of brown was repeated in the girdle and in her velvet hat, shoes and gloves. Completing the costume was a shoulder cluster of cream roses and valley lilies.

Completing the bride's costume were bouquets combining sapphire roses, talisman roses and bronze snapdragons tied with yellow ribbons. Completing the bridesmaids' costumes were bouquets of shaggy yellow chrysanthemums tied with wide yellow ribbons.

Flower Girl Enters.

cluster of cream roses and valley lilies.

The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Cardwell, was handsomely costumed in lustrous black velvet, with a wide belt at the back, which formed the foundation for a cluster of butterfly roses and valley lilies adorned her shoulder.

Mrs. Abner W. Calhoun, paternal grandmother of the bride, was a regal figure wearing a gown of black velvet, with elbow sleeves introducing a foundation for a cluster of butterfly roses and valley lilies adorned her shoulder.

The bride wore the rose point veil of exquisite design which was also worn by her mother, her maternal aunts, Mrs. William H. Kiser and Mrs. Mary Adair Howell, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Boland, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Miller, of Charlottesville, Va., and Mrs. Mary Adair Howell, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Miller, of New York.

Her only ornament was a strand of exquisite seed pearls which formerly belonged to her maternal grandmother, the late Mrs. William Lawson Peal. Completing the bridal ensemble was a graceful bouquet of hollyhock and valerian.

Dr. Lyon read the service from a white satin prayer book, a treasured heirloom in the bride's family, which belonged to her great-grandmother, the former Miss Sarah Lumpkin, and was used for her marriage to General Philip Cooke.

Following the church ceremony, Dr. and Mrs. Calhoun entertained at a reception at the Piedmont Driving Club honoring the bride and bridegroom.

Dr. Lyon read the service from a white satin prayer book, a treasured heirloom in the bride's family, which belonged to her great-grandmother, the former Miss Sarah Lumpkin, and was used for her marriage to General Philip Cooke.

Following the church ceremony, Dr. and Mrs. Calhoun entertained at a reception at the Piedmont Driving Club honoring the bride and bridegroom.

Receiving with the hosts, the bridal couple and the members of the wedding party were Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Cardwell, Mrs. A. W. Calhoun, grandmother of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. William H. Kiser, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Oglesby, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Witham, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Watts, of Charlottesville, Va., and Mrs. Caldwell Holliday, maid of honor; Miss Mary Adair Howell, Miss Louise Calhoun, Mrs. Malon Courts, and Miss Mary Ann Carr.

The reception was held at the entrance of the hallroom of the club, before a screen of palms and ferns.

The hallroom presented a scene of floral beauty with its decorations of giant chrysanthemums and roses in green transparent velvet.

The maid and matron of honor carried bouquets combining sapphire roses, talisman roses and bronze snapdragons tied with yellow ribbons. Completing the bridesmaids' costumes were bouquets of shaggy yellow chrysanthemums tied with wide yellow ribbons.

The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Cardwell, was handsomely costumed in lustrous black velvet, with a wide belt at the back, which formed the foundation for a cluster of butterfly roses and valley lilies adorned her shoulder.

Mrs. Abner W. Calhoun, paternal grandmother of the bride, was a regal figure wearing a gown of black velvet, with elbow sleeves introducing a foundation for a cluster of butterfly roses and valley lilies adorned her shoulder.

The bride wore the rose point veil of exquisite design which was also worn by her mother, her maternal aunts, Mrs. William H. Kiser and Mrs. Mary Adair Howell, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Boland, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Miller, of Charlottesville, Va., and Mrs. Mary Adair Howell, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Miller, of New York.

Her only ornament was a strand of exquisite seed pearls which formerly belonged to her maternal grandmother, the late Mrs. William Lawson Peal. Completing the bridal ensemble was a graceful bouquet of hollyhock and valerian.

Debutantes of 1933

Miss Maibelle Dickey, at the left, lovely debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Dickey, looks coquettishly over her shoulder, her engaging smile radiating over her winsome countenance. She has been extensively feted at social affairs during her first year of youngladyhood, and is admired by a wide circle of friends and relatives.

Her maternal grandmother is Mrs. Lena Swift Huntley, and Mrs. J. L. Dickey is her paternal grandmother. Miss Dickey has luminous brown eyes, and her hair matches her eyes in color. Miss Patsy Thayer, daughter of Mrs. Mamie Tolbert Thayer, and the late Charles Blackburn Thayer, of California, is one of the most attractive of the season's debes. Possessing blond, wavy hair, and decidedly blond coloring, Miss Thayer is a particularly talented dancer. She will make her formal bow at the tea-dance to be given by her mother at the Piedmont Driving Club on Saturday afternoon, December 23, at 5 o'clock. A number of parties are being given in honor of this popular debutante. Sketched by Cleo Mansfield, staff artist, from photographs by Asano.

West End Club To Sponsor Play

Miss Alston Honors Sigma Delta Club

The public welfare committee of the West End Woman's Club, of which Mrs. A. B. Thompson is chairman, will sponsor a Christmas play Tuesday, December 19, at the Home for the Incurables, featuring Miss Jacqueline Gullatt, in song-and-dance numbers, and Joyce Gilliland, in readings. The play will be given by pupils of the Lackland School of Expression under the direction of Mrs. T. C. Lackland Jr., the cast of characters to include Bill Stoyke, George Cope, Betty Jones, Tommy Lackland, John Bell, Roger Stoyke, Louis Rogers, Mrs. Freda, Iris Stoyke, Carolyn Reynolds, and Charles Elvyn.

Others on the program will include Mayzie Chason, Eloise DeLozier, O. L. DeLozier, Dorothy Elyea, Marvin Roberts, Dorothy Elyea and Betty Lackland, Thursday, December 21. Misses Thompson will be in charge of the refreshments for the benefit of the charities before Christmas. The program was presented by the chairman, Mrs. Alvina D. Kiser. Mrs. M. Staples read a paper on Terrariums, and illustrated her subject with an exhibit. Mrs. Henry Johnson read a paper, "The Holly Trees of Christmas," also a "Poem on Christmas." The program was opened by Mrs. B. W. McCall, chairman; the subject was "The Early History of the Georgia Society, D. A. R." The program was reviewed by Mrs. W. P. Coffey. The biography of Mrs. S. B. C. Morgan was given by Mrs. Walter Stanhope. Mrs. Marshall, president of the Georgia chapter, was described by Mrs. Jesse Powell. The identification of distinguished guests who attended the state conference was made by Mrs. E. S. Lee. Mrs. K. R. Farmer, of LaGrange, was welcomed as a guest.

YOU CAN'T EVER ACCOUNT FOR A Woman in Love

YOUNG SAM FALES, son of Haliburton Fales, very rich and socially prominent New York broker, is a person of great determination.

So determined, in fact, that when Fales, Sr., pleaded with his son to study business administration at Harvard, then take a seat on the Stock Exchange, Sam replied forcefully and with finality: "No, Dad. I have other plans."

"But what on earth?"

Fales, Jr. explained. "I want to be an explorer, a scientist, not a business man." He told his dad about his proposed Guatemalan expedition. His father didn't approve, thought it would be too hazardous. But the boy stuck to his guns.

In his flivver he drove to Coconut Grove,

Samuel Fales, High-spirited Young Son of a Rich N. Y. Broker, with His Fiancee, Miss Madelaine Swing, Detroit Society Girl — a Snapshot Taken Just Before He Embarked on a Tour of Exploration of the Guatemalan Jungles. He's Showing Her Some of His Scientific Equipment.

Florida, suburb of Miami. Peniless, he traded his car in for four months' meals and lodging. In his bright brain burned the dream of penetrating the jungles of Central America. There he would grope his way through tangled underbrush, brave the hazards of which he had been warned, above all enlarge his already considerable knowledge of flora and fauna in the tropics.

Of a naturally studious bent, Sam liked good times, too. He was personable, popular with Miami hostesses. Once, his trip still pending, he was asked to a garden party. There he met a Miss Madelaine Swing. She was a Detroit society girl. That he didn't know. That she was pretty, charming, he did know.

Madelaine and Sam fell in love, got engaged; secretly, of course. He naturally told her of his adventurous plans. She nodded an interested head. "Fascinating," she murmured. "I want you to go through with the project, my sweet. I'll even help you outfit your kit, do some sewing for you." They embraced.

Back in New York City, Fales, Sr., worried, wondered. He peppered his son with telegrams imploring him to return.

Fales, Jr., receiving the wires, asked his Madelaine's advice. "Stick to your original plan, dearest," she counseled him. "I don't want to seem antagonistic to your father. But you are your own master now."

Encouraged, Sam set out on his perilous expedition. For companion he took along a pal, Archer Lloyd, 24. Lloyd thirsted for adventure, danger, narrow escape from the death at the tongue of the lethal serpents, too.

A native of Morganfield, Kentucky, he had led a picturesque, roving life. He had worked as a bellboy in Hollywood, Florida, hotel, had been a Boy Scout master. For him, as well as his buddy, the treacherous currents of the Belize River, even in the rainy season feared by all explorers, held no terrors.

At this juncture, consider the extraordinary character of the dream-girl Fales had left behind him. Confronted with the situation of a fiancee who might be going to certain death, she not only didn't quail, weep, faint. She actually spurred him on.

You see, she had an intuitive certainty of his prowess. But how many girls in that situation would have acted as she did?

Not to keep your suspense at fever pitch, young Fales's expedition was a great success. After surveying those areas which he had chosen for study and entering his findings in a diary, he returned in triumph to the eagerly waiting arms of Madelaine....

Young Fales had achieved his ambition. He loved and was beloved by a beautiful girl. Just how he found out that she was of high social distinction and the heiress to millions, is not known. But find it out, he did.

"They talk a lot of bunk about the dangers and pestilences of the British Honduras and the Guatemalan jungles, Darling," he told Madelaine. "Why, our 300-mile trek was just a holiday. And did you notice that I've gained twenty-five pounds and grown two inches taller?"

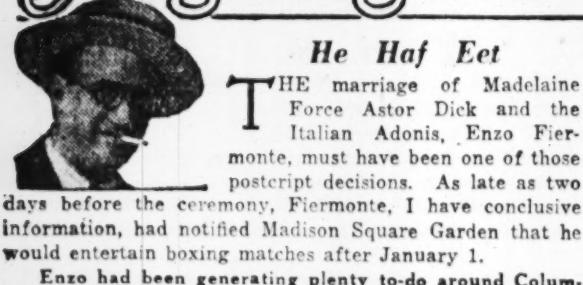

Madelaine had noticed. She notices everything about her Sam....

Sam and Madelaine are busy now planning their wedding and honeymoon. The latter, piquantly enough, will be spent in those very regions that Sam has just completed exploring. Madelaine isn't the least bit afraid of the snakes or the rainy season....

Back in New York, Papa Fales sits at his desk, an opened letter before him. He gives vent to an amused grimace. "Well, the boy had to have his way," he probably reflects. "And so long as he's safe, it's all right with me. But," he adds to himself, "I'm certainly curious to meet this fiancee of his. Sounds like an extraordinary—yes, a unique—young woman."

Highlights of Broadway

From the Circle to the Square by JACK LAIT

He Haf Eet

THE marriage of Madelaine Force Astor Dick and the Italian Adonis, Enzo Fiermonte, must have been one of those postscript decisions. As late as two days before the ceremony, Fiermonte, I have conclusive information, had notified Madison Square Garden that he would entertain boxing matches after January 1.

Enzo had been generating plenty to do around Columbus Circle, near which he put up on his bare-back from Paris. If he could blast men like he can women, he'd flatten Carnéa every day and twice on Sundays.

The females go giddy over him on sight. He has a couple of dozen suits, very British in cut and quiet of color; but his sports clothes are plenty vivid.

He is certainly a magnificent museum-piece of young manhood. He comes of good family and his breeding is immediately noticeable. He has a swaggering way with females, and it's probably their own fault. Give optic to the following blither of blurb written to him (one of hundreds, I'm told) by a panting Jenny: Enzo, the magnificent—arresting as a Grecian god! Those black pools, his eyes, harbor the laughter And the passion of all Italy. His swarthy skin gleams, his mouth is a keyboard of white ivory. Six feet tall he stands, and moves with the easy grace of the massive jungle tiger. Enzo is cruel, gentle, strong, sensuous. He tortures me—by ignoring me... Damn Enzo!...the Magnificent!

No Like

That gives you a rough idea of how he reacts on the gazelles. But when he fought Lou Sosza in Flint, Mich., Lou didn't sigh or feel tortured.

Lou is a rough, tough Buffalo Italian. He looked the "massive jungle tiger" over and then went to work on him. Not much happened in the first round, while Sosza, a veteran trial-horse who isn't in a spectacular hurry, felt out the handsome stranger. Enzo boxed gracefully and not unskillfully. The women sighed with every move of his glamorous head and every ripple of his mobile muscles.

But in the second, after Sosza had been flicked by several of Enzo's pretty jabs, the old-timer brought one up from the basement and let Enzo have it right between those black pools. They ceased to harbor the laughter.

What happened was that Fiermonte turned abruptly around, walked to his corner, sat down and started taking off his gloves.

He was resigning.

The ladies probably thought he was right, too. Why should such a gorgeous boy have anything further to do with such an uncouth ruffian, who had no reverence for eyes like those and bopped them with a big, dirty leather glove?

But the men whistled and shouted—"Yellow!" "Quitter!" "Coward!"

Percentage

It was all explained next day when Enzo issued his diplomatic reply, one of the most extraordinary ever voiced by a professional pugilist.

"I am no mug. I refuse to get hurt in the ring. I will not have my nose or my ears flattened. I was intended for better things."

"Life is short, the world is cruel, and it behooves a man to always look for that percentage."

Lit Up

Well, he didn't draw much percentage out of the ring after that, but he became athletic coach to John Jacob Astor, III, and met the youth's ma, who had once been the most famous beauty on this continent.

The Titanic-widowed and grass-widowed matron must have looked like "that percentage," for there is no doubt that the two were soon engaged, and there is no doubt that, had there been no newspapers, they would have been married long ago.

Those things are one thing when they are quiet and private, and entirely something else again when they are in the spotlight and the world is in the audience.

Enzo was at the Astor-Dick residence here for months, he was with Mrs. Dick when she was establishing her divorce, remained in Reno, he was with her again in New York and he was with her in Bermuda.

Then he fled to Europe and when he sailed back again it seemed that the most recent amendment to the colorful biography of Madelaine Force Astor Dick had been repealed.

"One minister said recently that young people should not expect love in marriage. . . . If this is true, we will have a series of Romeo and Juliet tragedies—for love will find a way."

By Helen Welshimer

If your husband stops loving you, after having promised you a 99-year lease on his affections, don't be too surprised.

If your wife announces that her heart is turning sentimental somersaults for somebody else, don't tell her to calm down and control herself.

Instead, blame it on marriage vows!

For the model marriage ceremony, for which psychologists the world over are working, will be a vowless one, according to Dr. David Seabury, who stands among the deans of the science of the human mind.

"We must abolish marriage vows if we would make marriage succeed," he says. "Thoughtful psychologists say that the present marriage law is impossible. We can't promise to love someone forever. We can only hope to love. We can't will any primary feeling. We can say what we will do—but not what we will feel. That's something that we cannot vouch for."

This does not mean that people should marry at random, with an idea in the back of their minds that they will use the same address as long as love lasts. It does mean that in order to attain a vowless marriage ceremony, every man and woman will have to be educated to the point where he will be fairly sure that he is choosing the one person with whom he can always be happy, regardless of anniversaries, waist expansion and chin duplications.

SCHOOLS and colleges must provide their students with an opportunity to study human emotions," Dr. Seabury says. "They should instruct young people as to what qualities are needed in order to make two people compatible. An ounce of prevention is worth a good many pounds of cure, especially in marriage.

"Not long ago a certain amount of money was left to some colleges to be used in a systematic study of human emotions pertaining to love. But the colleges were afraid to make a study of human beings so they used rats and pigeons as their objects."

It is this fear of personal investigation that keeps people stumbling along romantic paths without a lantern, falling and bumping their noses, the noted authority believes.

But regardless of textbooks and laboratories, it is certainly possible to discover whether you have made the right selection, if you follow his instructions.

Here is what he says.

"The old idea that opposite types should marry is all wrong. This conception is an outgrowth of economic conditions. When a man went into the world to make a living it was considered sagacious on his part to choose as a wife a girl who was interested in making a home and caring for it.

MAKE MARRIAGE SUCCEED WE MUST. ABOLISH ~~the~~ VOWS!

Dr. David Seabury, who urges the abolition of marriage vows . . . but who emphatically does not believe that people should "marry at random."

The model wedding ceremony, says this noted psychologist, will be one without promises, for we can't guarantee to love someone forever; we can only hope to

"From this relationship the idea that opposites should marry was born. It has nothing to do with the types who can love enduringly."

"Opposites do not speak the same language. The foundations of a successful marriage must be based on two people who have the same trends. Otherwise they won't hold the same values. They won't sympathize with each other or understand each other. Likeness, or similitude between a man and a woman, is the basis of the general trend which makes for happiness."

"This is easy to illustrate by plants. Clover needs sweet soil. Rhododendrons require sour soil. These two flowers can't possibly grow in the same field. One will die."

"So people, in the same way, must have similitude if they are going to grow in the same setting. They must be enough alike so that they will thrive and be happy in the same background and environment. Otherwise the maladjustment will bring neurosis to one or the other of them."

"THERE are four general types of persons in the world. Each is happier if he marries within his type."

"First, there is the active, constructive type. This person is always effective in handling details. If she is a woman the plumber will never overcharge her, and she will have the winter's coal in the basement by the first of July. Men and women of this type are good executives, active promoters, and the 'builders' of the nation and society."

"The second type are those people whose minds are filled with wonder and philosophy. They are the interpreters of life and not the direct actors in it, like the constructive type. If a man of this classification marries a woman of the constructive type they won't be compatible."

"She may call: 'George, will you open the heater?' And George may answer: 'Yes, dear.'

and walk straight to an encyclopedia to look up something he was thinking about on eclipses of the moon. Or he may sit down in front of the heater and ponder on a problem of higher mathematics."

"THIS state of affairs produces conflict. Neither one is able to make the other happy. It just can't be helped or avoided. The woman is concerned with constructive executive activities while the man's mind runs to abstract things and philosophy."

In the same way a man might wish that his wife would wash the dinner dishes instead of forgetting about hot water and tea-towels while she watches a sunset.

"Another type," Dr. Seabury explains, "is the apprehensive, cautious type. Successful business men belong to this classification. They put the biscuit in a sealed package. It was this type of man who decided that it would be wise to put away his firewood, erect houses for living and heat them from within."

"Such men and women are definite home types of persons. This is the reason that American business men are more domestic than American professional men."

"Many professional and artistic people belong to the responsive or creative type. This type, because of its responsive interest in people, makes doctors, lawyers, ministers, teachers, psychologists and social workers."

"All of those who are concerned with taking care of, or understanding, personalities are included in this class. They merge thought and emotions. They are creative. They are experimenters. They like drama and are in the play of things."

"The cautious type, on the other hand, usually hates drama. It doesn't want to get into the cast. It guards against unfortunate experiences whereas the responsive or creative type loves experience and goes in for it. The cautious and responsive types can never be happy. They are too different."

"MEN who fought suffrage and who say a woman's place is in the home belong to the constructive type and the cautious type. The interpretive type and creative type approved of the new ventures, for they like transition and welcome change. The constructive type and the cautious type are anxious to preserve the security of the status quo."

"There is another difference, too, which people should be taught to consider in the study of love and human emotions. There are two spans of attention and each of us follow one."

"The short span belongs to those who like variety. They never stay very long with one thing. The long span includes those who enjoy reading a long book that takes months, who like to eat at the same place night after night, who plant trees and are willing to watch them grow through the years."

"The short span person will grow restless and run off to Coney Island or down to Atlantic City in search of a new thrill. It is impossible for these two types to be harmonious."

"REAL compatibility must be physical, emotional, mental and spiritual. Each one of these represents a plane in the sentiment of love. If a man and woman who are attracted physically, through a chemical reaction to each other, would realize through training that it is just as important to be as compatible on the other three planes, more marriages would last."

"Each one of the planes represents an arc. The four, taken together, make a circle. A happy, harmonious marriage contains all four of them. It is rounded."

"Love is really the joy that two people have from being together and doing things together. When they are really adjusted to each other even their muscles are in harmony. That is why some people can dance together and some can't."

"The circumstances and transitions of modern life have swept away all our old ideals and not replaced them with new ones. One minister recently said that young people should not expect love in marriage. Others have approved. If this is true we will have a series of Romeo and Juliet tragedies, for love will find a way."

"The social problem which thinking people must face is where we are going in marriage. We must decide what we are going to do with the institution of marriage."

"But most of all, we must establish an American idea on which permanence in love can hope to rest."

The Roosevelt Tree—Roots and Branches

SHE BROUGHT HIM AN AMAZING HERITAGE
The President's Mother, Mrs. Sarah Delano Roosevelt, Whose Delano Ancestry Stretches Back Into European History for Nearly 50 Generations of Famous Names.

NEARLY everyone knows that our President, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, is a man of distinguished Colonial ancestry, on both the Roosevelt and Delano sides.

But few hitherto have realized that the President's pedigree is probably the most amazing and romantic in the world today—stretching back to the "Mayflower" and far beyond it—to the very dawns of Europe's most illustrious medieval royal families.

His ancestors include, in fact, Charlemagne, King Alfred the Great of England, the Capets, William the Conqueror and Richard the Lion-Hearted—and can be traced to their ducal origins, without missing a step, for as many as 46 generations covering a period of 1,425 years!

This strange revelation has never before been published. Today we present the proofs, established by careful genealogical investigation. If there's anything in "family" and there is—it sheds new light on the man who is now making history in the White House.

Last week we told this extraordinary discovery was made—through the intriguing figure of "Tom" Delano, one-time Western locomotive engineer and now a city street-sweeper in Sparks, Nevada. Delano, now 66, learned that he is the President's fifth cousin, and a share in his "Mayflower" ancestry, as were Presidents Adams, John Quincy Adams, Zachary Taylor, U. S. Grant and W. H. Taft, all maternal relatives of President Roosevelt, and of "Tom" Delano as well.

This human incident put New York investigators to work on the pre-"Mayflower" or European end of the story with astonishing results. Such an ancient family tree for our President may seem incredible—but it all comes about quite simply. Among the first New England colonists were at least two men who were not, like most of the Pilgrim Fathers, of humble origin. Richard Warren and Philippe De la Noye of "Delano" were aristocrats of old Norman and royal descent—distant cousins, in fact. They were religiously allied with the Pilgrims and came over on the "Mayflower" and the "Fortune" respectively, with their children, on this side the Atlantic, married and became Presidents Roosevelt's direct ancestors and "Tom" Delano's, too.

Their American descendants are numerous—you may be one yourself. So let us trace this extraordinary family tree back to its roots in Europe's dimmest past.

What means most of all, to us today, was the remarkably historic quality of the blood which this wedding was blending. Whether Lieutenant Jonathan Delano and Mercy Warren knew it or not, they were extremely distant cousins. Back in the family trees of both were such great figures as the Conqueror, the half-legendary King Alfred and Charles the Great or Charlemagne, whose lines of dukes and earls, and the Capetian and Plantagenet kings. By several different lines they had common ancestors—for, as history tells us, these old royal families who "made Europe" quite frequently had intermarried.

Now, by one of history's strangest freaks, these ancient families were joined once more, on the remote edge of the American wilderness. And, just as this couple's forebears had made virtually the whole medieval and early-modern history of England and the Continent, so their direct descendants, their children's children, were to make the history of America. Zachary Taylor was to conquer Mexico and give us California and the West. Ulysses Simpson Grant was to save the Union on the battlefield. Franklin Delano Roosevelt was to lead the fight against the nation's worst economic depression.

If there be such a thing as "history-making blood," it flowed through the veins of Jonathan Delano and Mercy Warren, who were married in Plymouth town on this Sunday in 1678. Their wedding directly linked Europe's past conquerors to America's future ones.

REMOVE from history the deeds of their ancestors and of their posterity, and there would be mighty little history left!

Old Phillippe De la Noye, now aged 76, was probably at this wedding. He had been a mere boy of 19 when the "Fortune" sailed over. Jonathan was his seventh child, his fourth son. Three years after the wedding the old man was dead. Richard Warren of the "Mayflower" had died a half-century before.

Let us trace these two Pilgrim sweethearts' ancestry, beginning with Phillippe De la Noye, the bride-groom's father.

Phillippe was of Norman-French-Viking stock. Very noble. If you will look in the older editions of Appleton's Encyclopedia of American Biography, you will find these words:

"The descendants of the Pilgrim ancestors, Philip Delano, of Plymouth, have the satisfaction of tracing their ancestry in the old country for a dozen centuries. They have established their right to bear the arms of the Delano family, which could be of no better stock."

Philip himself deserves mention. His noble grandparents, being Huguenots, or Protestants, were driven out of France during the centuries when Huguenots were persecuted. They settled in Leyden, Holland, a free country religiously.

Every school-child knows how the Separatist schismatics of the village of Scrooby, England, also left home and went to Holland, settling in Leyden.

Here the English refugees and the Huguenot refugees grew friendly. The De la Noye family and Scrooby pilgrims got together. The tradition is that Madame Marie le Mahieu De Lanoy, with her neighbors, the Englishwomen from Scrooby.

Their children and her son Phillippe grew up together. And why not? Had they not in common that great leveler of birth-differences, years of suffering and persecution for the right to worship God as conscience dictated? Religiously, the Huguenots and the English Separatists were not very far apart. Both were Protestants, whose belief went ultimately back to Calvin and Luther.

When the Scrooby refugees, after eight years of residence in Holland, began to plan to settle in the wilderness of America, young Phillippe shared their plans. Finally, as we all know, the "Mayflower" and "Speedwell" were chartered. The Pilgrims left Leyden, stopping temporarily in England on their way to the New World.

Though the record is missing, Phillippe prob ably went with them to England. The two ships left Plymouth together, westward bound, and the "Speedwell" sprang a leak and turned back. The "Mayflower" went on. It is conjecture, though very probable conjecture, that Phillippe De la Noye was on the "Speedwell."

For, the next year, after the "Mayflower" company had passed through their first terrific winter on American soil, into Plymouth harbor one day sailed a second ship, the "Fortune." It brought 35 new Pilgrims. And Phillippe De la Noye was on that second ship. Some years after landing he married an English girl, Hester Dowsbury.

The name "De la Noye," now "Delano," is derived from the town of Lannoy, near Lille, France. It's a little manufacturing town today. As far back as 863 A. D. this town was called Almetum, later L'Annois, L'Annoe, L'Aulmair, L'Aulnoy, Lannoy. From the Norman lords of this town, Phillippe was descended.

Ten generations back, his direct ancestor was Hugues de Lannoy. Six generations further back, it was Arnulphe de Franchmont, founder of the line.

NEARLY 60 years after the "Mayflower" had landed—on February 28, 1678—the village of Plymouth saw what might be called the most important wedding of Colonial times, genealogically speaking.

It was a simple, quiet, deeply religious affair. To the Colonists it meant much. Here was young Jonathan Delano, aged 31, whose father, Phillippe De la Noye, a Frenchman, had come over on the "Fortune," the second Pilgrim ship, in 1621. The young man had recently earned a high reputation for bravery in the Pequot War, winning the title of Lieutenant, and having been one of the 18 white men who had boldly raided the Indian stronghold and killed King Philip. In the couple of years since the war had ended, Lieutenant Delano had acquired a farm on the Dartmouth tract and was tilling the soil.

And here was pretty Mercy Warren, love of Colonial brides, a girl of 20. Her grandfather, the distinguished Richard Warren, had come over on the "Mayflower" in 1620. He alone, of all that famous company, was designated as "Mr." in the original records—perhaps a tribute to his descent from the Earls of Warren and William the Conqueror. But it meant more to the Colonists that, in this wedding, the first and second Pilgrim ships were united.

But Hugues de Lannoy of course had a mother and she was directly descended from an extraordinary medieval line. Her family started with Hulof, first Duke of the Normans, a Viking who came from the north and gained a foothold in Normandy in the year 860. This line included such figures as the Norman Duke William Longsword, Richard the Fearless, Robert le Diable and his son, who was William the Conqueror of England. William, of course, was Duke of Normandy as well as England's ruler after 1066.

FROM William, de Lannoy's mother's line came on through Henry I of England, and his daughter Matilda, who married Geoffrey Plantagenet. And then came Henry VI, who married the Princess Agnes; and if we trace Agnes' line back for many generations, we find she was a direct descendant of King Alfred the Great of England—the mighty warrior who defied the Danish pirates, revived learning, and left a record as a man without stain or blemish.

You readers of history will recall how Alfred, after losing a battle to the Danes, took refuge in a heather'd hut, where the housewife ordered him to watch the cakes she was baking in the De la Noye of the "Fortune," nine generations; and from Phillippe De la Noye through Lieutenant Jonathan Delano to Franklin Delano Roosevelt, eight more generations.

Total generations of our President's direct ancestry by this line—42 generations! And literally every first-rank historical figure of England and Europe forms a part of this astounding blend of bloods!

Now let us turn to the charming figure of Mercy Warren, the bride, and trace her contribution to the blend. We shall find, oddly enough, that it goes back to precisely the same remote ancestors, though by very different trails and an even greater number of generations.

Her grandfather, to repeat, was "Mr." Richard Warren of the "Mayflower." Richard Warren wasn't of the Leyden company and he wasn't from the Scrooby village either. He was a well-to-do merchant of Greenwich, near London; a Separatist in religion; and he joined the Pilgrims while the "Mayflower" and "Speedwell" were outfitting at Plymouth, England. He was a fairly young man at the time.

Gave Richard Warren, a man of integrity, justice and uprightness; of piety and serious religion; a useful instrument during the short time he lived, bearing a deep share of the difficulties and troubles of the Plantation." So writes the old chronicler, Nathaniel Morton.

Warren lived but eight years after reaching the New World.

Now, Richard Warren was a direct descendant, through younger sons, of the famous Earls of Warren and Surrey.

Thereby he was sprung directly from William the Conqueror; for the first Earl of Warren came over from Normandy in the Conqueror's army and married Gundred, the Conqueror's daughter.

And since Gundred was descended from Charlemagne, the great Emperor's blood flowed in Richard Warren's veins.

Also, since Gundred's grandmother many generations back had been the English princess Eliflryth, the daughter of Alfred the Great, King Alfred was his direct ancestor too.

And Richard Warren, through his granddaughter Mercy, was F. D.'s ninth-generation forebear. The connection is fully recorded and altogether direct.

Now we are ready to list, step by step, President Roosevelt's longest pedigree—which is also, beyond doubt, the most remarkable and historic pedigree in the modern Occidental world.

IT IS that which connects him directly with Cerdic, the first known ancestor of Alfred the Great. Cerdic was a Danish Viking who came in his long ship and licked the aboriginal Britons in the year 508.

This line is FORTY-SIX GENERATIONS long and covers 1,425 years. It gives little "Sister" Dall, the President's pet granddaughter, a pedigree of 48 generations long—and "Tom" Delano's grandchildren the same.

It is five generations longer than the pedigree that goes through Charlemagne; and about a century older. Here it is, working backward from the present into the past:

Franklin Delano Roosevelt;

AS A BOY

his mother Sarah Delano Roosevelt; Warren Delano, Jr., born 1800; Warren Delano, born 1779; Ephraim Delano, 1733; Thomas Delano, 1704; Lieutenant Jonathan Delano and Mercy Warren, married in 1678; her father, Nathaniel Warren; Richard Warren of the "Mayflower." Nine American generations.

Christopher Warren of Headborough, England; William Warren; Christopher Warren; John Warren, Jr., of Devonshire; John Warren; William Warren of Cawton, Nottinghamshire; Sir Lawrence Warren; John Warren; Sir Lawrence Warren, whose father-in-law was ancestor of the Bulkleys of New England; Sir John Warren; Sir Edward Warren, Jr.; Sir Edward Warren; John Warren; Sir John Warren; William Warren; Reginald Warren; Wiliam de Warren, second Earl of Warren and Surrey, who married Isabel of Vermandois, France; William de Warren, first Earl of Warren and Surrey, who married Gundred, daughter of William the Conqueror, shortly after the Conquest of 1066. Eighteen English generations, between the Conquest and the "Mayflower."

Now we follow Gundred's line back to Charlemagne. It goes: William the Conqueror and Maud or Matilda, his Queen. Baldwin V, King of Flanders; Baldwin IV. Arnulph II. Baldwin III. Arnulph the Great. Baldwin II, who married Eliflryth, the daughter of King Alfred the Great of England. Seven generations of this line of the Kings of Flanders.

We could trace from here directly back to Charlemagne and beyond. But let us first follow Queen Eliflryth!

This line runs:

Alfred the Great, first King of England, born 848; Athelwulf, King of the West Saxons; Egbert, King of the West Saxons; Eofa; Eoppa; Ingild; Cenred; Ceowald; Cuthwin; Cawlin; Cynric; Cerdic, founder of the West Saxon kingdom, or Wessex—a Viking chief who landed in England in 508 and attacked the Britons, finally gaining a foothold after years of warfare. His progenitors are not known. Twelve generations of Saxon kings, traced to the very beginning of the line!

This adds up to forty-six total generations—from President Roosevelt back to Cerdic the Viking, step by step. And it's the finest pedigree in the Western World!

Now let us follow the line from Baldwin II back through Charlemagne. It goes thus:

BALDWIN I of Flanders and his wife, Judith; Charles the Bald, Judith's father, Holy Roman Emperor and King of the West Franks; Louis I, surnamed "The Pious," Charlemagne, first Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire and the greatest figure of medieval history, born in 742. His father Pepin III, or Pippin the Short; Charles Martel, Frankish King; Pepin II. His mother Begga, who married Adalgisulus. Pepin I, founder of the line.

Nine generations in this line of Holy Roman Emperors—and if we substitute for that of Alfred the Great, we get forty-three total generations from Roosevelt to Pepin the First!

Why is it possible at this late day to trace these ancient families with such certainty? Simply because, being royal, they kept track of their family trees. Your own family is just as ancient—all families of course go back endlessly and forward endlessly, through what has been called by scientists the "immortality of the germ plasm"—but a pedigree consists of what is known and recorded. The records of these mighty earls and kings were preserved. That of Alfred, for example, is in the ancient Anglo-Saxon Chronicle.

No wonder President Roosevelt has, as he sits in the White House, a sense of being independent of time and place, and linked to the main course of human history. And no wonder his fifth cousin, "Tom" Delano, whistles as he goes about his daily task of caring for the parks and pavements in his Nevada town. The most active, aggressive blood of the human race is in their veins.

NEXT WEEK—This Astonishing Series Will Conclude with a Fascinating Glimpse of the Doings of the Delano-Warren Roosevelt Descendants in Colonial America and the United States—and We Shall Find That the Same Families Who Made Europe and England Have Played a Splendid Part in Making Our Own Country, Too! SECKATARY HAWKINS AND HIS FAIR and SQUARE CLUB

GIDEON'S WONDER BOAT.

MONDAY.—Today we boys held our meeting down in our little clubhouse to talk over the ways and means by which we would fulfill our promise to Little Tim's grandma. Our captain, Dick Ferris, first sent two of our club members, Bill Darby and Jerry Moore, to see if grandma had heard anything from Little Tim. They reported back in a little while and said, "No." Little Tim had not been home since the night he slipped out of his bedroom window at 7:30 o'clock, and a mysterious motor boat hurried away from the Pelham wharf. Shortly afterward a strange steamboat, with a low, deep whistle that none of us boys recognized around here, followed upstream. We all know, or think we do, that Little Tim went back to Watertown to join the Gideon gang. He was with those fellows for a long time before his grandma tried to put a stop to it. But it seems Little Tim likes Gideon and the gang. The notes Gideon sent us warning us to keep out of his business are enough to let us know that he would be a pretty tough customer to meet. Even though he shows himself alone, it's a sure thing that he has his gang hiding in the dark near by.

TUESDAY.—Just as I was coming down the little path from the main road today after school, I saw Perry Stokes come flying up the path from the clubhouse. I could tell he was excited.

"Well, Perry," I said, as he came up to me, "what's made you so excited all of a sudden?" He waved a piece of paper in front of me.

"This," he said; "it's a note from Gideon—it was on the floor under the door as I opened up the clubhouse."

I took the note and read it:

"Little Tim has come back and told me it was you boys who tried to keep him away from Watertown. After I pay back the Pelham fellows I will come and pay you back for not minding your own business."

GIDEON."

"He signed it!" I said.

"Yes, sir!" blurted out Perry Stokes. "That's what got me so excited, sir. It's the first time he signed any of the notes, sir. And that means that he isn't afraid of us any more. It means that we are in danger, sir."

"Well, why did you come running to tell me this news, Perry?" I asked. "If it was good news, a fellow might run to tell it, but bad news should be brought on a slow walk."

"I was afraid for you, sir," he said, quickly. "There's something on the back of the note."

I turned the paper over in a hurry and looked. There were a few lines added:

"And that fat boy called Hawkins, he seems to be the leader. I'll make him wish he never heard of me."

"Ah, I see Perry!" I said. "And so you thought!"

"I thought, sir, as I'd been your body guard many times before—well, I thought I'd better be with you as soon as I could—and so I ran to meet you. You know, sir—they might be layin' for you behind some of these evergreen bushes along the river path—"

"Lead the way, Perry," I said.

And I just had to laugh a little, and we'll keep our eyes on the evergreen bushes."

WEDNESDAY.—And today Gideon struck. It was in Pelham that his blow fell first. One of the Pelham shacks, the rear one near the edge of Burney's Field, is completely down. They practically destroyed it. The shack in which the Pelham leader holds his headquarters has all the windows smashed out of it. Jerry Moore brought back word that Ham Gardner got a beating and Dave Burns has a black eye to show for the next week or so. As far as I can learn, the Gideon gang are much older boys than the Pelhams and us boys. Lew Hunter brought back the rumor that they had come down from Watertown in a fleet of motor boats. Just where they landed is not known, but we will find that out with our high order spy system soon. We know they landed somewhere close to the Pelham shacks, because the Pelhams go theirs. And I guess we will get ours next. Well, we have made up our minds to be ready for 'em when they come.

LATER.—Just got another report from Johnny McLaren. He said he was up at Hobbs Ferry and Lige Hobbs told him the Gideon gang passed the ferry going down the river towards Seven Willows Island. He said they traveled in a queer looking motor boat. He said the boy appeared to have side-wheels and two masts on it.

THURSDAY.—Roy Dobel came up to me today as soon as our club meeting was over and said: "Hawkins, you know that old spring house on my pop's farm, where you found back Mr. MacLinn's stolen fishin' rods and things? Well, I went down there today and thought I'd sort of fix it up for us fellows to use for a storage place, or a cheese hole in which we could keep some of our things. But when I got to 'em, what do you think? It was locked."

I told Roy nobody had any right to lock a spring house that his father owned.

He said, and his father had given it to him to do with as we boys wanted. I said he could force the lock and shove the door in, and the law would be on his side...

He said: "That's just the trouble—it hasn't any lock—it's fastened c the inside."

And then all of a sudden I got an idea! Gideon's gang! They were using that old spring house for their own hiding place. Or even for something more, perhaps—didn't we find the stolen fishin' tackle 'here'?"

"Leave it to me, Roy," I said.

"It's a mystery, but you know how I like to solve mysteries!"

FRIDAY.—Today I got a look at that mysterious motor boat! It was long after our meeting was over—I had finished writing the minutes of the meeting, and I thought I'd go out and join the game Bill Darby and the boys were having in the hollow. But as I locked the clubhouse door I heard a rifle shot coming from the woods on the river bank north of us. I walked slowly down to our little landing on the river. Perry Stokes was just coming out of the woods to the river, his little old rusty rifle hung in the hollow was worth while, but he came along. We paddled madly away from the landing and managed to keep up with the boat for quite a ways. But it finally gave us the slip. Still I can't see how it did. When we reached that long stretch of straight river, I was sure we could have seen it even if it had gone miles ahead of us. Yet there was nothing on that river as we turned into the long straight stretch. We turned open—Shadow was smart enough to pull into shore behind a clump of willows—and we watched. Gideon's boat shot past us. We saw it sail down the stream a short distance and then pull suddenly to shore, behind another clump of willows like the ones we were hiding in. So I said to Shadow: "Let's slip quietly down stream again and take a look."

Shadow felt uneasy. "Do you think it's safe?" he asked.

I told him it would be safe. They landed there and we could go down now and ta' a look at the empty boat. No 'arm in that. I was that anxious to see the strange boat with the side-wheels.

So Shadow swung our boat around and started back. He slowed up as we approached the "lump of willows behind which we had seen the strange boat land. And then we were in for a surprise.

"There's no boat landed here, Hawkins," he said.

No, I saw there wasn't. But as we nosed into the soft mud of the river bank I leaped out.

"Look here, Shadow," I said, "that's not boat they're riding in—it's a jugernaut or something—look! see its tracks? It came right out of the river and then used its side wheels to travel on land! It's an amphibian, Shadow—that's what it is—it can travel on water and land—no matter which it meets. Come on, let's follow these tracks!"

We followed them. They led up to Dobel's old spring house, and then down a narrow cart road to the river and disappeared in the water.

"Oh, boy!" I exclaimed. "Who would have believed it, Perry? Come on, we've got to tell the other boys about this!"

Which we did. Oh, boy!

At once I knew it was Gideon's boat.

of his left arm, and in his right he carried a rabbit by its hind feet.

"Look, Hawkins!" he called to me. "First one I bagged this season! Won't Jerry Moore be glad!"

I knew Jerry would. He would have his campfire on the river bank tomorrow morning, it being Saturday. Perry would take the rabbit home and skin it and clean it and keep it in its mama's ice box all night. Then in the morning Jerry would put it on a spit over our campfire and roast it.

"Did you notice that boat of Gideon's had side wh'le's, sir?"

Yes, for a fact, now that he mentioned it—the boat did seem to have side-wheels. One on each side...

SATURDAY.—This morning we came down early to the clubhouse and held our meeting, after which Jerry Moore started his campfire on the river bank and roasted the rabbit Perry bagged yesterday. Roy Dobel brought some potatoes which Jerry put in the coals of the fire, and Bill Darby brought a handful of biscuits he got his mother to bake for this feast. And, oh, boy! maybe you think that rabbit meat didn't taste good when it was passed around! Lew Hunter and Johnny McLaren said "fen" for the hind legs and Jerry "fenned" the saddle, and the rest of us took what we got, but we were glad to get it, anyway. I just got a front leg, but with a biscuit and some butter, which Jerry sent Roy Dobel up to his farm house for, and a bunch of celery, we had a great Saturday!

Then along about noon Shadow felt like going out and hunting up another rabbit for later in the day. So Jerry and Perry starts out with the old rusty rifle into the woods, and Bill Darby gets the other fellows to play a game of catch-as-catch-can in the meantime. They had not expected to find gulls at the landing, and Perry Stokes with his rifle, well, I guess Gideon figured we were waiting for him and he swerved back past the channel and sailed past us at full speed ahead.

"Come on, Perry," I said, "get into my little gray canoe and let's follow 'em."

Perry said he didn't think it

What Has Happened To Justice?

By PETER LEVINS.

BANKER HANKS disappeared at about 6:30 p. m. December 6, 1930.

He had entered the Hanks home, located in the little town of Redwater, Texas, removed his hat and coat, laid out fresh clothing, and had lighted the water heater to prepare for his bath. A few moments later he had been heard working about his lighting plant in the backyard. A neighbor heard him say, in a rather sharp tone of voice, "Get back! Get back!" The neighbor supposed Hanks had been talking to his dog.

The disappearance created a sensation, for R. W. Hanks, 57, was one of the first citizens of Redwater. He was cashier of the Guaranty State Bond bank, of which his father-in-law, E. T. Page, was president. Page, wealthiest man in the community, also operated a large general merchandise store and owned several farms. The Hanks and Page homes were in the same neighborhood, about a hundred yards apart.

On that Saturday evening Mrs. Hanks had been at her father's store, helping out during the usual Saturday rush. Her young daughter, Annie, was at the Page home. Hanks dropped into the store shortly after 6 o'clock to get his Sunday supply of cigars and his wife informed him she would be home in about an hour.

Mrs. Hanks reached her home a few minutes before 7 o'clock. She noticed his hat and coat, the fresh linen laid out on the bed. She supposed Hanks was in the yard, but he did not appear. Eventually, she called out. No answer.

Her fears mounted, and she hastened to the Page home. She encountered Edgar McClosky, 25, an employee of Page, who recalled hearing Hanks in the backyard. The woman and young man went to the lighting plant to investigate and found—five one-dollar bills and some coins on a pile of rubbish. The key to the power house was in the lock and the gate to the backyard was swinging open.

McClosky telephoned Sheriff G. H. Brooks at Texarkana, 15 miles away. Brooks notified District Attorney R. G. Waters, County Attorney L. C. Boswell and several deputies and started for Redwater at once.

Search of the Hanks residence uncovered no clue. As an intensive man-hunt got under way, Sheriff Brooks recalled that Hanks had testified against a gang of burglars and, with Page, had caused their conviction after they had robbed the Page store. The gang had operated in Texas, Arkansas and Oklahoma. It looked as though friends of this gang had abducted Hanks and possibly murdered him, for revenge.

The man-hunt quickly moved into action. The entire male population of Redwater armed themselves. Fearing an attempt upon the bank, Sheriff Brooks stationed a heavy guard there. Others were sent out to patrol every main highway with orders to search all cars that aroused suspicion. Further search for clues at the scene revealed the footprints of a man near the Hanks home. These, however, might have been made by one of the searchers.

Midnight passed. Brooks decided to return to Texarkana. As he entered his office the telephone rang.

"Hanks has just been found shot to pieces," announced an excited voice.

"Dead?"

"Not yet, but he's in a bad way."

The call came from a filling station in what is known as the Possum Trot community, about nine miles south of Texarkana and 10 miles from Redwater.

Brooks and District Attorney Waters reached the scene just behind the ambulance. The wounded man was at the home of Ann Henderson, a colored woman. He had been shot several times in the head and was in a semi-conscious condition. Brooks and Waters saw that it would be impossible to question him at this time.

While Hanks was being taken to a hospital in Texarkana, the sheriff conducted a quick investigation at the place where the bank cashier was found.

J. D. Simer, a picturesque veteran trapper, his 17-year-old son, J. D. Jr., and a colored youth had brought the wounded man to the Henderson home. Simer said he was hunting possums with the two boys near an old abandoned sawmill when he saw three men in an automobile drive near an old sawdust pile. About this time his dog, a possum, and started barking and the men in the car apparently became alarmed and dashed away. Simer said.

A few minutes later the car returned to the vicinity of the sawdust pile. Meanwhile, Simer and his companions had retreated into the woods to observe the mysterious car. The dog started barking again.

Suddenly, they heard three pistol shots at intervals of about a minute, apparently on the other side of the old mill and not near the automobile. The car in which the three men were approaching was turned and driven recklessly back toward the highway.

Puzzled by the strange actions of the men in the car and the pistol shots, the trio cautiously approached the old mill to investigate.

Then they heard some one groaning and weakly calling for help. The trapper and his youthful companions, warily circled the sawdust pile with their guns ready for any emergency.

Guided by the moans and cries for help, they came upon a man blindly staggering through the woods. His head and the upper part of his body were covered with blood.

"I'm badly hurt. Help me," the banker pleaded. He was able to mutter his name before he slumped to the ground unconscious.

The trapper and the two youths carried Hanks several hundred yards to the nearest house. The colored youth mounted the Henderson woman's horse and dashed to the home of Dobe Hinton, 27-year-old farmer, for help. Hinton brought his automobile to the house and insisted on taking Hanks to a hospital in Texarkana, but Simer told him to drive to a filling station and call an ambulance.

Leaving some of his deputies to make a thorough search of the area, but warning them to guard against obliteration of tracks in the vicinity of the sawdust pile until he could make a daylight search, Sheriff Brooks returned to Texarkana to try to talk to Hanks. He took Simer, his son, and the colored youth with him because he wanted to question them again and separately.

At the hospital, he found Hanks semi-conscious. The physician advised against extensive questioning at the time. One bullet had split the scalp, but failed to fracture the skull; another had entered the right cheek near the temple and ranged downward to the lower jaw, but missed all bones; the third and most critical wound was caused by a bullet in the same cheek, shattering the sinus bone and ranging down into the throat.

The surgeons gave Hanks a slim chance to live.

Questioning ambulance attendants, the hospital staff and physicians who had been with Hanks, the sheriff learned that the semi-conscious banker had said he was kidnapped from his power house by a lone man and marched to the old sawmill 10 miles from his home. The same man had shot him, he said.

District Attorney Waters and Brooks decided to ask Hanks a few questions with the hope that they might obtain some clue on which to work before the would-be slayer had time to leave the area.

"Who did it?" the district attorney asked.

"I didn't get a good look at him," Hanks moaned. "He weighed about 170 or 180 pounds."

The three possum hunters who had discovered the wounded man were wearing leather coats, so the district attorney's next question was: "Did he wear a leather coat?"

"No, he gave me his coat and cap because I was cold," Hanks mumbled in agony, and then tried to say that his abductor had worn some kind of rubber shoes or boots. The physicians warned against further questioning and they had to be satisfied with this meager information.

Hospital attendants produced the coat and cap Hanks had been wearing when he was brought in, and the trapper and his companions identified them as the garments worn by the banker when they found him.

Learning that the kidnaper had given Hanks his coat, Brooks definitely eliminated the possum hunters as having any connection with the assault since Simer and his companions were still wearing their own coats.

The tattered cap given to Hanks by his abductor did not bear the name of the manufacturer or dealer and offered little as a clue. The coat was of the loose-fitting type known as a lumberjack, being wool plaid on the inside and corduroy on the outside. The garment was patched and grease spattered. There were no trade marks, and the only thing the pockets yielded was a fragment of an envelope.

On this piece of paper were the words: "Texarkana, Texas," and what appeared to be the bottom portion of two numerals. The envelope might have been addressed to the owner of the coat, but the part that would have given the name and possible street address was missing.

The officers could hope to learn nothing more from Hanks about the man who was under suspicion in the murderous attack on the banker. Hinton, his stepson, declared King had been at home all of Saturday night.

King said he had been living at Hinton's home only two or three weeks and did not even know Hanks. He had been working in the oil fields at Seminole, Okla., and had come to Texas to look for work. (The grease spots on the coat appeared very much like those an oil field worker would get on his clothing while handling crude oil.)

Brooks, his preliminary investigation completed, arrested King and Hinton as suspects in the kidnapping and shooting and took them to Texarkana.

Hanks had been locked in jail when deputies brought in four youths who were vigorously protesting that they knew nothing about the Hanks case. The deputies said that a gray touring car seen on the road between Texarkana and Redwater the night before had been identified as the one in which this quartet of youths had been riding.

They all admitted having been on the road in the gray car. The trapper had described the mysterious car as being a large gray touring car. Brooks sent deputies to make a thorough search between Texarkana and Redwater.

In the mud and wet sawdust about the old mill, Brooks found two distinct sets of footprints.

One set was identified readily as those of Hanks. The other footprints apparently had been made by rubber boots or rubber overshoes. Hanks had said his abductor wore rubber shoes or boots.

No one could positively recall ever having seen the coat Hanks had donned but several persons agreed they had seen a man wearing a similar garment and that he lived in the community.

"He is H. C. King, stepfather of Dobe Hinton," the informants said. Hinton was the man who had brought his car to take Hanks to a hospital and who had gone to the filling station to call an ambulance. King had been living in the community only a short while and was staying at Hinton's home.

Confronted with the coat, King, a 47-year-old oil field worker, emphatically denied ever having seen the garment before. He could not produce a similar coat.

The sheriff called several residents of the community and ordered King to put on the coat. It was a snug fit. However, no one would say positively that this was

CHRISTMAS LINGERIE

*Exquisitely Dainty Models Done In Crepe, Satin
And Sheerest Georgette Make Ideal Presents to Give or Receive*

TAILORED UNDERGARMENTS

THE step-in, sketched at the left, of satin-striped flesh crepe, is cut on smartly tailored lines. The monogram is embroidered in black. Something new for traveling is the long-sleeved white crepe gown below it. It features a high round neck and a simulated vestee outlined with hand-drawn work. The sleeves puff at the shoulders and are gathered into narrow wrist-bands.

IT WILL be a happy holiday morning for the little lady who wakes up to find some of the season's new lingerie spread out beneath the Christmas tree.

In keeping with the return of femininity to the mode, the lingerie of today shows a trend toward dressiness. Laces are used lavishly, sheer georgettes, and gleaming crepes and satins make some of the loveliest undergarments we have seen in years.

At the right, you'll see any number of fripperies to please the feminine heart. At the top is a delicate evening brassiere of lace that has ingenious elastic bands to fasten it. They encircle the waist and fasten in the front. Perfect for the backless evening gown!

The peach colored satin gown shows the new covered shoulder line—with neck and armholes delicately scalloped. Note the applied lace medallions and the satin ribbon girdle.

The Chinese robe of pale green heavy crepe is effectively outlined with bands of purple crepe. Tiny frogs are used at the side closing. Next is a slip and pantie set of flesh-colored crepe lavishly trimmed with lace. The slip is cut to the waistline at the back.

Sandals and mules make perfect Christmas gifts. Below, we show three of the new models—a red velvet sandal with heel of gold kid; the gold kid mule is decorated with perforations and bordered with red satin, and the delicate mule of silver mesh is lined and trimmed with purple crepe, and bears a heel of silver kid.

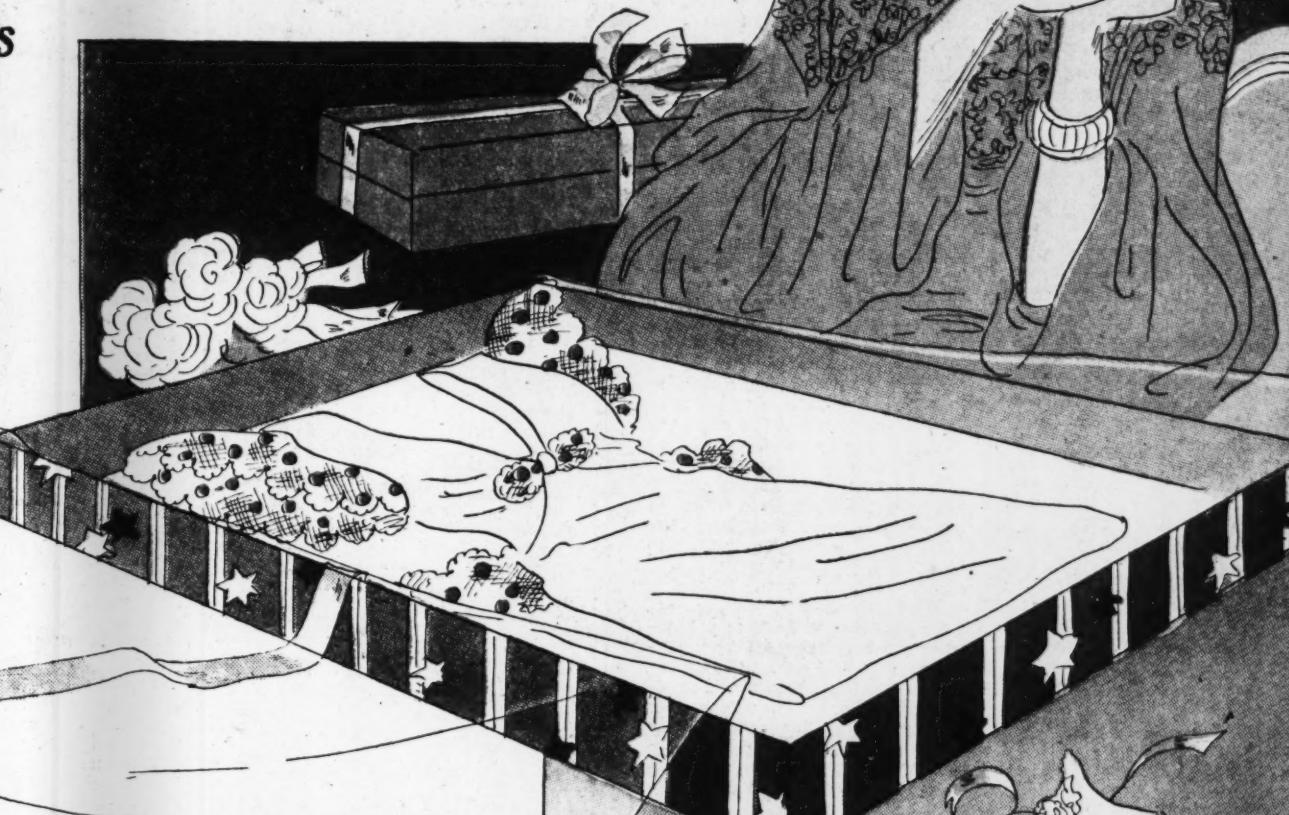

THE SINGLETTE

A BRASSIERE and panties cut in one—the perfect garment for wear under sleek-fitting frocks, is sketched at the left. It is fashioned of tea-rose satin and is perfectly moulded to the figure. The brassiere top, in a deep V, and the short panties, are edged with dark ecru lace. The lovely gown of georgette in soft yellow-green is printed in a delicate leaf pattern. Cut on the conventional straight full lines, it is very simply made. The blouse is gathered into a youthful ruffled neckline. This treatment is repeated at the armholes.

BREAKFAST IN BED

CHRISTMAS morning should be very thrilling in the stunning bed jacket of mauve georgette, with high neck and dyed lace yoke, shown here. The jacket fastens in the back and the sleeves are long and very full. The gift gown, in the large box, is of pale yellow crepe, cut on princess lines. It is strikingly trimmed with epaulets and a deep hem of net, both dotted in green. A tiny bow of the dotted net finishes the V neckline. And won't milady be entranced when she opens the smaller box, full of the sheerest hose in all the new shades!

"THINGS THAT MAKE WOMEN MORE BEAUTIFUL"

WITH thousands of unfortunates in Atlanta unable to enjoy the spirit of Christmas, here is your opportunity to be a "Big Brother." The Atlanta Constitution is sponsoring a "Big Brother" movement in Atlanta in order that the poor may be happy on Christmas day.

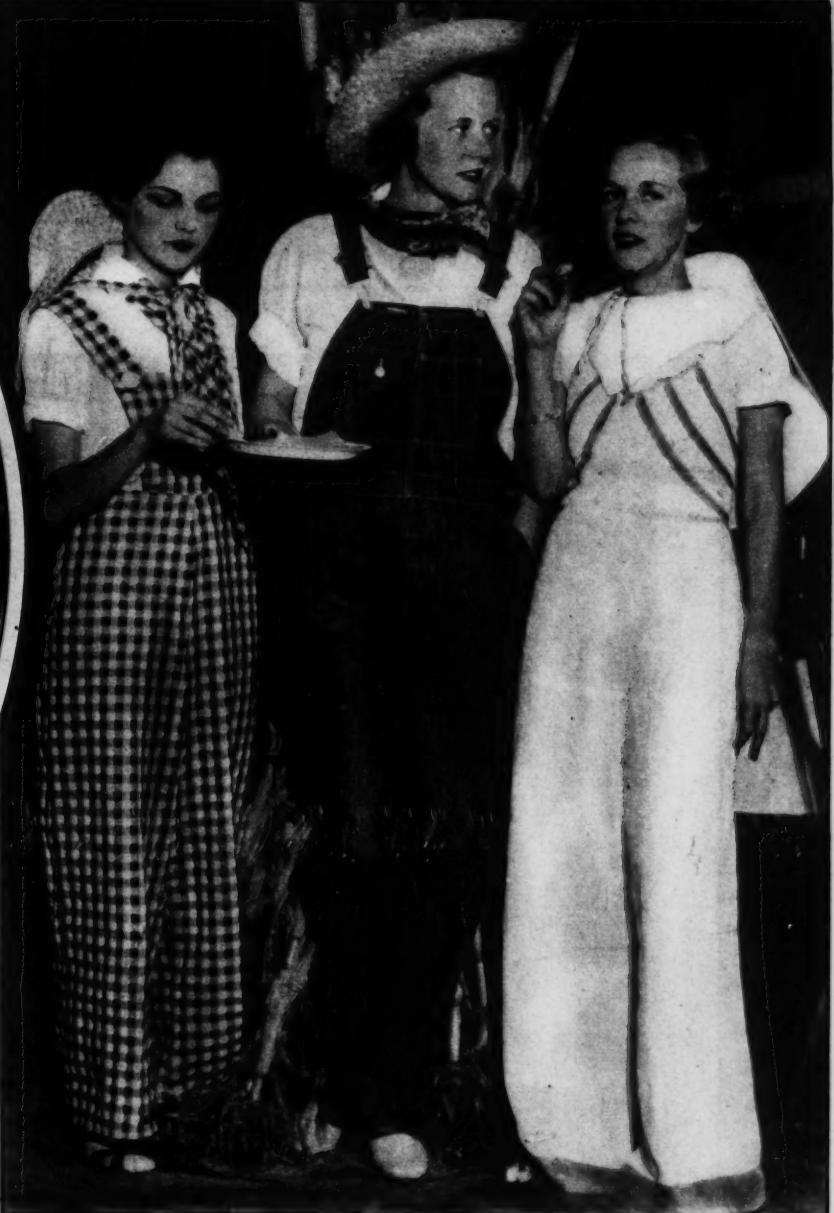

FIFTEEN hundred strong, Atlanta has rallied to the "Big Brother" cause and this "Big Brother" edition of The Constitution is being delivered to you. This is your opportunity to be a "Big Brother" to the poor. Give—give—give as much as you can.

DAD'S BEST CHRISTMAS

PERFECT GIFTS—
PRINCE ALBERT
—IN GAY XMAS PACKAGES

This is the 1-lb. glass humidor. Keeps the Prince Albert in prime condition.

CAMELS ... made from finer, more expensive tobaccos

Recognized everywhere as being made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand, Camels naturally suggest themselves as the gift for any smoker. Camels never get on the nerves or tire the taste. The smoker to whom you give Camels will appreciate the mildness and satisfying flavor of those costlier tobaccos. So to give pleasure, give Camels—now on display in gay Christmas packages.

PRINCE ALBERT

THE NATIONAL JOY SMOKE

Among men who smoke pipes or "roll their own," Prince Albert smoking tobacco is known as "the national joy smoke." A special process takes out every hint of harshness or "bite"—leaves P. A. cool, slow-burning and mellow. No wonder that more men smoke Prince Albert than any other brand. The one-pound glass humidor and one-pound tins are suitably packaged for the Christmas season.
